The melody of Westminster Chimes, known and loved throughout the world, is faithfully reproduced in all Revere Clocks. This famous melody was composed in 1793 by William Crotch for the University Church of St. Mary, at Cambridge. It has been known as the Westminster Chimes since 1859, when it was chosen for the great clock tower of the Houses of Parliament in Westminster, London. The melody, inspired by a Handel symphony, was given these words, written by an unknown author

Be Thou our guide
So, by Thy power
No foot shall slide"

and in Vinyl it's MARVINOL!

Naugatuck's pure virgin MARVINOL® vinyl resins are of uniformly high quality...choice of toy manufacturers and molders. Some of the many "Made-of-MARVINOL" products for young children are shown on this and the next three pages.

MARVINOL vinyls are completely harmless and non-toxic, as evidenced by the fact that one of them is used in making famous Band-Aid® Adhesive Bandages.

MARVINOL vinyls do not react chemically in a child's mouth, and it is almost impossible for a child to bite off a part of a toy made of them. So, for more sales with fewer complaints, be sure that the toys you make, buy or sell are "Made of MARVINOL".

Ginnette

Baby Sister of Famous Ginny

Sales figures prove it! Ginnette is following in Ginny's footsteps of popularity. The sales history of Ginnette has been phenomenal . . . 1957 will be even more so. Why? One reason is that she will be available in three price ranges—one with the popular painted eyes, another with the life-like moving eyes and still a third with moving eyes that cry real tears! All three with the same natural softness and flexibility of all washable vinyl.

And as for the features, we expect you to expect 'A-A-Ah's' from the ones you've seen over Ginnette. And one brand a new line of outfits for 1957. As a result of detailed research into style trends and preferences, Vogue Dolls, Inc. has created a line of outfits that will hold you spellbound.

Jill

Replenished in a complete wardrobe, Jill is fitting in beauty, doll to endow with beauty, with the "Jill" label, she is a doll or teenage charm.

Fashion Leaders in Doll Society

In the interest of good taste, Jill is available dressed in a leotard or in any one of her many fabulous outfits. In styles especially created for her, Jill is the typical teen-ager and represents the best doll available any where at any price. And embodied in this beauty is plenty of play value... she walks, sleeps and has gracefully bending knees that add to her naturally inherent charm. Place your order now for priority shipment!

Vintage Dolls

As America has learned to recognize the quality of all Vogue Dolls products and we at Vogue Dolls are proud to have three such beautiful dolls represent us. Ginny is original Fashion Leader & Doll Society and the most popular doll in the country. Gamine, Ginny's baby sister who is accounted as the most lovable baby doll ever created and now Jill, Ginny's twin-sister. This is the Vogue Doll family the family of High Fashion - the key to High Profit.

'58 CHEVROLET

Never, never has a car been so wonderfully new in so many different ways! Here are radical departures in style, power and ride... all wrapped up in the longest, lowest, widest Chevrolet that ever said, "C'mon, let's get going!"

Here are just some of the real surprises that await you in Chevrolet's three new series, its new line of station wagons, its eye-brightening array of 17 all-new models:

A revolutionary new V8! So new it even looks different on the outside—that's Chevy's Turbo-Thrust V8*! Combustion chambers are in the block—a radical design development that results in super-smooth performance and high efficiency. Horsepower ranges up to 280. There are three new versions of the famous Turbo-Fire V8, too, including Ramjet Fuel Injection*, and more power for the super-thrifty Blue-Flame Six.

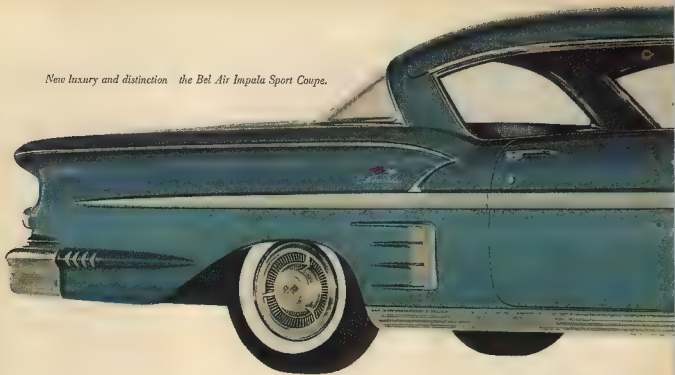

New body-frame construction! The secret of Chevy's road-hugging lowness is the new X-design Safety-Girder frame. There's extra safety in the lower center of gravity... and new locked-together strength in the way this new frame is wedded to Chevrolet's new Body by Fisher.

All-new 4-coil suspension! Here's a fabulous combination of super-soft coil springs and the super stability of Chevy's exclusive four-link rear suspension. Unquestionably, the finest standard suspension in Chevrolet's field!

You can even ride on air! Level Air suspension* puts air springs at every wheel for the ultimate in this-to-down comfort. It changes every concept of motoring smoothness—and the car stays level, regardless of load changes front or rear!... See the year's newest car at your Chevrolet dealer's... Chevrolet Division of General Motors, Detroit 2, Michigan.

*Extra-cost option

New luxury and distinction the Bel Air Impala Sport Coupe.

Almost too new to be true!

The stylish new Nomad Station Wagon.

Here's styling that sets a new style! The beautiful '58 Chevrolet is nine inches longer, four inches wider and up to 2½ inches lower.

FORWARD
FIFTY

From dual headlights to gull-wing rear fenders, these are truly impressive cars. Interiors, wheelbases, grilles, styling accents and fabrics — everything is new, luxurious, exciting!

FORD TRUCKS

wheel . . . double-grip door latches—all of them standard on Ford Trucks!

NEW power! Powerful, more rugged V-8's, and Short Stroke economy in both Six and V-8!

NEW "fine car" conveniences! Ranchero offers all power assists . . . even power windows and air conditioning, factory-installed, at Ford's low prices.

NEW comfort! Non-sag seat springing, suspended pedals, weather-protected inboard steps, Hi-Dri ventilation.

The big fleets buy more Ford Trucks than any other make!

FORD TRUCKS COST LESS

LESS TO OWN . . . LESS TO RUN . . . LAST LONGER, TOO!

Step in NEW '58

NEW FORD 12-FT. STAKES . . . with strongest frames and widest choice of Short Stroke power in the 1½-ton fie d. More comfortable cabs, too!

(Background) NEW 58 FORD RANCHERO—America's first work or play truck.

NEW STYLESIDE PICKUP . . . modern, extra-wide body with up to 41% more load space than other pickups, standard at no extra cost. New suspension gives you a ride that's mighty close to that of a passenger car.

Step ahead....with all

Here they are, the most modern farm trucks in America! There's more load space, more ruggedness, more comfort and improved power! Best of all, Ford's modern design means greater economy!

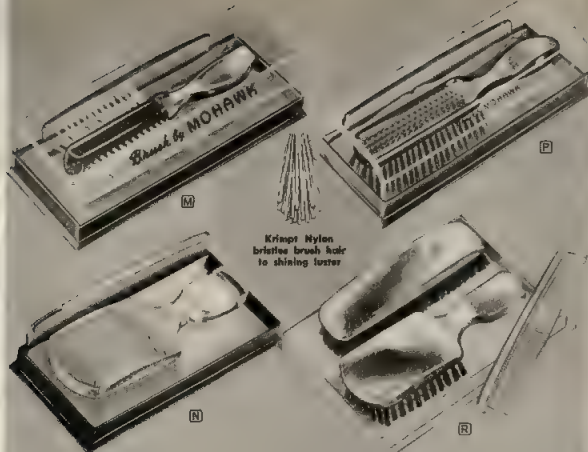

Compare suggested list prices. Fords are priced below other makes in model after model. Only Ford offers a Short Stroke Six for fuel savings. Comparisons show Ford parts usually are priced lower, and they are available everywhere. Ford trade-in value is traditionally high. And independent surveys of over 10 million trucks prove Ford Trucks last longer! Call your Ford Dealer.

NEW capacity! Extra-wide Styleside Pickup bodies have up to 41% more load space than competitive pickups . . . standard at no extra cost from Ford!

NEW easy ride! Scientific Impact-O-Graph ride tests have proved amazing superiority of Ford's suspension over competitive pickups . . . a ride that's mighty close to that of a car!

NEW safety! "Safety Vision" dual headlights . . . Lifeguard steering

Report Covering 5 Dep't Stores

HO's detailing. Whether it impresses the 5-9-year-olds is something else; these younger train customers obviously still find the color, size and "romance" of the standard gauge sets fairly compelling.

Buyers like the lesser amount of display space required to demonstrate the HO's. And they say the hobby characteristics of HO help keep the sales up during the non-holiday months.

Now for the reports:

—Year 'round toy train merchandising has resulted in sales figures that amaze even the store manager of Calhoun's of St. Paul—Vice-President Stafford Calvin.

At Calhoun's, Eighth and Cedar, toy trains and model (HO) trains are merchandised in the same area: toy trains are mounted on a pegboard display board, and model trains are in glass showcases. But the unified display, Mr. Calvin emphasizes, is kept at a peak level all 12 months of the year, in recognition of the fact that in miniature trains the toy merchandiser has a product that interests youngsters and adults alike. By setting up the department as a bobbycraft section, too, adults are more directly attracted to the store and its train exhibits.

Mr. Calvin staffs the department carefully, selecting only those who have had previous training and experience in the train field.

Layaway is an important feature in train merchandising. Mr. Calvin feels, particularly in view of the fact that the miniature train hobbyist usually makes his hobby a fairly large investment. No set policy is in force regarding down payment or monthly payments—only stipulation is that the customer pay something each month.

Wide, complete stocks of toy and model trains are essential, too. Mr. Calvin says that his store includes virtually every line on the market.

—Replacement of O gauge electric trains with HO has resulted in a sixfold increase in business for I. Maguin & Company, large San Francisco specialty store.

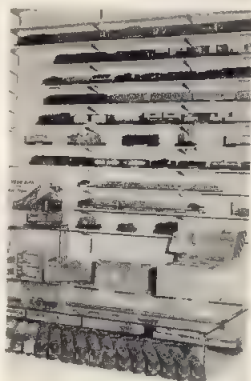

"It used to be that people would buy an electric train set for a child's Christmas," buyer Joan Voorhees says, "and we'd never see them again. But with HO gauge, railroad-ing becomes more of a year-round family project. The first sale is only the beginning. HO equipment is like a disease—customers keep coming back again and again for more cars, switches and special equipment."

I. Maguin's runs a half-page newspaper ad in April promoting electric trains. "Other buyers said we were mad when we started that three years ago," Mrs. Voorhees observes, "but we've succeeded in making electric trains a year-round item."

A salesman in the department, specially trained by the local representative of the HO line, spends full time on trains from September to these special salespersons are on hand to demonstrate and sell the trains.

Electric train sales, despite being confined almost entirely to the Christmas shopping season, rank eighth out of 18 different toy classifications during a years period, according to Robert Binney, buyer for toys and luggage for Burdine's, well-known Miami department store.

Demonstrations or prominent central action displays, concentration on a single line (Gilbert American Flyer), and a close check on the trends in customers' tastes help to keep electric trains in this prominent sales position, Mr. Binney indicated.

In addition, he has seen definite signs, with the growth in volume of hobby sales, that trains, "which have been much more Christmas-y than anything else in the department," will build up in importance during other seasons of the year.

At Burdine's downtown Miami parent store, demonstrators are considered essential. It is customary to have two demonstrators on duty during the holiday season in the Miami store. "And this year, for the first time, we will have two separate track layouts, one for standard gauge and one for HO, because HO is getting stronger." The toy department at the downtown store is being re-decorated for the holiday season and a new train display will be in use.

At the other Burdine's stores, which are smaller, the toy departments do not use demonstrators, but have centrally-located factory displays—"and you have to have the trains running—there is no question about that." Burdine's stores are located in Miami, Miami Beach, North Miami Beach, Fort Lauderdale and West Palm Beach.

By concentrating on one line, "we feel we can do a better selling job," Mr. Binney said. The top range in stock is on sets of around $65, and most of the stock money is placed in sets priced under $35, he reported.

Some trends noted by Mr. Binney include:

Steam locomotives outsell diesels "about 8 to 1," probably because of the romantic association of the steam locomotives with the Old West in movies and television.

There is a definite trend toward lower-priced steam locomotives.

There is increasing favor toward HO. Standard gauge sets are losing ground — "probably because the homes in this area tend to be small and don't have space for standard gauge sets."

"Trains definitely are a drawing attraction to a toy department, and to us they represent a sizable amount of business," he said.

headway in a land unacquainted with the colorful range riders, but the introduction of TV—and the accompanying commercials featuring cowboys and Indians—are slowly bringing a different outlook here too.

Indoor games are slow because of the year-round popularity of outdoor play. Playground equipment and educational toys are good sellers, reports Mrs. Young.

The toy department has been recently expanded in the store.

The Kirkish Department Store, 198 South Murphy Street, Sunnyvale, Calif., is adding a toy department in October after 35 years without one. The new department is located on the main floor. Henry Kirkish, partner with his brother Robert, is toy buyer.

RAYMOND WILLIAMS expects to open the Toy Fair at 18th and A Streets, in Antioch, Calif., about November 1 in a new shopping center. Mr. Williams is new to the industry, having been in other retailing fields ANIMATED circus animals and clowns mark the Toy Circus, 701 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo, Calif. A 1/7th horse power motor moves five figurines at the front and on one side of the store, as well as the letters of the store name.

main devoted to the conservative method of selling with clerks. This store, with its famous year 'round toy department, handles the Christmas rush by multiplying its toy selling staff seven fold. Clerks almost bump into each other, but the customers get prompt attention.

THE TREND, however, seems definitely in the direction of self-service. Wieboldt's, which pioneered this method in Chicago in 1943, is going into its 14th year with it and feels it has been a boon. Not a few of the toy stores in the uptown neighborhoods are also using serve-yourself set-ups. Kiddie Korner, on the northwest side, has had it in operation for about three years. Harold Levin, of Kiddie Korner, says it has proved its value.

"There's no question about it; people buy more when they can browse," said Levin. "They like to look about, feeling there is no pressure upon them, and they are likely to come away with more than they expected to buy. There are some problems, of course. There's a little pilfering, and there's wear on the merchandise. We have to supervise children so they don't damage the boxes. But on the whole, this is more than compensated by increased sales."

Kiddie Korner is set up with two turnstyles, one an entrance and the other an exit.

Blaine's Toys and Juvenile Furniture, 4836 N. Lincoln, is another uptown shop which has converted to self-service and has found it satisfactory. They are about 90 per cent self-service. The remaining 10 per cent includes such show-case items as dolls.

On the other hand, Lou of Lou's Toys and Hobbies, 4342 W. Diversey, says that with his wife Adele he can handle the trade satisfactorily. He sees no need at present for open shelves. Same with Edgebrook Juvenile Shop, 5424 West Devon. They manage with their regular staff until about two weeks before Christmas. Then they take on special help. All, however, are giving thought to the problem of adequate service in the face of labor limitations.

... Trains

March, and part of his time during the rest of the year. Mrs. Voorhees found, however, that the color tab and wiring system used to set up her department's HO layout was so simple that anyone in the department could sell the basic set.

I. Magnin's promotes electric train sales with newspaper advertising and window displays, and stages a "train show" on the first Monday of each month, except during the Summer, to display new types of equipment. Invitations are mailed to more than 5,600 persons who have purchased beginning sets.

"We don't try to oversell the customer the first time," Mrs. Voorhees says. "Practically all of them keep coming back."

Mrs. Voorhees believes it's best to concentrate on one good line, rather than to stock several, since repeat business becomes even more certain as the customer wants more equipment of the same brand.

Christmas of 1956 Alvin Hinsley installed a narrow-shelfed, floor-to-ceiling wall display 12 feet wide in Memphis' J. Goldsmith & Sons Company toy department.

This display was the greatest factor in doubling the store's sales of electric trains over the previous Christmas season, he feels.

That sales pace has continued throughout the current year so far, according to Mr. Hinsley, who has been manager of the toy department for three years. Bob Hayne is head of stock and the hobby department director, and he devotes full time to promoting and marketing electric trains, which run from around $10 to $70 in price range.

They feature Lionel Trains from $19.98 to $70 and promote Louis Marx Trains which sell for around $10. They also handle Gilbert's American Flyer and HO Trains.

Mr. Hayne reports the HO is growing more and more popular in this vicinity "because the buyer gets more train play value in a smaller area as well as more detail than in other sets."

Mr. Hinsley states it is essential to place a man in charge of trains and let him give his undivided attention to promoting and handling sales. This, he says, will greatly increase volume on electric trains. "We have found it highly effective," Mr. Hinsley said, "to have the running display of trains some distance removed from the purchase point." He pointed out this enables the buyer to purchase the train in private while the children enjoy watching the trains run.

The toy department of Goldsmith's is being remodeled, the size of the train department is being increased considerably and the narrow-shelfed, floor-to-ceiling wall display area will be doubled in anticipation of the largest Christmas season the store has experienced in merchandising electric trains.

—R. Kleeman, toy buyer for the Denver Dry Goods Company, Denver, says his department carries a full line of Lionel and Gilbert offerings, with prices ranging from $19.95 up to $100. The department also carries the Lionel and Lionel HO lines, and will add a third HO line this year.

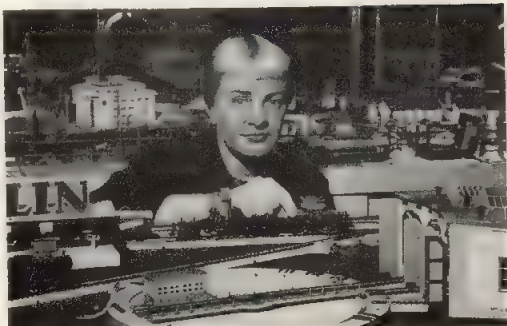

Two early-season train promotions last year helped train sales considerably, Mr. Kleeman reports. In August the department promoted one train set representing one of the two major lines offered at the store. The set was made up according to Denver Dry Goods specifications. The following month, September, another set, featuring the other major line, was offered. Both deals suggested layaway until Christmas, and both were "very successful," Mr. Kleeman says.

In the official Christmas toy opening last year, a train ad was tied in with the big toy-promoting ad, and this also brought good results. During the Christmas season, trains are displayed on a large board in the main store downtown, with a smaller board tiered above the main board for the HO offering. Two or three sets are kept in the toy windows throughout the Christmas season.

The train board in the store is operated by full-time personnel specifically assigned this job, and during the peak of the season three of

Stafford Calvin, Calhoun's—"We stock virtually every line on the market."

Mrs. Joan Voorhees, I. Magnin's—"We run a half-page ad in April promoting trains. Other buyers said we were mad . . . but we [made] electric trains a year-round item."

Trends in Train Sales—a Special

THOUGH the steadily rising amount of business being done with HO trains (and kits) is business that tends to spread out over the year, Christmas remains the big season for electric trains generally.

With total annual train sales at retail estimated as not far short of $100 million, the Yule portion can be fairly put at about $65-70 million. Standard gauge sets represent the lion's share of this holiday figure, but Christmas '57 promises to see HO cut into it, sharply.

To get some notion of the current train merchandising picture, especially as it looks to be shaping up in terms of the coming 10-12 weeks, PLAYTHINGS asked five of its correspondents, each of whom covers a particular city for this magazine, to check with a leading department store in his locality and find out (1) what the trends are in train sales; (2) what plans the store has for cueing and capitalizing on train demand this Christmas; and (3) what selling methods were tried and found true last Christmas and thereafter.

Stores visited and individuals interviewed were as follows: Calhoun's, St. Paul, Vice-President Stafford Calvin; I. Magnin's, San Francisco, toy buyer Joan Voorhees; J. Goldsmith, Memphis, toy department manager Alvin Hinsley; Denver Dry Goods Company, Denver, toy buyer R. Kleeman; and Burdine's, Miami, toy buyer Robert Binney.

Of the number of interesting points brought out and developed, one stands out as deserving prime mention.

It is that HO, which has been climbing comet-fashion for the past five years, shows no sign of levelling off; in fact, some trade observers have predicted that in another five years HO will own up to half the train market.

Reasons for HO's ascendant popularity are various. Customers like its compactness, the fact that a typical set fits "just right" in the article-crowded playroom or basement of today's smaller home. Adults like

Better than two-thirds of the year's volume in electric trains, both standard and HO gauge, is represented by Christmas figures. To get a line on what's been happening in trains, how they're being priced, displayed and sold, this magazine instructed five correspondents to call on major retail outlets in their territories. looks. You get greater "seeing" distance on low beam with less glare to oncoming cars. And you have much better driving or high beam lighting. Both are contributions to safer driving.

This year manufacturers are shifting their sales emphasis away from horsepower to fuel economy. But this doesn't mean that 1958 cars will lack pep—they'll still average between 5% and 10% greater horsepower. And, in any of the "low-priced three," you can buy engines this year with more horsepower than was available in any of the luxury cars as recently as 1955.

There are several reasons why the new cars should be more economical. One is higher compression ratios. The average on the new models is close to 10 to 1. Three or four years ago, an engine with an 8 to 1 was rated unusually "hot." This drawback: While higher compression usually means more gas mileage, more of the new engines require the premium fuels.

Changes in carburetion and choke design also promise real gas savings. One engineer told me: "We've driven cars equipped with our '58 power plant more than 250,000 miles with an average fuel saving of 12% over '57's driven the same routes."

Automatic transmissions, now ordered on nearly 85% of all cars, have practically no slippage. You can order some '58 transmissions with special gas-saving gear ratios.

Several manufacturers are offering fuel injection for the first time. On engines so equipped, there is no carburetor. Fuel is supplied at constant pressure and metered directly into the cylinders. Engineers say it makes starting easier, particularly in cold weather. Warm-up is quicker. You have no adjustments to worry about when driving in various altitudes.

All manufacturers say they've improved the riding qualities of their '58's. I drove some of the new cars over "torture roads" far rougher than any dirt or gravel I've seen. The engineers have done a remarkable job.

Most interesting innovation this year is the new air suspension, in which air substitutes for steel as the springing medium. It gives a soft ride and it keeps a car "trim" regardless of the distribution of the load in the car.

You'll find prices a bit higher this year. But you'll also find many items that have been extra-cost options now listed as standard equipment. Several manufacturers have new models within their lines, and in addition, Ford's Edsel—the first entirely new car by a major manufacturer in a generation—has made its bow. All in all, it should be an exciting car-shopping year. End

One-Story Laying House
Design No. 1458

Double your flock size Decrease your chore time

WITH THIS NEW, MODERN LAYING HOUSE

Modern laying houses are so much more efficient than the old-fashioned "hen houses" that you can actually keep twice as many birds—yet spend fewer hours doing chores.

Look, for example, at this one-story, 1000 bird laying house from the 4-Square Farm Service. This building has all of the latest improvements to help cut poultry handling time. The dropping pit is recessed 16 inches for easy cleaning. The design specifies automatic waterers and feeders, and installation of an egg carrier and track.

This carefully engineered structure has double wall construction. The ceiling is insulated with Balsam Wool. Ridge vent provides good ventilation. Protective roof overhang cools in the summer, adds warmth in the winter. There is a separate feed room and an insulated egg cooling room.

For full details, and blueprints, see your Weyerhaeuser 4-Square Lumber Dealer. He will also show you his complete 4-Square Farm Service with its wide variety of designs for farm buildings, lumber-built equipment, and modern farm homes.

THREE GREAT SERIES IN THREE PRICE CLASSES
NEW YORKER • SARATOGA • WINDSOR

FORD. New styling theme, new series of V-8 engines, improved riding comfort and handling ease mark Ford's '58 bid. Strong economy note: regular-grade fuel for most models; gas-saving transmission. Air suspension ride is optional.

Fairlane 500 Sunliner

President 2 door Hardtop

PLYMOUTH. Styling further accents dart-shaped lines. New choke saves on fuel, particularly during warm-up. Also these options: power steering with greater road feel, a differential that keeps the wheels from spinning on ice and snow.

Studebaker

RAMBLER. New this year are push-button shifting, larger brakes, beefed-up frame, increased horsepower with even greater fuel economy. New grill, tail fins are key style changes. Rambler offers 11 models, all on compact 108" wheelbase.

Rambler Cross Country Station Wagon

CHEVROLET. This completely restyled entry is 9" longer and up to 2½" lower than '57's. New all-welded X-frame increases leg and trunk room. Air suspension is optional, and buyer has a choice of 17 engine-transmission combinations.

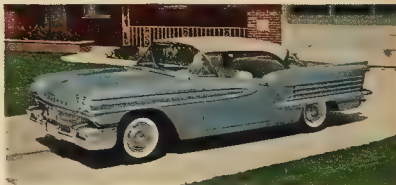

Nova 4-door Station Wagon

Star Chief Custom 4-door Coupelet

PONTIAC. For its 50th anniversary, these new advances: an all new body, air-ride suspension, improved fuel injection, bigger engines. Models will be as much as 4½" lower, 2.2" wider and as much as 8.7" longer. Luggage space is larger.

OLDSMOBILE. A new engine with up to 20% fuel saving, major styling changes and an air suspension system are major sales points on this '58. Innovations: radio that can be removed and used as a portable; a pre-set speed warning device.

88 Hardtop Coupe

Corvair Park Ship on display

MERCURY. Four new engines, combined with a new transmission and a high economy rear axle, promise gas-saving plus performance. New luxury model, Park Lane, is 9" longer than the '57's. Full air suspension ride is optional equipment.

DE SOTO. New body styling, including a striking grill-bumper unit, and new V-8 engines for all models highlight '58 changes. Dual head lamps are standard equipment. Front seat headroom is increased and the interiors are restyled.

Fresh Camerata

Windsor 4-door Hardtop

CHRYSLER. Big news is an "all new" Windsor line offered in five body styles. Other features: a device that automatically holds a car at a pre-set speed; higher-compression, fuel-saving engines.

Century 4-door Hardtop

BUICK. Dual headlights, dazzling new grill are among extensive style changes. New air-ride suspension includes a lift valve which raises the car $5\frac{1}{2}$ " when extra clearance is needed. Brakes are bigger and new transmission more responsive.

Custom Royal Convertible

DODGE. Improved economy in a completely new line of engines. Electronic fuel injection is available. Also new: a "picture" windshield with more than 11 sq. ft. of glass area.

FARM JOURNAL'S OWN automobile show

TIME was when the auto industry's annual model change amounted to little more than shifting the chrome around and re-designing the hub caps. But not any more.

In the red-hot competition for customers, manufacturers are now making major changes every year—improvements in power plants and passenger comfort as well as in exterior design.

Last summer when I made the rounds of the auto manufacturers to pre-view and test-drive the '58 models, I talked with an engineer for a company that had made extensive '57 changes.

"We took our 1957 models," he said, "and not only face-lifted them, but also tail- and side-lifted them until there wasn't a single exterior surface the same. Then, just to be sure, we went back and face-lifted the finished products."

Several of the new models are lower even than last year, and a few are longer. But the most conspicuous appearance change is the use of dual headlights. They're available on all models; standard equipment on most.

These new lamps aren't just for

GENERAL MERCHANDISE COMPANY

(E) American Flyer Trestle Set—Increases the fun of building scale-model sets. Trains climb the grade, run on an elevated trestle, then descend to regular tracks again. Molded girder-like construction—red lead finish. Track sections fit into slots and lock. Trestle is 4½ in. high at highest point—it stands tall enough so another train can pass beneath it. Can be arranged in figure 8's, ovals and others. Set of 24 trestles and 28 track locks. Use with (G) for more intricate layouts.

84-1353 A 530—Set. Wt. 2½ lbs. Retail $7.95

(G) H-Trestle Section Set—Enlarge your pike and make its operation more interesting with trestles. Use set alone or combine with (E) above to extend highest elevated part. Set includes 12 trestles, each 4½ in. high, and 12 secure track-locks. Makes model railroading twice the fun!

84-2302 A 330—Set. Wt. 1 lb. Retail $4.95

(H) Trestle Bridge—A model railroad accessory designed to span rivers and gorges on your layout. A really effective piece that will add authenticity to your set. It has a realistic bridge tender's house with a light inside. Made of sturdy rolled steel for rugged wearability you can count on. 8¼ x 4¼ x 17¾ in. long.

84-1801 A 397—Shpg. wt. 3½ lbs. Retail $5.95

(I) Railroad Tunnel—Bright, colorful, and so realistic-looking. A popular feature on any model railroad! Railroad tunnel is carefully designed with many details—it shows a winding road house, and boulder background. Interior of tunnel is ribbed to give maximum strength. Adds real excitement and fun to your set. Railroad tunnel is 11½ in. long.

84-1437 A 264—Shpg. wt. 4 lbs. Retail $3.95

(K) Crossing Gate with Bell—It's automatic and realistic. When your model train approaches grade crossing, the gate lowers, a red light glows, and warning bell clangs. After the train has passed, gate rises, red light is extinguished, and bell stops ringing. Operation is automatic—a railroad accessory any hobbyist will be proud to own. Durable metal construction to assure long use. Includes track trip. 8¾ x 2¾ in.

84-1619 A 664—Shpg. wt. 1 lb. Retail $9.95

84-1635 A 397—Shpg. wt. 1 lb. Retail $5.95

(M) Semaphore—A semaphore that's just like the ones used on real railroads. When trains approach blade rises, light turns green—after train passes, blade drops and bull's-eye becomes red. Semaphore automatically halts following trains for complete safety. So much fun to watch. Completely automatic operation. All steel construction stands up under long use. 7¾ in. high.

84-1650 A 664—Shpg. wt. 1½ lbs. Retail $9.95

(N) Sam the Semaphore Man—Here's something every railroad fan will enjoy. All you do is press the remote-control button and "Sam" dashes out of his shack to halt the oncoming train—press a second button and he returns to shack as the train passes. Tempered for smooth operation, long wear. All metal construction. About 7½ in. high.

NEW CHRIS-CRAFT SEA SKIFFS

FAST! DRY! SEAWORTHY!

Yes, new Chris-Craft Sea Skiffs for 1957 are the finest round-bilge, lapstrake boats ever built — and the longer you own one, the more you'll like and respect it.

For, the Sea Skiff is a practical, versatile all-purpose boat — with fast response and handling ease for water sports, fishing, and cruising — plus the power for heavy-duty utility work.

New Chris-Craft Sea Skiffs are exceptionally watertight, too — thanks to the exclusive Chris-Craft "Sea Skiff" sealer — a synthetic-rubber based sealer that is a strong adhesive, as well, elastic enough to allow strokes to "work," it resists the effects of water, weathering, fuel, and oil! It is used in all seams and joints, from keel to seat risers in 18-ft., 22-ft., and 26-ft. open models; from keel to sheer in 30-ft. open, 36-ft., 38-ft., 35-ft., and 40-ft. cruiser models.

Standard equipment includes sturdy skog to protect the bottom, bronze shoe to protect the propeller on 18 ft., 22 ft., and 26-ft. open models; dependable worm-and-pinion, rod-to-rudder steering; ventilated bilge; fuel tank vented overboard; water-cooled copper exhaust pipe, all models — to name a few.

A wide selection of optional equipment — ventilating or nonventilating windshields (open models), folding canvas or permanent tops, and other desirable equipment . . . plus a choice of attractive hull colors — let you outfit your new Sea Skiff to your individual boating purposes.

Compare new Chris-Craft Sea Skiffs with any other boat of its type, and you'll see why Chris-Craft is a better round-bilge lapstrake boat than any other built!

See your Chris-Craft Sea Skiff dealer today. Place your order now for a husky, rugged Sea Skiff!

respondence School. It carried the success story of a graduate, Oliver E. Barthel, a consulting engineer of Detroit. According to the advertisement, Mr. Barthel had engaged in a number of interesting technical pursuits including work with Henry Ford . . . and work in developing an early outboard motor.

Fig. 6. The first production Evinrude

A query addressed to Mr. Barthel brought a reply which indicated that the early outboard motor referred to in "Time" was indeed the Waterman, and Mr. Barthel most kindly made available information and photographs of the machine. The very first Waterman was assembled in 1905 from a Curtis motorcycle engine. As can be seen in Fig. 2, it was fitted with a chain drive and one can imagine the shower of water it must have thrown up! Waterman applied for a patent on this outboard on Dec. 6, 1905 and it was granted April 23, 1907. The patent number was 851,389.

Early in 1906 Waterman engaged Oliver E. Barthel to refine the motor and develop it to the production stage. This resulted in the water-cooled model shown in Fig. 3. The propeller was driven by exposed bevel gears which were lubricated by the water. This was a perfectly logical arrangement for water is a good lubricant and we use it even today for the stern bearings of our motorboats. Of course sand and debris would be a problem, but at this early stage there were far more important mechanical points to be concerned with. By the spring of 1906 an air-cooled cylinder had been substituted at Mr. Waterman's preference. Twenty-five of these engines were made, the firm being located in Detroit.

In 1907 Waterman went back to water cooling and in addition twin enclosed flywheels were used in place of the earlier exposed one. Quite probably this change was in the interest of vibration control . . . still a major concern of the outboard designer! As a study of Fig. 8 will make clear, the weight of the single exposed flywheel is several inches removed from the cylinder's centerline and it is easy to imagine the gyroscopic forces of the heavy flywheel fighting against the reciprocating vibration of the piston and connecting rod. The 1907 motor (Fig. 4) had two internal flywheels, one on each side of the cylinder centerline and the pair of them formed the crankshaft via the connecting crankpin. Their combined weight was thus symmetrically disposed to both sides of the cylinder and the tendency to build up a rocking vibration must have been reduced. This twin-flywheel layout is widely used even today in many single cylinder European motorcycle engines. Three thousand Watermans were built in 1907.

Production continued and a 1909 advertisement which appeared in "National Sportsman" is shown in Fig. 5. Even at that early date the chief customer was assumed to be the fisherman! By 1915 the Waterman had been developed to the point where it was fitted with a reversible propeller and a removable power head which could be used for stationary power around the camp or farm. By the end of that year over 30,000 of the outboards had been sold. In 1917 manufacturing rights were sold to the Arrow Motor and Marine Co., of New York, and production of "Waterman Porto" outboards was continued until 1921. The Arrow people went out of business in 1924.

Meanwhile, a young man named Ole Evinrude, the son of Norwegian immigrants, had been growing up on a farm in Dane County, Wis. He did his farm chores as a good son should, but it was hard for him to repress a very strong inclination toward mechanical things. At the age of 16 he decided to go to the big city—meaning Madison—and take a job in a machine shop. He went to work in the farm implement shop of Fuller & Johnson at 50¢ a day. Quickly learning all he could from the machinists, he moved along to other places, ever in search of new knowledge. He worked in the Pittsburgh steel mills and Chicago machine shops, learning all he could from his daily work and evenings spent studying mathematics.

A very competent machinist and patternmaker, he eventually settled in Milwaukee and became a consultant to the E. P. Allis Co. Spare time experimenting with the then-new gasoline engine led to his building himself a four-cylinder, air-cooled car which he used for his own transportation. This in turn led to the establishment of the firm of Clemick & Evinrude, the goal of which was to pioneer in the manufacture of a standardized engine for the many small, inexperienced automobile builders springing up all over the country.

The venture prospered, although some of its work was not connected with auto engines. To pursue his interest in a standardized engine, Evinrude terminated his partnership in Clemick & Evinrude and established the Motor Car Power Equipment Co. He had little success in spite of much hard work and when the business failed he went back to patternmaking in a small shop near

Bess Evinrude, as she became known in the trade, must go credit for recognizing the economic importance of this new type of transportation.

The volume of replies resulting from initial advertisements soon indicated that the pattern shop would not be able to cope with the amount of business this new motor was bringing in. While Ole ran the shop, Mrs. Evinrude managed selling and the office. There was need for capital and, after several unsuccessful attempts, she obtained the financial assistance of a friend, C. J. Meyer, who invested $5000 and became a partner in "The Evinrude Detachable Rowboat Motor Co."

Evinrude prospered from 1911 to 1914. After Mrs. Evinrude launched an extensive advertising campaign in 1911, new and larger plant facilities had to be secured. These were obtained on Walker Street in Milwaukee. Here Ole designed and built the machinery needed to produce the motors. When Bess' health began to fail — she had never been too well the Evinrudes sold their interest in the company to Mr. Meyer in 1914 with the understanding that Ole would not re-enter the outboard business for at least five years. Between that time and 1921, when they brought out the Elito motor, they spent much of their time in travelling and boating.

The Waterman and Evinrude motors were the only outboards produced until about 1913, when there appeared the Caille, the Ferro, the Motorow and a few others. The idea of a portable motor for small boats was catching on and others were entering the field. By this time reasonable mechanical dependability had been achieved, for the advertising began to show women and children operating the motors, even as it does in these modern times. Their heavy bronze and iron construction made them intrinsically durable but, to be truthful, starting required some skill at manipulating the controls, and vibration was severe what with single cylinders, unbalanced crankshafts and heavy moving parts. Mufflers were rudimentary and the "bang-bang-bang" of an oldtime outboard is a familiar memory to many an older boatman. Yet, these motors filled a real need and sold well because they met the public demand for economical, convenient small-boat power.

Mechanical features of these motors are interesting. With but few exceptions they were similar in appearance, which must be regarded as evidence that the Evinrude was being taken as the model. Of course, in this early developmental stage there were some novelties. The typical power head was made of cast iron and much resembled the numerous small inboard engines of that time . . . bulky and heavy. Some had battery ignition systems, which provided a hot spark for starting, while others had an ordinary magneto bolted on in some convenient location. The flywheel was merely a spanning weight at first and the idea of building a magneto into it did not come until later.

Steering was accomplished in three general ways, two of which reflect the necessity of insulating the steering handle from the strong torque vibration. (1) The whole motor pivoted as per modern practice. (2) The power head was held rigid and the drive shaft and underwater unit were arranged to pivot. (3) The whole motor was rigid and a steering rudder was fitted.

Starting was usually accomplished by means of a hand knob on the flywheel — origin of the old nickname "knuckle buster." Naturally it was harder to spin a motor fast with a knob mounted at the rim of a large flywheel than with a rope wrapped around a pulley of less diameter mounted on the hub, which meant a weaker spark from the slow-turning magneto. Even today the secret of getting quick, reliable starts out of one's motor is to put enough zip into the starting cord to give the flywheel enough speed to develop a really hot spark.

Early water pumps were of the plunger type, which had been used for years on the old inboards and was the

The Idea of a Portable Power Plant is As Old As the Gasoline Engine Itself

By BOB WHITTIER

Fig. 1. The American was manufactured in 1896

TODAY outboard motors are so common that few of us, on seeing one, are ever prompted to wonder its where and when the idea originated. Some inventions, such as the airplane, the telephone and the steamship, have had their histories written in exhaustive detail—but have you ever tried to find out who invented the steamshovel, the welding torch or the fluorescent light? Historians are a strange lot; they've eulogized some things and ignored others which serve equally important needs in our complex modern civilization. Outboard motor history is one of the things which have, for the most part, been ignored. To be sure, an article has appeared here, or a chapter in a book has appeared there . . . but the whole interesting tale does not seem to have been put in front of the boating public. This series of articles will try to fill the void.

You may be quite surprised at how far back the outboard idea goes. The idea of having a portable power plant which could readily be attached to any small utility boat is certainly as old as the gasoline engine itself and quite probably even older, for we have records of pedal driven contrivances dating back to 1864 and of an outboard steam engine which appeared in Europe before 1900.

Thus it is not really so startling to learn that a real gasoline outboard motor was manufactured in this country as far back as 1896! Called the "American," it was produced by the American Motor Co., of Long Island, New York. It is shown in Fig. 1 and, as is clearly evident, its basic layout bears a remarkable resemblance to modern practice. It had "gear shift" in the form of a variable pitch propeller and even boasted a remote fuel tank! Not only was the latter carried inside the boat but the carburetor appears to have been attached to it and the engine's intake suction drew vaporized fuel to the cylinder through a flexible tube. By this stroke of genius the need for a special miniature pump to transfer liquid fuel from tank to pump was done away with.

The American was a four-cylinder, air-cooled motor rated at one and two horsepower, apparently being built to burn either kerosene or gasoline at the buyer's option. It turned up from 400 to 600 revolutions a minute and was claimed to be able to propel a 12- to 18-foot rowboat at six to eight miles an hour. The problem of vibration, which has always plagued single-cylinder outboards, was very neatly taken care of by clamping the crankcase directly to the boat and arranging the underwater unit to turn port and starboard via a sector gear and steering handle. As you can see by studying Fig. 1, power impulses would be transferred to the boat's transom instead of directly to the operator's hand and quite evidently the operator felt little or no reaction in the handle. About 25 of these motors were built, which for those very early days should be enough to qualify it as a "production motor."

There also exists evidence that a large, clumsy outboard was built in Germany around 1900, and between 1902 and 1904 in France there was a "Motogodille" outboard.

What was destined to become the first outboard motor accepted by the American public was originated in 1905 by Cameron B. Waterman. The story of the Waterman outboards might be obscure today if it were not for the coincidence that the author of this series happened to be looking for outboard historical data for his "The Outboard Motor and Boat Book" in 1948. He had encountered the "Waterman" name a few times in his research work but had been unable to locate any information on the firm or its motor. While leafing through a current copy of "Time" magazine his attention was attracted by an advertisement of the International Cor-

Milwaukee's Kinnickinnick River.

There had been a girl at Clemick & Evinrude who came in after school to take care of the firm's bookkeeping. She was Bess Cary, a very small girl with bright blue eyes and a mind of her own. An orphan, she was struggling to support six brothers and sisters and knew what it was like to have an uphill fight. It was obvious to everybody before long that she and Ole had fallen in love, although big Ole was terribly shy about it. When he was struggling along with Motor Car, it took him weeks to get up enough courage to ask her to handle the books for him. When Motor Car failed, Ole buried himself in pattern-making and waited patiently until such time as he had saved some money, before popping the big question. They were married privately because Ole just couldn't bear the thought of an elaborate wedding in front of a lot of people.

One hot August weekend in 1908, shortly before Ole proposed to Bess, they went on a picnic with some friends on an island in one of the many lakes near Milwaukee. As it turned out, this has become the most famous incident in outboard history. It started Ole thinking about a detestable motor which could be clamped to any small boat. They had rowed out to the island and there Bess remarked that she wished she could have some ice cream. Quite probably this was just a woman's indirect way of commenting upon the heat—but the shy and sincere Ole took it literally and forthwith rowed some two miles to shore to buy it. The row back was against the wind and as he strained over the oars Ole began to get mad. It wasn't that he minded rowing much, but Bess' ice cream was melting! The following Monday morning Ole went back to his pattern shop and took out his drafting equipment.

Here's how Bess Cary's brother Russ described the result:

"I was Ole's apprentice boy in the shop. Ole did pattern work in exchange for material for his motor. When it was done, Bess said it looked like a coffee grinder. Ole and I took the motor down to the Kinnickinnick River at the foot of National Avenue. Never will forget it. We rented an old tub for 50 cents. That was real money. We clamped on the motor and started 'er up. It was in April, 1909. The big coal boats were outfitting for the season. We passed a half dozen of them tied up at the docks. The crews came running down to look at us. They waved and yelled, but we couldn't hear them. They'd look over the side at us going by as though they couldn't believe what they saw. They'd wave, and when Ole'd open 'er up, they'd wave harder. Couldn't hear a word they said. Those deck hands were all for us."

Ole was elated. His engine worked, and pushed a rowboat along at all of five miles an hour! The mechanical genius had done his part and now the business wizard, in the form of Bess, took over. "Now that you've got it, what are you going to do with it?" she asked. Ole really didn't know.

Bess suggested he make a better one, which he did. It looked better and started easier. A friend borrowed it for a fishing trip and to everybody's surprise brought back orders for 10 motors! Ole built them himself. They were single cylinder, two-port, two-cycle engines having battery ignition and developing 1½ hp. at about 1000 r.p.m. Their weight was 85 pounds and they sold for $82. More orders came in and before the first 25 motors had been built and sold Bess Evinrude wrote her now famous advertisement in a Milwaukee paper which boldly states, "Don't row! Throw the oars away! Use an Evinrude Motor." Fig. 6 shows the first production Evinrude. Fig. 7 shows a typical Evinrude advertisement which appeared in the July, 1910, issue of the old "National Sportsman" magazine.

Mrs. Evinrude was the guiding light behind the marketing of Evinrude and the later Elto outboards until she retired from business in 1928. The team of Ole and Bess has often and justifiably been described as the perfect business team, he the mechanical genius, she the marketing expert. To Ole Evinrude, although not the originator of the outboard motor, must go credit for producing the first commercially and mechanically successful outboard motor, and to his creative genius a large proportion of major outboard improvements owe their origin. And to intentional reversing impossible; we get reverse today via gears.

Not to be outdone, Cattle offered a controllable-pitch propeller which gave a "Five-Speed" motor, including neutral and reverse. Some idea of outboard progress may be gained from the fact that a Koban, Figs. 9 and 10, powered an 800-mile ocean trip from Seattle to Ketchikan, Alaska.

The Streinger, Fig. 11, looked like an ordinary inboard engine clamped to the transom and fitted with a shaft driving direct to the propeller some four feet behind the boat. The claims were made that it had the mechanical simplicity which gear-drive motors lacked, that it could operate in very shallow water by reason of the propeller pivoting upwards, and that it was safer in case of striking a submerged object since the propeller would rise over it. This had some validity because until the Federal, of 1915, none of the old motors had the common tilt arrangement we have today. However, it must certainly have been awkward to handle.

Magazine advertisements of this period tell a revealing story. The Aerothrust and Airdrive types reflected the fact that fishermen were, even in those days, the biggest market. The manufacturers of these designs claimed with some justification that these motors could reach the tough spots. Few advertisements appeared in the winter and many appeared in the spring and summer. Aerothrust capitalized on this by pointing out that its motor could be used on an iceboat in the winter and showed photographs of such a rig doing an alleged 50 m.p.h.!

The early single cylinder jobs vibrated badly, and in 1914 this problem was attacked in the form of such opposed twins as the Koban, and then the Federal and Arrow. Of course, we realize now that the reciprocating vibration of the single was the only thing eliminated, the opposed twins still had torque vibration, or the reaction produced by each power stroke. It wasn't until the much later alternate-firing twins came along that a really happy compromise between torque and reciprocating vibration was achieved. The Federal was the first motor to have a mounting bracket so designed as to allow the underwater unit to tilt when backing or encountering an obstruction, which fact was heavily stressed by the manufacturer. You didn't beach an inboard so it took all this time for somebody to consider that it might be advantageous to beach an outboard!

Above-water exhausts, which may have been necessary to reduce back pressure in the interest of easy starting, gradually gave way to the underwater type as is shown on the Arrow, Fig. 12. Battery and separate magneto ignition gave way to built-in flywheel magnetos.

Tilting began to be a standard feature, rope starting entered the picture, and with but few exceptions steering narrowed down to the present method of swivelling the entire motor. Thus by 1918 the outboard had passed through its experimental stage and had been developed to a point of standardization insofar as basic adaptation to its function is concerned.

YACHTING'S WASHINGTON REPORT

public funds in providing movable span highway bridges."

When the proposal came up last year, Weeks suggested that the bill be the subject of joint hearings by two House committees: Public Works and Interstate and Foreign Commerce. It is assumed such an approach will be proposed again. Interested boating groups will be given advance notice of the hearings.

ONE suggestion under study at Coast Guard headquarters in connection with whether yacht club tenders must undergo periodic hull inspection is to exempt such boats if they carry under 50 passengers. This should not be too much of a handicap on yacht clubs and, in fact, might be welcomed by club stewards at Race Week time. This and natural choice. Its heavy reciprocating piston was no disadvantage at the low speeds turned up in those days. Usually the plunger was a bronze piston running off a cam on the propeller shaft. Being underwater, the unit was self-priming and this, together with its positive displacement, made it ideal for these slow motors. However, the piston was subject to wear in sandy and muddy waters and this is one reason why it was eventually given up.

Casoline was carried in a squarish tank and fed into a cast iron or bronze carburetor. One of the nice things about those awkward old tanks was that they'd hold the motor securely while it was in the back of a car! No tipping and rocking.

Pistons were invariably of cast iron and had one, or at the most two, rings. The connecting rods were often of solid bronze, which was an economical way of getting a good bearing material without complex machining operations. We should repress our temptation to laugh at these old timers, for they were perfectly logical, sensible designs for the materials and manufacturing techniques of their day. It may come as a shock to you to learn that some of the "stick and wire" fighting planes of World War One had higher strength factors than do some of our very lightly built, high-speed cross-country executive airplanes, which will lose their wings if flown acrobatically.¹

The year 1914 brought a flurry of new makes as the popularity of outboards grew. On looking through copies of sports and boating magazines of that time the author notes many names: Federal, Sweet, Jovomotor, Waterman Porto, Lockwood-Ash, Koban, Wisconsin, Northwestern, Evinrude, American, Caille, Aerothrust, Admiral, Detroit, Spinaway, Motorgo, Grav Gearless, Wright, and others. They ranged from 1½ to 4 hp. and sold for from $38 to $80. As there was no official outboard horsepower rating system in effect at that time, these horsepower ratings were based on the manufacturer's own estimates. They had around 10 cubic inches displacement and turned at approximately 800 to 1000 r.p.m.

Experimentation was common. Take the Aerothrust for example. It bolted onto the transom just like an ordinary outboard but instead drove an air propeller as in Fig. 8, just like modern swamp ghiders and the recently introduced airdrive outboards. There is nothing new under the sun! Evinrude claimed "full reverse," which was accomplished by making the motor run backwards. Two-cycle motors will run in either direction, and it was common practice on the old inboards. With battery ignition it was simply a matter of setting the spark lever just so. But it could be dangerous for an outboard to accidentally start running the wrong way, so modern magnetics have built-in timing which makes both accidental and than any other bottom paint—bar none!

Never Before Has Any Paint Manufacturer Dared Make Such An Offer! You Make the Test, You Judge The Results—And Next Time, You, Too, Will Paint With "Vinylast" Anti-Fouling Racing Finish!

1. Simply mail coupon below, and we'll send you, without cost, a small panel painted with "Vinylast."

2. Fasten the "Vinylast" panel underwater to your hull, keel, rudder, or any other submerged surface.

3. At next haul-out, compare the condition of the "Vinylast" panel with the surrounding area. You'll see for yourself that "Vinylast" stops fouling better than other anti-fouling compositions, regardless of cost.

WHY THIS OUTSTANDING PERFORMANCE? Every anti-fouling paint releases a toxicant to repel attachment of barnacles and other fouling marine organisms. The best of these toxicants is copper oxide and, thanks to a special Woolsey-developed plastic resin vehicle, "Vinylast" is able to hold 400% more copper oxide than ordinary anti-fouling paints. The result is season-long protection against fouling and borers—increased speed and RPM and decreased fuel costs due to lessened hull friction. "Vinylast" is excellent for all types of boat bottoms—wood, fiberglass, plywood and metal.

If you haven't already discovered "Vinylast's" superiority, make the panel test and see for yourself what you're missing!

them. Examine them one by one, in an objective light.

Nothing is more maddening to a customer than the frustration of being unable to "find" a salesperson to take his purchase when he is in a hurry to complete the transaction and leave the store. And when he does find one, he may be in competition with several other customers for that salesperson's attention. He may give up in despair, or he may wait it out, make his purchase, and resolve never to return to that department. In contrast, self-service enables the customer to select his purchase, check out, and be on his way.

Another customer irritant is the "May I help you?" inflicted upon him when he isn't ready to buy anything yet. The familiar defensive reply, "No, I'm just looking around," indicates the extent of this irritation. Yet it is often hard to tell whether a customer wants service or not, in a clerk-service department, because many times he will continue looking at displays and so forth, while waiting for a salesperson. He does this because he expects to be approached by a salesclerk. On the other hand, in a self-service department, it is very easy to see whether or not a customer wants service. If he does, he will invariably look around for a salesperson; if not, he will simply continue doing his own shopping. And when the salesperson approaches, he politely asks, "Did you find what you were looking for?"—an offer of service, not a demand to buy.

As for fast personal service, it is nonexistent in a clerk-serve department during peak periods. There are just too many people to be served.

A self-service system provides all these facilities which modern shoppers like: speed, ability to browse, courtesy, fast service, ability to shop further after purchase.

Everyone has to "see" a salesperson, if he wants to make a purchase. This includes even those who have selected their purchases or know exactly what they want—because a salesclerk still has to take the merchandise and the money, ring up the sale, make change and wrap the purchase. Not so in the self-service department. The fact that most people wait on themselves leaves salespeople free to render fast personal service to customers buying hard-to-choose items.

Absolute courtesy is next to impossible during rush periods in a "full service" department. So many people are pressing for attention that salesclerks must on occasion be abrupt, in order to take care of as many customers as possible. The salesperson in a self-service department can take much more time with each customer. First, he has fewer people to serve. Second, check-out relieves the salesperson of the details of writing up the sale, adding up the items, computing taxes, recording the sale, wrapping the merchandise and making change—even for the customers he serves. He has time to do his primary job of selling and rendering service.

Can the "full service" customer actually shop after making a purchase? When the salesclerk says "Will that be all?" he is in effect saying "Buy something else now or leave." So the customer leaves. With self-service, the salesperson, after helping a customer, courteously turns him back to the merchandise by saying "Look around; there may be something else you need!"

Volume Increased; Expenses Lowered

Of the 39 stores reporting to our Market Research staff on their self-service toy operations, 15 commented on "before and after" volume. Fourteen of these 15 stores reported volume increases; the 15th reported "volume the same," but with "lower sales expense."

Eight of the stores provided actual percentage figures on volume increases:

7%
8%
10% 15% 25%

The store with 200% increase provides an outstanding example of successful self-service. No halfway measures here! Store officials reported changing to "a whole new concept of self-service selling."

Twenty-four stores commented on "before and after" expenses. Every one of them reported a decrease in operating or selling expense. Ten gave specific expense reductions:

HIGH-PRICED items, or those requiring personal service, may still be sold from behind enclosures within the self-service area.

bags the merchandise in a large canvas drawstring bag; from time to time these bags are taken by a porter to central wrap.

Charge Sales

On charge-takes, the itemized cash register receipt (Figure 3) is imprinted with the customer's charge plate and stamped "Chg Toys" (to distinguish it positively from a cash sale). The customer signs the large upper part of the receipt, which is then placed in a locked box for the store's accounting record. The lower part or stub is bagged with the merchandise and acts as the customer's receipt.

Charge authorization is obtained, when necessary, through use of a telephone located at each check-stand.

Charge-sends are processed in identically the same manner, except that a send label like the one shown in Figure 2 is also prepared.

C.O.D.'s—Layaways

C.O.D.'s and layaways are a very minor part of toy department volume in this store. They are handled in a conventional manner with a handwritten salescheck at the check-out counter, then recorded on the cash register.

Register receipt plans like this one may be varied in several ways to suit the store's individual needs. The register receipt may be used as a send label (main portion) and customer's receipt (stub), a simplified salescheck also being written at the time of sale. C.O.D.'s and layaways may be put through in the same simple manner as a charge sale, with preprinted C.O.D. and layaway cards being validated by the register.

Misunderstanding the Purpose of Self-Service

The term "self-service" should not be taken so literally that management attempts to function with too few salespersons. It is not the purpose of self-service to cut down the regular sales staff, but to sell more and give better service with the same number of "regulars" and to reduce peak period personnel. When the regular staff is reduced, personal service suffers and the over-all results are disappointing.

Under-serving Customers

Salespeople, unaccustomed to a self-service operation, may tend to ignore the shopper until service is demanded.

SOME STORE COMMENTS

ON SELF-SERVICE TOY DEPARTMENTS

Ohio

"Our average sale is up 49% because our experienced salespeople are not tied up with cheaper items. Self-service releases them to work on big-ticket sales. We also handle more customers. Our transactions per square foot of selling space are up 60% after converting to self-service."

Massachusetts

"Our cost of selling is lower because of higher impulse sales. We handle peaks with one-third fewer people. Customers buy wider varieties under self-service. With clerk-service, salespeople tell only what they like to sell."

New Jersey

"One-third fewer salespersons makes it less expensive for us. Yet customers get faster service . . . turnover is quicker. Recording sales and bagging at check-out counter is more efficient than our old method."

Illinois

"There are at least four reasons why self-service has increased our volume. Customers buy more on impulse . . . our clerks now concentrate on big-ticket items . . . customer turnover (and parking space turnover) is faster . . . Walk-out dollars are captured."

Indiana

"Customers voluntarily buy more because they are exposed to merchandise on open display. Self-service gives us a very high rate of customer turnover."

Massachusetts

"Our volume is up 25% in a reduced selling area. Customers buy more because of a greater degree of exposure to merchandise. We handle more customers with less expense. Extras need less training."

New York

"We do more volume with 25% less sales help at peak periods. Self-service reduces time of each sale by eliminating non-essential details."

West Virginia

"We handle 20% more customers during our Christmas season with one-third fewer salespeople. Our average sale is up 16% since changing to check-out."

Illinois

"We couldn't employ enough salespeople to move the merchandise that the customers buy by themselves. With self-service, we "employ" customers to act as salespeople. Customers get faster service. We get higher volume . . . at lower expense dollar."

California

"We've cut operating costs 12% . . . lowered stock shortages. Self-service still enables us to give personal service on wheeled goods, trains, dolls, and so on."

Our Market Research team has actually heard the question "Say, how do you get waited on here?" several times during their visits to self-service departments. Store officials, also hearing this query, arrive at the conclusion that "personal service suffers in the self-service department."

This problem is, of course, a matter of training. Salespeople should be fully acquainted with the meaning and principles of self-service before operations actually begin.

The Store's Viewpoint

Self-service with check-out will not, of course, immediately bring more customers into the store. It is a tool designed primarily to sell more and give better service to customers who do come in, particularly during rush periods. Customers will always buy more on impulse, when they can shop without disturbance—when they can select one item and then go on shopping for as long or as short a time as they like. The customer is his own best salesperson; he knows his wants and needs better than anyone else.

If a department store has lost most of its toy business, self-service alone will not magically bring it back. But the department store with heavy seasonal toy traffic can do much to hold that traffic by means of self-service and check-out. A store interested in regaining a substantial share of the toy market will combine the self-service principle with dynamic advertising and sales promotion to reestablish itself as a leading toy center in its trading area.

Shoplifting

Fourteen of the department stores surveyed commented on over-all stock shortages (including shoplifting). Four said that shortages were lower, five that they were higher, and five that there was no change. None felt that shoplifting was a very serious problem. Several department store officials mentioned that before converting to self-service, shoplifting had been one of their greatest concerns about the new system. After switching over, though, most of their misgivings were found to be unwarranted. They have long since ceased to worry about pilferage as a major source of loss.

However, certain precautions should be taken. Displays should be kept below eye-level at their highest point. Samples may be kept on fairly high shelves, out of the reach of small children. With only pre-packaged merchandise below, shoplifting is discouraged. Some stores used glassed-in samples to prevent pilferage and soilage, and also to prevent the shopper from trying to buy the sample itself rather than the packaged stock underneath. But glass defeats to some extent the purpose of self-service; shoppers want to handle toys as well as see them.

Dolls, trains and equipment, and other items requiring selling or explanation may be sold only from behind counters and showcases. It may even be desirable to collect for or write up such items at the point of sale. The merchandise could be wrapped by the salesperson and a slip provided for the customer to show later at the check-out counter. But this point of service should definitely be within the self-service area, not outside it.

Small but valuable items may be placed in a large hard-to-conceal bag, with the price marked on the outside. The bag may be stapled shut by the salesperson, to prevent any temptation to drop additional items into it.

Check-out counters should be located at the exit or exits of the department. This provides a real deterrent for would-be shoplifters. In a clerk-service department, once the item is pocketed the shoplifter's "work" is done. But in a self-service department the shoplifter must still pass through a check-out lane and "stand inspection."

Self-service

IN THE TOY DEPARTMENT

By JOHN M. WILSON, Vice-President, Sales, The National Cash Register Company

"As time goes on, self-service is almost certain to become the accepted method of merchandising toys. There are problems of packaging, layout and sales training, but none of them is so difficult that it cannot be overcome. Self-service offers the one satisfactory answer to the need for increased volume and reduced overhead in this, as in so many other, retail selling operations."

ACCORDING to the latest figures released by the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration, the 1955 average department store operating profit before taxes was 2.75% of net sales, as compared with 5.3% in 1947. Expenses were 33.55% of net sales as against 30.1% in 1947. A gradual build-up in expenses and let-down in profit has taken place over the last decade. The trend does not appear to be halted.

U. S. Department of Commerce tables indicate that, in line with a 282.7% jump in disposable personal income since 1939, retail business as a whole has climbed 341.2% in the last 16 years. Department store sales, including mail order, have increased by 207.3%. The department store share of business, even in directly competitive markets, has declined by more than 10% since 1939.

These figures are available to anyone; they are given here as a matter of review. It is not our purpose to delineate the reasons behind this profit squeeze, but simply to recognize that it does, in fact, exist.

Self-Service Can Help

What is the answer? Would we say that immediate conversion of all departments to self-service will straightway solve all problems? Is this the "magic formula", the panacea for all ills?

Assuredly not. But it will help, in certain spots. Self-service is a great deal more than a "gimmick" or a "method of selling groceries". It is a fundamental concept of merchandising, used in food, drug, hardware and variety stores; book shops, liquor stores, hobby and toy centers; gift shops, feed stores, nurseries, garden supply and general merchandise stores. Self-service enjoys the universal acceptance of the shopping public.

There are many latent possibilities for cashing in on the self-service principle in department stores. The surface has scarcely been scratched. Wherever self-service has been successfully installed, costs have dropped, profits have risen. The results are often spectacular. Is it not then advisable to at least try out self-service in one department, and measure the results?

Why the Toy Department?

The most important benefits of self-service are realized during peak periods. Under a clerk-service operation, the greater the rush of customers, the poorer the service. A salesperson can properly "wait on" only one customer at a time. Even though the peak period sales staff be greatly increased,

JOHN M. WILSON

Self-service in the toy department

Display Fixtures

A huge variety of wall fixtures and gondolas may be used; this is largely a matter of taste. Our Market Research survey disclosed that wall shelving ranged from 55" to 72" in height, with an average of 60". Bottom wall shelves were as wide as 30"; top shelves did not exceed 18". Gondolas were 36" to 60" high, with an average of 50". Average width at base was 42"; average length, six feet. Width of sales aisles ranged from three to seven feet, average width five feet.

Signs for Self-Service

Various merchandise sections should be marked with large, easy-to-read signs, located well above the top level of merchandise. All should be of the same color and style and hung at the same eye level. Names should be in the customer's language: "Bikes-Wagons" (rather than "Wheeled Goods"), "Ages 1 to 5" (rather than "Pre-school"), and so on.

Signs encouraging self-service should be located throughout the department. Check-out counter locations must be clearly designated. Salespeople, who act in a sense as "traveling information booths," should wear smocks or badges to identify themselves.

One store handed a printed toy department directory to each customer as he entered; this made it easy to find desired items, and was very successful in building up sales volume per customer. Shoppers also used the directory as a reminder or shopping list.

Layout Principles

The most important point about self-service layout is that the entire toy department, including clerk-service sections, should be within the self-service area. A division of clerk-service and self-service areas is confusing to customers; they find it difficult and discouraging to shop in a split department. The split department also results in duplication of work, requires more space and personnel, and slows customer turnover and dollar volume at peak periods. The fact that there is a mental division in the store executive's mind between the two types of service does not mean that there has to be a matching physical division in the department itself.

Any number of "in" entrances may be provided, but possibly only one or two exits, at which a series of check-out counters should be located. The check-out counters should be positioned beyond the last item of toy merchandise, so that the customer is completely finished shopping when he reaches that point.

Check-out Counter

Central cashiering systems with "check-out" areas located near the center of the department have five basic weaknesses: (1) After buying, a customer may see another item he would like to buy; but having waited once to have his purchase recorded, he will often pass up buying additional impulse items because of the time and effort involved in getting them recorded. (2) Customers who do buy in a piecemeal fashion, having one or two items recorded at a time, add to congestion and require duplication of store labor. (3) It is difficult to handle customers in turn at a central cashier desk: the most insistent often get served first at the expense of others. (4) The bustle and confusion of recording and wrapping purchases is in the center of the department; shopping traffic is therefore distracted. (5) Almost all control is lost over out-bound traffic; shoplifting losses may be heavy.

It is a good idea to group clerk-service areas around the edge of the wall, to take advantage of wall space. As in the conventional set-up, salespersons may be stationed in service aisles between showcases and wall cases.

If possible, check-out counters should be located near a stock room door. Each counter should have a wheeled stand or truck to facilitate movement of "send" merchandise away from the busy check-out area.

SEND LABEL is filled in by cashier. In all cases, the name "Stone's" is fictitious as used here.

ITEMIZED RECEIPT for cash-take sale (left) also serves for charge-takes as cash register receipt (right) is imprinted with customer's charge plate and stamped "CHG Toys." Charge-sends also get send label (see below).

In most of the stores surveyed by our Market Research Department, separate check-out lanes are designated for charges and sends. Cash-send, charge-take and charge-send customers are required to go through the charge and send lanes, where saleschecks are written up in accordance with normal store procedure.

However, as one retailer expressed it, "You can't make money faster than you can take money." There are faster ways of handling charges than with the standard hand-written sales slip. A west coast department store, for instance, has streamlined its methods for all types of transactions at the toy department check-out counters. This store has found it profitable to sacrifice some traditional practices to get higher peak period volume.

Cash Sales

Cash-take sales are processed in the usual check-out manner, the customer receiving an itemized receipt for purchases (Figure 1). A sacker bags or wraps the merchandise. On cash-sends, the same receipt is issued and a send label certified on the cash register. The send label is filled in as shown in Figure 2, by the cashier. The sacker it cannot economically be increased enough to adequately serve all customers. People today, more than ever, like to move fast; many simply will not wait. Sales are lost, and some customers are permanently lost, even as expenses soar.

INDIVIDUALITY and attractiveness of display need not be lost in the self-service department.

Self-service allows customers to wait on themselves and to shop at their own will, rather than that of a salesperson. Most of them prefer to do exactly that. Salespeople are left free to render personal service to customers who want it. Again, this comes most sharply to light during peak periods.

Once each year the toy department suddenly expands from almost nothing into a major department of the store. Due to its intense November-December activity, the toy department has been the scene of the most extensive experiments with self-service. It makes an excellent testing ground.

The Market Research Department of our Company has just completed an extensive study of self-service methods in department store toy departments. Their findings are most illuminating.

How Many Customers Serve Themselves?

Fifteen of the 30 major department stores contributing to our survey reported as follows on the percentage of customers who serve themselves without aid from a salesperson:

Number of Stores	Percentage of Peak Period Self-Serving Customers
2	Under 50%
8	50 to 70%
5	Over 70%

Taking all stores as a group, an average of 60% of all peak period customers served themselves without personal assistance.

Let's see what this means in terms of customer service. Assume that a rush of 50 customers develops in a clerk-service toy department staffed with 25 salespeople. Clearly only 25 customers can be "waited on" at any one time, while the other 25 are left unattended.

But with a self-service, check-out system, 60% of the customers—that is, 30 of them—would serve themselves, pay, and leave, without ever talking to a salesperson. Even if 8 of the 25 salespeople were now employed at the check-out counters to handle self-service traffic at that point, 17 salespeople would still be on the selling floor to serve the remaining 20 customers.

Which store is giving better service? The one with 25 customers unattended or the one with 3 customers unattended?

To be even more realistic, we may suppose that each of the 50 customers in this clerk-service toy department wishes to buy three different items at three different service counters. The 50 customers now become 150 customers in terms of the number of transactions required.

Self-service would enable the 50 customers to select any number of items at any number of locations, with or without assistance from a salesperson, and still remain but 50 customers in terms of number of transactions required at the check-out counters.

The Customer's Viewpoint

The modern shopper likes these facilities above all else:

1. Speed. He wants to be able to "get in and out in a hurry" when he wants a known item and doesn't want to waste time.
2. Ability to "look around" without being disturbed, if that is his mood.
3. Fast personal service, when he wants it.
4. Courtesy from all salespeople, and the feeling that they appreciate his patronage.
5. Ability to shop further after making a purchase, if he sees fit to do so.

A clerk-service system provides none of these facilities.

A self-service system provides all of

ALL ITEMS are kept below eye level, as much as possible, so that a large area of the department may be seen at a glance. This photo, and those on preceding pages, courtesy the J. L. Hudson Company, Detroit.

Some salespeople may tie themselves up unnecessarily in trying to "wait on" self-serving customers. This has the effect of stifling buying impulses among self-serving customers. It also means that salespeople do not then have the time to attend to customers who do want personal service. Again, this is a matter of proper training.

Salespeople Burdened by Details

Management must make a definite split between the two parts of the sale, (1) the selection part and (2) the recording part. Salespeople should not be tied up with details at the expense of valuable selling time; they should perform no transaction-recording work that could just as well be handled at the check out counters. Their primary purpose is to sell and render service.

Toys & Novelties is indebted to John M. Wilson, vice-president sales, The National Cash Register Co., Dayton, Ohio, for permission to publish this article which is copyrighted. Reprints of "Self-Service in the Toy Department" may be obtained by writing the company or the Editor, Toys & Novelties, 111 Fourth ave., New York 3, N. Y.

GENEROUSLY-SPACED aisles are attractive to self-service customers. The entire toy department, including clerk-service sections, should be within the self-service area to avoid confusing the customers.

If it is necessary to have a by-pass lane through which non-buying shoppers can exit, this lane should be immediately adjacent to the check-out lanes, so that it is subject to the same visual supervision.

Buying and Packaging

Successful self-service toy department operators say that the science of self-service begins with proper buying. The over-all character and quality of the toy department need not be changed. Fine dolls, electric trains, wheeled goods and the like are retained. But new standards must be applied to toy items that are to be placed on open display for customer self-selection.

Self-service items must have a built-in self-selling ability. The article, or its package, must be attractive in color and design. It must answer, through a descriptive label or tag, all the questions the customer might ask, including the purpose of the toy and the age group for which it was designed.

Packaging, then, is of the greatest importance. The package must:

1. Attract. The package must be designed to enhance the beauty of the product itself; its purpose as a container is entirely secondary. The item and its package should be attractive from any angle, so that it may be displayed with equal effectiveness with sides or ends showing or in a display basket.

2. Reveal. Blind boxes do not assure quick identification, even though the name and actual picture of the item are on the box. If a customer wants a toy he sees as a sample on display, he will often open the box for positive identification, or to make sure all parts are there—destroying it partially in the process. If he happened to choose the wrong item, back goes the damaged box into stock, for other customers to shun. Complete visibility eliminates this problem.

3. Protect. Packages must be sturdy enough to protect their contents. Transparent films should be tough and pliable enough to defy exploring little fingers. Loose parts should be firmly attached to or contained in this package.

4. Explain. Does the package or the article itself answer every possible question the customer might have? If not, the article is not entirely suitable for self-service; steps should be taken to supply the complete, but brief story. Complicated assembly instructions should be omitted; a notation may explain that "complete instructions are inside."

5. Sell. Short sentences or single words giving advantages at a glance will help move the toy: "Teaches," "Sturdy," "Safe," "Develops the mind," and so forth.

The package must make the article easy for both store and customer to handle. Since shelf space is at a premium, the toy package should be as small as feasible. Compact sizes also make it easier for customers to pick up more items.

Shoppers like, and will pay for, convenience. If customers can find the article they want, know that it is undamaged and complete, and have their questions answered—all of which are functions of packaging—they are willing to pay for that convenience. The cost of the package may be included in the selling price. Whatever the method, and almost regardless of expense, great benefits from proper packaging will accrue to both the toy manufacturer and the toy retailer.

To cite one example, packing ordinary table salt in the tiny lunchbox or picnic size individual salt shakers increases the price of the salt from 7¢ to $1.12 a pound. But people like Today, most famous brand watches are smartly styled. How then, are you to judge a watch? You judge a watch by what you don't see! There are enormous differences in watch movements, and the quality of the movement is what determines the dependability of the watch.

LYCEUM specifications exceed the established standards for first quality movements.

LYCEUM is electronically timed in all three normal positions of wear. These are: dial up, stem down and "12" down. We call this "BALANCED TIME."

In order to correct the variations in rhythm caused by the altering of position, LYCEUM "balances" timing by compensation. The result—with LYCEUM "BALANCED TIME" you get extreme accuracy.

Lyceum
THE WATCH THAT TIME MADE FAMOUS

Balanced Time Watches

Let's look inside for the TIME OF YOUR LIFE!

1 JEWELS—THE FINEST HAND CALIBRATED SYNTHETIC RUBIES—Actually, jewels have no value as gems (all watch jewels are synthetic), but they have great value as bearings to reduce friction. If not of the finest quality, watches are better off without jewels! Lyceum jewels are of the finest quality, cut and polished with skilled accuracy, and fitted with precision. LYCEUM watches feature curvex jewels as bearings for those parts that revolve most.

2 POLISHED WHEELS FOR PRECISE TIMING—The whole train (watchmaker's term for all the wheels in the movement) is polished. There isn't a burr anywhere to interrupt the identical meshing of each cog on all wheels.

3 DUST-PROOF CROWN—Dust is a most frequent cause of inaccuracy as it affects the fine lubricating oils. It usually gets into the movement through the stem opening. The dust-proof LYCEUM crown tightly seals this opening.

4 RHODIUM-FINISH PLATES FOR LONGER WEAR—When metal becomes rough from corrosion, friction sets in. Rhodium-finish plates are guaranteed not to corrode.

5 INCARBOL SHOCK PROTECTION—50% of watch breakdowns are caused by damage to the balance assembly, which, directly controls the accuracy of your watch. This is the part of the watch which is most susceptible to the shock of daily jolts and jars—this is the part Incarbolic protects. The Lyceum Watch Company pioneered in the use of Incarbolic.

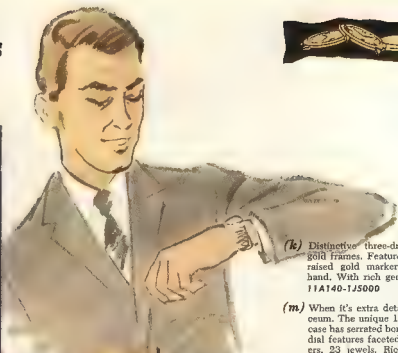

6 ANTI-MAGNETIC NIVROX HAIRSPRING—Its quality lies in the fineness of its metal, its perfect shape, and its precise adjustment. Nivrox hairsprings are unaffected by sudden changes in temperature. They coil and uncoil at exactly the same rate of speed in extreme cold as in extreme heat and are tarnish proof.

7 HIGHEST GRADE BERYLLIUM BALANCE WHEEL—This is the busiest wheel in your watch, turning alternately back and forth and traveling 3,552 miles every year. Because it is unaffected by variations in temperature and does not change its diameter, it provides extreme accuracy.

ONE-YEAR GUARANTEE—The LYCEUM guarantee fully covers all mechanical parts and adjustments—INCLUDING breakage of main spring.

For over thirty years, LYCEUM watches have set a standard of timekeeping excellence. Exclusively distributed by L. & C. Mayers, our prices have set a standard of value. Today's superb LYCEUMS are the ultimate result of years of engineering skills and research.

NEW star on the boating horizon

Commodore

There's 16' of beauty and dependability pre-engineered into this new Clickerbuilt from Cruisers. From her graceful flared bow to her broad beam, here it outboard boating at it's very best. This is the boat you've always wanted for versatility. Designed for single or twin outboards, the "Commodore" rides high and dry with speeds from 5 to 35 m.p.h. with a single motor. Use it for fishing, cruising, water skiing or what have you. You know it's the very best 'cause it's from CRUISERS—America's finest clickerbuilt outboard boat line. Other models in 14' - 16' - 17' and 18'. Write for literature on complete line.

Cruisers

borrow an idea from the Eskimos, who for centuries have been using partially inflated bags, made of seal bladders, as rollers to drag their heavy boats over the roughest kind of beaches. Airliners work on this principle.

The 20' boat is a much bigger boat than the 18' and can be fairly comfortable for four. It is still too small for an enclosed head but the forward part of the cabin can have a curtain or doors to close it off and the head can be mounted between the bunks. I know a lot of skippers who have built in enclosed "marvels" on their 20-footers will disagree with me but I have a term for their torture boxes; they are not really enclosed—they are compressed.

Trying to get full headroom in a 20-footer is also a little like reaching for the moon. Most 20-footers are planing hull types so that most of the boat is above the waterline. Approximately $7\frac{1}{2}'$ of total height is needed to get 6' of headroom and when you add 2" for the cabin top carlines it makes a total of 7'8", so what it adds up to is a dangerous amount of freeboard or a heavy cabin top. Considering that headroom is of very little real importance in a boat this size, it is much wiser practice to curb the headroom and have a safe, seaworthy hull.

Nonetheless the 20-footer is approaching the size of a real seagoing cruiser with a considerable number of big boat features. Designed for two with an occasional couple of weekend guests, the 20-footer can make the most of today's new idea of convertible canvas tops for cockpits which adds, in effect, another cabin to the boat while at anchor. Other features such as hanging lockers, built-in sink, icebox and increased storage space are possible.

I've shown some different arrangements which can be worked out on this size, but it should be remembered that certain features, if built in, take away space that might be sorely needed for other things.

As shown, a dinette can be built in, which, when not used for eating, can be converted into a double berth, but here is the catch—out goes some valuable storage space, the working part of the galley must be compressed and there will be a smaller cockpit. The smaller cockpit is the worst part of this crowding because most people while relaxing on a boat, prefer the cockpit during the day or while under way, which is a great portion of the time. However, it is up to the individual to analyze his own needs correctly, then to decide what arrangement suits him best.

The problems of stowage do not seem to be as great on the smaller boats because cruising on them is somewhat in the nature of camping out. Clothing is generally jeans and sweaters and changes of clothing can be kept in net hammocks.

The 20-footer, though, is on the borderline between camping out and cruising in style, especially for two people. Hanging lockers, if built in, should have at least 16" in depth and should be at least 40" high.

A folding table can be set up between the bunks and with a folding chair can seat four.

Altogether in the 20-footer there are a wide selection of arrangements which can be had and most stock cruiser manufacturers offer neat, well-thought-out interiors for their craft. Those skippers who want to alter their boat interiors to bring about something more modern would do well to study the new stock cruises. (To be continued)

DECORATIVE DINNERWARE

Nothing lends so much to the appeal of a meal on shipboard as a service of neatly nautical dinnerware. The T. G. Parsons Co., Box 215, Deposit, N. Y., specializes in supplying such ware decorated with the name of the boat, or club and private burgee. Inscriptions are usually in nautical blue with flags in colors. The ware is fired for permanent lasting colors.

Standard items which are decorated to order include coffee mugs, ash trays, plates in several sizes and bowls. A descriptive folder will be sent on request.

COME ABOARD AMERICA'S FAVORITE ... THE "42" Convertible SEDAN

The wide walk around side decks assure perfect safety for guests and children. Side decks are teak.

Plan A, shown, is one of five different interior arrangements to sleep six persons.

The new walk-around model provides more usable deck space with protecting side rails.

So many yachtsmen have chosen the "42" Convertible Sedan during the past four years that it has become, by far, the most popular model afloat.

You, too, will prefer its features. The snug deckhouse opens wide to join the aft cockpit for a 20-foot living and fishing space. Complete luxury for six—two toilets—hot water and shower if you like—and a host of other comforts.

All of this in the huskiest round-bottom hull built today is your assurance that you have chosen the finest stock cruiser you can own.

Four other models are also available:

"42" Martinique "42" Flying Bridge Double Cabin
"42" DeLuxe Sedan "42" Sport Fisherman

We'll gladly mail you a catalog on any model. Write today!

Feadship 70'

COTTON* This beautiful Feadship, recently built for Mr. & Mrs. William C. Langley of New York City and Westbury, joins the ever expanding fleet of FEADSHIPS cruising American and Caribbean waters. Mrs. Langley is Jane Pickens of radio and TV fame. The Cotton, built of steel, has teak superstructure, teak deck and teak fishing cockpit. The luxurious accommodations include; owner's oversized stateroom with private bath and shower, and an abundance of locker and storage space; spacious deck salon and partially enclosed aft deck; large galley and dinette plus crew quarters for three. Cotton, with a pair of GM 6-71 Diesels, cruises 15 M.P.H. Equipment includes Raytheon Fathometer, Bendix Automatic Pilot, Lead Direction Finder, R.C.A. Radar plus many other desirable features.

* Outlines about the name? It originates from Jane Pickens.

Feadship 65'

GLADYS II: Built for executive use by one of the large oil companies, this 65-foot FEADSHIP serves admirably well for conferences, business entertainment, transportation and inspection tours. Hull is steel, deck and superstructure are teak, interior is hand-somely finished in teak and mahogany. Accommodations include a double executive suite with private bath and shower, double guest stateroom with separate bath and shower, convertible dinette, large galley, and crew quarters for two. Equipment is similar to the FEADSHIP 70' except for radar. Powered with twin GM 6-71, the Gladys II is capable of 15 M.P.H.

they make your harvest sing

From fields of ripened grain, beans, sorghums and seed . . . crops pour into the bins of Allis-Chalmers combines at harvest time. When these modern harvesters move into the field, it's payday for hundreds of thousands of farmers.

These easier harvests are made possible by the combines shown on this page. Recognized for free-flowing capacity and crop-saving ability, they are used and trusted by more farmers than any other harvest machines.

For farms everywhere . . . no matter the size

. . . there's a time-saving, money-saving Allis-Chalmers combine for profitable harvesting of more than a hundred crops.

You can read satisfaction in the faces of your neighbors who combine their crops with Allis-Chalmers equipment. They are confident of smooth, steady performance . . . that makes their harvest sing!

Why not join them? This year!

Chateau Rose*

SOLID STERLING SILVER

The romantic beauty of yesteryear becomes the fashion of today. The revival of elegance in home decoration reaches back to the Regency and Louis XIV eras, with a touch of Victorian to add zest to the ensemble. "Chateau Rose" is a happy blending of the traditional beauty of these time-favored motifs. As they have lived in the past... "Chateau Rose" will live in the future, to become one of your cherished heirlooms of tomorrow. Substantial in weight throughout. Its beautiful highlights are softened to a silvery lustre by its smooth butler finish.

Southern Charm^{*}

SOLID STERLING SILVER

A smart, new contemporary design that brings together in harmony the time-honored decorative motifs of leaf, leaf and flowers from the earliest periods of decorative art... to lend their acknowledged beauty and enduring charm to this lovely pattern.

Its concaved surfaces beautifully reflect the highlights and shadows that gracefully dance amid reflections of soft lights from the lovely crystals and china that complete the table ensemble.

It is made in "service" weights... strong and durable, to insure a lifetime of use with pride and satisfaction to its owner. Soft, lustrous finish.

Prince Eugene*

SOLID STERLING SILVER

An authentic interpretation of the late 17th and early 18th century French Renaissance. A fashion created for the lavish use of Kings LOUIS XIII and LOUIS XIV and in high favor today as an ultimate in decorative beauty.

PRINCE EUGENE, for whom this exquisite pattern was named, was born in Paris in 1663, and spent much time in lovely Vienna, then the seat of continental culture. When Vienna was threatened by the Turks, it was PRINCE EUGENE of Savoy who was its defender—and his successes gained for him the everlasting gratitude of the people.

PRINCE EUGENE is a heavy-weight, complete open-stock pattern... furnished in beautiful soft Butler finish. All Blades are Mirror-Finish, Stainless Steel. Illustrated... Luncheon Knife and Fork, Teaspoon and Salad Fork... actual size.

French Scroll*

SOLID STERLING SILVER

A flourishing prelude to the styles of tomorrow

The fantasy of scrolls from the LOUIS XV and LOUIS XVI periods... richly and delicately moulded into a series of sweeping graceful curves, unbroken, yet carved to reflect beautifully the scintillating high lights created by its soft undulating surfaces... gives life to this lovely pattern.

Here, in ALVIN'S newest pattern in sterling... FRENCH SCROLL... is a style developed in keeping with the present-day demand for modernized sterling patterns from the classical period that prevailed during the reign of the Kings LOUIS, in the years 1700 to 1800. Soft Butler Finish.

The Boat of the Future — Today!

The AQUA-QUEEN

Lists for only $1995.00 f. o. b.

Yardley, Pa.

Meet the magnificent Aqua-Queen — speed, maneuverability and beauty in one trim, pleasure-packed, nautical package. Nowhere will you find more heat at such a low cost. Priced at $1995.00, the Aqua-Queen costs $1000.00 less than comparable inboards.

You get economy of performance, too. The sleek Aqua-Queen burns only 1½ gallons an hour at full throttle. Swift, tight turns at the touch of a finger and speeds between 35 and 40 m.p.h., make this speedster the sportsman's dream.

It is ruggedly constructed from the finest grade of African mahogany... engineered for perfect balance and safety. You'll thrill at the modern, two-toned exterior and the fully upholstered interior gets the Aqua-Queen in the luxury boat class.

regatta were the E service runabouts won by Harry Bickford, Hampton, Va., and the F service runabouts. Forest Johnson's Provler from Miami, Fla., won the latter title when driven by Howard Hibbert, also Miami.

The 266 c.i. hydros, capable of straightaway speeds up to 120 mph, showed a healthy 21 percent growth in the number of craft registered with 97 boats in competition. The national honors for this class went to William Ritter, Sr., Merion, Pa., whose Wa Wa Too, driven by Henry Lauterbach, Portsmouth, Va., won at New Martinsville, W. Va., Sept. 22-23.

The popular stock 136 c.i. hydros also held their title event at the same New Martinsville regatta with Skeeter Johnson driving Sidney Johnson's craft from Cambridge, Md., taking the top spot.

Mac Wiefelring, of Dayton, Ky., replaced Ray Smith of St. Louis, Mo., and Ralph Manning, Ashland, Ky., as national champion of the 225 c.i. hydro class when he won at Melbourne, Ky., on Sept. 15. That same week end Newport Beach, Cal., staged a regatta that was designated as the title event in three classes, 135 c.i. hydros, E racing runabouts and Cracker Boxes. Jack Salmon, Pico, Cal., driving Frank Neely's 135 from El Monte, Cal., took his class honors, replacing 1955 champ John S. Correa, Dos Palos, Cal. Ed Brown of Sacramento, Cal., won in the E racing runabouts while Carl Maginn, Glendale, Cal., took top honors in the Cracker Boxes. The first national inboard title event held last year was staged Feb. 15-16 in St. Petersburg, Fla., for the 91 c.i. hydros and the C racing runabouts. J. D. Smith, Cincinnati, O., triumphed in the 91s while William A. Selden, St. Petersburg, won the C runabout competition.

Jack Colcock, Seattle, took honors in the nation's most popular inboard class when he won the U. S. title in the 48 c.i. hydros at Merced, Cal., July 15. At that regatta Ernest Rose, Patterson, Cal., won the class championship in the B racing runabouts with his Lil Bee, replacing Woody Eldredge, Merced, the 1955 champion. The 44 c.i. runabout title went to Robert Mutschler, Ocean City, N. J., at Millville, N. J., Sept. 23, and Bernard Tool, Beach Haven, N. J., took the Jersey Speed Skiff award at Cambridge, Md., in August. Last class championship to be decided was the Pacific One-Design Hydroplane (PODH) honors which were won by Marion Beaver, Parker, Ariz., at Lake Mead, Nev., Oct. 13-14. Beaver, Forest Johnson in the F service runabouts and Selden in the C racing runabouts were the only inboard champions to repeat their 1955 wins.

REFERENCE PLAQUES SEALED IN PLASTIC

Gifts for skippers of motor and sail yachts are always in order. The Lighthouse, Inc., 17 Court Street, Plymouth, Mass., has long specialized in this type item and its illustrated catalog is eagerly scanned by all nautically minded skippers. Among recent offerings are beautifully printed and plastic-sealed plaques depicting a number of interesting subjects. One illustrates all of the flags and numerals of the International Signal Code. Another illustrates the standard day and night weather signals and storm warnings. Another illustrates many of the single flag signal hoists and gives their meaning. Still another describes the new phonetic alphabet which was adopted recently. A new plaque called a Buoy Guide illustrates all of the standard forms of buoys and describes their characteristics. It shows the form of lights employed and describes the sound signals used on some types. The plaques are all substantial and durable. They are drilled in the corners and chrome-plated screws are supplied with them for mounting on bulkhead or walls.

seem expensive to the salesperson or to one customer may seem to be quite inexpensive to another customer. It is best to let the customer decide whether he feels the toy is expensive rather than planting the idea in the customer's mind that it is too much.

2. Build Up Value. Sales of toys are not completed until value exceeds the price in the customer's mind. Some toy salespeople hold that price should be kept from the customer until he has a clear picture of the value. This, they say, makes price seem small when it is quoted.

FROM PRICE TO VALUE

Other toy salespeople feel that it is best to quote the price first and then build up value. This gives the customer a measuring stick for the value and makes it easier for the customer to visualize the value he is getting.

Perhaps a middle ground would be best for most toy salespeople. First, build up value in the customer's mind. Next, quote the price. Then, amplify the value to be sure it exceeds price in the mind of the customer.

Regardless of when the price is quoted in the sale, there is one selling stratagem the successful toy salesperson uses to build up value . . . he prefaces the price with a value building adjective. For instance:

"This sturdy swing and glider is only. . ."

TAKE THE EDGE OFF

3. Minimize the Price. There are several ways a toy retailer and salesperson can minimize the price quotation. This helps put the emphasis on the value rather than on the price and eliminates the price stumbling block for the salesperson. Here are three specific ways to keep the consideration of price at a minimum:

—"Only" as a preface to price makes the price seem smaller to the customer. This should be used sparingly and sincerely by the toy salesperson to have the greatest effect. When used for the highest-priced toy in the store, it naturally tends to have an insincere ring to the customer.

DON'T STRETCH THE PHRASE

—When a salesperson says "Twenty-nine dollars and ninety-five cents," the price seems larger than when he says "twenty-nine, ninety-five." The customer will fill in the dollars and cents of the quoted price, but the salesperson minimizes the price by leaving the words out of his price quotation.

—Instead of quoting the price for a big ticket toy like an electric train set at its full price, some salespeople in toy departments having an easy payment plan quote the down payment and monthly payment price. This puts the emphasis on the monthly payment price rather than the full price of the train. It helps to minimize the price and make it seem smaller than the value the customer is receiving.

NAT'L GAMES' NESTED BLOCKS STACK TO HEIGHT OF 4 FEET

Giant-sized nested blocks which stack to a nearly four-foot high "skyscraper" will be displayed by National Games, Inc., at the Toy Fair. James K. Makrianes, president, has announced.

The largest block of the set of five is 10" by 10" by 10", the smallest 6" by

For children 1-6, the blocks are finished in a high-gloss, non-toxic lacquer which is thoroughly washable and highly scuff-proof.

The sturdy strength of the blocks, retailing for $4.98, is proved by the fact that each will support a 200-pound man. This suggests their use not only for building and making play trains, but as TV or tea-party seats for toddlers.

The Giant Nested Blocks will be on display at National's exhibit in Room 527, The New Yorker Hotel, during the Toy Fair. National Games is located at 91 Church Street, in the city of West Springfield, Mass.

GUND APPOINTS AD MANAGER AND PUBLIC RELATIONS FIRM

The Gund Mfg. Company, 200 Fifth Avenue, New York City, one of the country's largest manufacturers of stuffed toys and animals, has announced two appointments: that of Arthur Pine Associates, New York, as publicity-public relations counsel; and that of Irving Tuckman as general advertising manager.

Mr. Tuckman has been associated with Gund for the past six years in the capacity of advertising assistant.

Oak Rubber Purchases 4-Story Factory Building in Ravenna

The Oak Rubber Company program of expansion and diversification took a big step forward recently with the purchase of the former Redfern plant of the Cleveland Worsted Mills in Ravenna, Ohio. A large brick factory building with four floors and 125,000 square feet of floor space the property also includes several smaller buildings and covers about four acres of land.

Located on the main lines of both the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads the plant also offers truck docks and ample parking facilities. The acquisition will enable the nationally known toy firm to meet the challenge of rapidly expanding markets in a booming economy.

For years one of the world's largest toy ballroom manufacturers, Oak also makes a large line of latex toys for infants. In 1956, the successful introduction of a new inflatable playball for beach, pool, and home reportedly taxed the productive capacity of the present plant to the utmost. Further development of this line for 1957 aggravated the space problem.

Now Oak announces the firm's diversification into the plastics field. At the Toy Fair the first items in a brand new line of flexible plastic toys will be shown. Oak's president, W. R. Collette, sees in this field a bright future, with new materials and new processes constantly adding to the potential. The new manufacturing facilities will enable the company to take full advantage of the opportunities in plastics as well as to expand still farther in latex ballroom and toys, he believes.

Brookglad's "Poor, Pitiful Pearl"

Shown above in recessed wall displays in the 200 Fifth Avenue showroom of the Brookglad Corporation are samples of "Poor, Pitiful Pearl," described by the manufacturer as "a wistful, pathetic creature that cries out for adoption."

Complete with a long saran wig that needs coiffuring and tattered clothes that need fast attention, "Pearl" is an 18" all-vinyl number that retails for $9.98 together with the accessories required in order to make her acceptable to her sisters in doll society. She has moving eyes, and is wired to sit, stand, kneel or bend.

Sackman Observes 50th Anniversary

IF TOY FAIR visitors who stop in at the spacious, 2,800-square-foot Sackman Bros. showroom at the Toy Center (Rooms 460-4) this year sense an atmosphere of perhaps even greater than usual activity and enthusiasm at the home of "Yankiboy" playclothes, the reason should be no great mystery.

For 1957 will go down in toy trade history as the 50th anniversary of this firm, a company that can proudly point to a long record of manufacturing and merchandising "firsts," not the least of which was its pioneering in the field of playclothes back in 1907.

When the late Charlie Sackman first hung up the Sackman Bros. shingle in a small but busy loft in downtown New York 50 years ago, playclothes, like many other things found in the modern toy and juvenile department, were as unknown as the buses that have replaced the horse cars that used to ply the streets not far from Charlie Sackman's workshop.

But Charlie Sackman and the ambitious young men who were gradually added to the firm's budding organization soon began to come up with a never-ending succession of forward-looking ideas and innovations that have continued through the years right up to this day. Of course, the fundamental, all-encompassing idea that Mr. Sackman hit upon in those earliest days of his new business was playclothes—the field which the firm so successfully embarked on five decades ago and has specialized in ever since.

Oldtimers who knew Mr. Sackman will recall how he used to recount his reason for launching such a wholly new line. He used to say "Every youngster has to wear clothes and, of course, play activity is the biggest thing in an active youngster's life in the early stages of his development. So, we simply put the two together and thought up the obvious answer—playclothes."

It wasn't long after the first samples of the new Sackman playclothes were shown to buyers and shipments began to leave the factory that the appropriate tradename, "Yankiboy," was adopted. Like all ideas that are sound in concept and whose execution fills a genuine need, "Yankiboy" playclothes lost little time in demonstrating their appeal to the trade and public. Over the years, distribution of "Yankiboy" playclothes continued to gradually expand until now, in 1957, it would be difficult to find a Main Street in any city in the country where one can't walk into a toy or juvenile department and not find an assortment of "Yankiboy" playclothes.

Right from the start, and down through the years, "Yankiboy" playclothes have always included a full selection of Indian, policeman, fireman, baseball and cowboy suits—but, as in everything else in this fast-

'TROPHY' GLIDERS AND PLANES INTRODUCED BY CRAFTCO CORP.

Now making its entry into the toy and hobby field is an aeronautically-engineered line of balsa gliders and rubber-powered planes. It is the "Trophy" line manufactured by Craftco Corporation, Santa Barbara, Calif.

"The heart of any glider line," says Carl Robinette, president of Craftco, "is a good line number. So we designed a smooth-flying 'Flying Saucer'—and offer the 'Saucers' in the popular 10¢ and 25¢ sizes. There are six numbers in the line, ranging in price from 10¢ to 69¢ (each a new and original model), and offering a complete variety without duplication.

For peak flying performance, we designed an all-plastic cabin into which the wings of the plane are inserted. By predetermining the correct dihedral, youngsters are assured top flying performance."

So that dealers can start off with a well-balanced assortment in all price groups at a minimum of investment, Milt Grey Associates, the national marketing organization for Craftco, has developed a revolving counter merchandiser. Occupying less than one square foot of counter space, the "Trophy-Go-Round" provides maximum display and easy self-service. Also available is a "Peg-Rak" unit for stores using pegboard displays.

All of the kits are packed in attractively-designed, tough poly bags, 12 or 24 to a colored display carton. "The Sampler Assortment," says Milt Grey, "costs just $4.42. The counter merchandiser is a special feature that costs just $1.95 on every 'Trophy' glider... whether selling for 10¢ or 69¢."

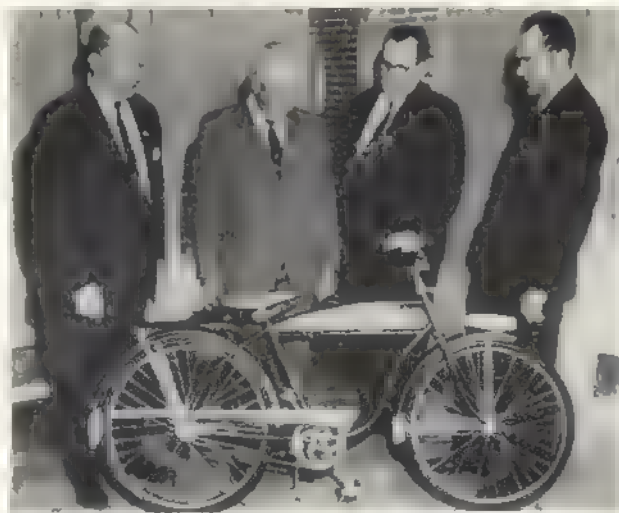

National distribution began in February.

MAKERS OF SARGENT LINE OCCUPY NEW HEADQUARTERS

The Art Crayon Company, Inc., and American Artists' Color Works, Inc., manufacturers of Sargent school supplies, craft sets and artists' materials disclose that by March 1 they will have moved to larger showroom and office space in suite 1202, 200 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

The air-conditioned rooms will have on exhibit the complete Sargent line and will serve as headquarters for sales personnel covering the Eastern seaboard. Merchandise will continue to be shipped from the companies' factory in Hazleton, Pa.

'57 Sales Gain for Bicycles Seen by AMF Executives

In his presentation of the 1957 models, Mr. Cankar, bicycle sales manager of AMF Wheel Goods Division, predicted that sales of AMF Roadmaster and Shelby bicycles will show marked gains this year over 1956 and 1955.

"The new streamlined 'sports-car' styling of both lines together with our extensive advertising and sales promotion program, will further strengthen our position in the industry," said Mr. Cankar. "We expect to obtain our share and more of the increased business resulting from the new interest in bicycling as an adult pastime," he added.

AMF Cycle Company's expanded advertising and sales promotion activities for the year were discussed by Joseph Cully, advertising and sales promotion manager. Other key talks during the meeting were made by Mr. Mueller and Edward W. Barth, vice-president and general manager, AMF Cycle Company.

Also attending the meeting were Conde Hamlin, deputy group executive of American Machine & Foundry Company's General Products Group, Harold G. Cutright, director of sales, AMF's General Products Group; Norman Wintermantel, president, AMF Wheel Goods Division; and Guy F. Campbell, Jr., executive vice-president, AMF Wheel Goods Division. Fletcher D. Richards, Inc., AMF's advertising agency, was represented at the meeting by Sanford Smith, vice-president, and Jack Keane, account executive.

Included in the meeting was a tour of AMF Cycle Company's 217,000 square-foot plant, called the most modern bicycle manufacturing facility in the country.

"LOU" COOPER NAT'L SALES MANAGER AT U. S. PLASTIC

Dix Tovell, president of U. S. Plastic Company, Pasadena, Calif., announces the appointment of J. L. "Lou" Cooper as national sales manager. Cooper, formerly a toy sales representative in the Pacific Coast states, has been identified with U. S. Plastic, one of the west's largest manufacturers of plastic toys for the past seven years.

New sales representatives for U. S. Plastic Company include Marathon Sales Company, with headquarters in St. Paul, Earl Miller of Los Angeles; Charles Leznick, with headquarters in Longview, Wash.; and Larson & Hoffman Company of St. Louis.

Winner of the national sales and sales potential contest as conducted by U. S. Plastic was J. H. Gross of Boston, Mass. His reward was two tickets to the Rose Bowl game and a two-day visit to Las Vegas.

'TROPHY' GLIDERS AND PLANES INTRODUCED BY CRAFTCO CORP.

Now making its entry into the toy and hobby field is an aeronautically-engineered line of balsa gliders and rubber-powered planes. It is the "Trophy" line manufactured by Craftco Corporation, Santa Barbara, Calif.

"The heart of any glider line," says Carl Robinette, president of Craftco, "is a good 10¢ number. So we designed a smooth-flying 'Flying Saucer' — and offer the 'Saucers' in the popular 10¢ and 25¢ sizes. There are six numbers in the line, ranging in price from 10¢ to 69¢ (each a new and original model), and offering a complete variety without duplication.

"To insure peak flying performance, we designed an all-plastic cabin into which the wings of the plane are inserted. By predetermining the correct dihedral, youngsters are assured top flying performance."

So that dealers can start off with a well-balanced assortment in all price groups at a minimum of investment, Milt Grey Associates, the national marketing organization for Craftco, has developed a revolving counter merchandiser. Occupying less than one square foot of counter space, the "Trophy-Go-Round" provides maximum display and easy self-service. Also available is a "Peg-Rak" unit for stores using pegboard displays.

All of the kits are packed in attractively-designed, tough poly bags, 12 or 24 to a colored display carton. "The Sampler Assortment," says Milt Grey, "costs just $6.42—the counter merchandiser is a special bonus. Full profits are assured on every 'Trophy' glider . . . whether selling for 10¢ or 69¢."

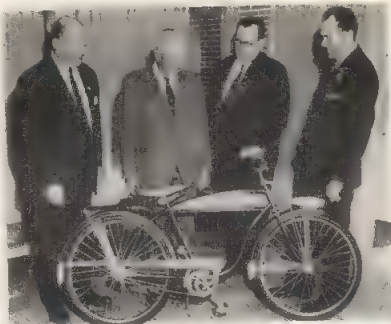

National distribution began in February.

MAKERS OF SARGENT LINE OCCUPY NEW HEADQUARTERS

The Art Crayon Company, Inc., and American Artists' Color Works, Inc., manufacturers of Sargent school supplies, craft sets and artists' materials disclose that by March 1 they will have moved to larger showroom and office space in suite 1202, 200 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

The air-conditioned rooms will have on exhibit the complete Sargent line and will serve as headquarters for sales personnel covering the Eastern seaboard. Merchandise will continue to be shipped from the companies' factory in Hazleton, Pa.

'57 Sales Gain for Bicycles Seen by AMF Executives

AMF Wheel Goods Corp. states that, to the right, Bert Lewis, sales representative, "Obie" Oberwagner, sales assistant, and Homer Mueller, assistant to the president, AMF Wheel Goods Division, boasting a combined total of more than 100 years in the industry, preview the new 1957 AMF Roadmaster Jet Pilot bicycle with Frank Cankar, far right, bicycle sales manager of the AMF Wheel Goods Division, during the recent annual national sales meeting in Little Rock, Arkansas.

In his presentation of the 1957 models, Mr. Cankar, bicycle sales manager of AMF Wheel Goods Division, predicted that sales of AMF Roadmaster and Shelby bicycles will show marked gains this year over 1956 and 1955.

"The new streamlined 'sports-car' styling of both lines, together with our extensive advertising and sales promotion program, will further strengthen our position in the industry," said Mr. Cankar. "We expect to obtain our share and more of the increased business resulting from the new interest in bicycling as an adult pastime," he added.

PLASTIC RAILROAD KITS ADDED
BY JOHN A. ENGLISH & COMPANY

A complete new line of low cost plastic railroad kits was unveiled at the Hobby Industry Show by John A. English & Co., Inc., Morrisville, Pa.

Called Hobbyline Hobbykits, the introductory assortment consists of a freight series of six cars in many different color combinations, and three steam-type locomotives ranging in price from 98¢ to $1.98.

"Since freight equipment is the perennial favorite," says Paul Lindner, vice-president of the firm, "we're leading off with this series of 26 different kits."

"Naturally," he adds, "we plan on new releases throughout the year to add continuing impetus to the new line."

All kits are packaged in a full color box, and come with NMRA couplers. When built, they may be operated on regular HO track.

"Probably one of the greatest selling features," says Mr. Lindner, "is that the cars are pre-colored. Each has been spray-painted to conform with the prototype road name. After the customer has applied the decals, he has an exact replica of the real thing."

The Baldwin Berkshire

A sampler assortment of 24 kits is available to dealers in a multi-colored display carton for $28.75 list price. March deliveries are scheduled.

ENLARGED N. Y. HEADQUARTERS FOR VANITY FAIR ELECTRONICS

Vanity Fair Electronics Corporation, Brooklyn, N. Y., manufacturers of children's acoustical phonographs and a complete line of adult amplified phonographs, announce that they have moved their sales offices from Room 1460 to Room 1453 in the 200 Fifth Avenue Building. The new showroom is nearly twice as large as their previous location.

Vanity Fair is represented by Colman and Hirschmann, who have their showroom at 200 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

MARCH, 1957—PLAYTHINGS

More Licensees Selected to Make Captain Kangaroo Items

Marvin Sugarman and "Captain Kangaroo"

With the announcement of additional licensees, renewals and new items, CBS-TV's "Captain Kangaroo" continues its growth in the merchandising field.

Ideal Toy Corporation, one of the "Kangaroo" program's first year sponsors, has now joined the licensee ranks, kicking off with a complete line of beach balls, water rings, wading pools and other inflatable novelties.

Rainbowcraft has initiated a plan for using "Captain Kangaroo" as the theme for their 1957 Play-Doh line. According to Joe McVickers, the president of Rainbowcraft, special emphasis has been put on "traffic-stopping" packaging for the items.

The Oak Rubber Company has been signed to produce a line of official "Captain Kangaroo" balloons, squeeze toys and vinyl blocks.

The Baby Barry Company, another new licensee, is preparing a miniature "Captain Kangaroo" for Toy Fair introduction.

Other new licensed items produced by pioneer "Kangaroo" merchandisers include finger paints (Hassenfeld Bros., Inc., Pawtucket, R. I.), wooden activity toys (Holtgate Bros. Company, New York City), hand puppets (The Rushton Company, Atlanta) and "Captain Kangaroo" dolls in various sizes (American Character Doll Company, New York City).

The second "Kangaroo" Dell Comic Book has already appeared, and the second Simon & Schuster Golden Book will be on the stands very shortly.

According to Marvin H. Sugarman, director of merchandising for the Hamillburg Agency, which handles "Kangaroo" products in conjunction with CBS Enterprises, Inc., "these renewals and additions are not only a concrete indication of successful merchandising in the show's first year, but a vote of confidence in 'Captain Kangaroo's future acceptance by the public."

The launching and establishing of "Kangaroo" products in 1956 was accomplished by an extensive promotion plan which included appearances by the show's star, Bob Keeshan, at key outlets throughout the country and use of the "Treasure House" theme by many toy stores. These tested merchandising techniques, according to Mr. Sugarman, will be continued and expanded in the future as new licensees are signed.

First entry by the "Kangaroo" merchandising operation into the clothing field will be executed by Sackman Bros., who are licensed to produce the official "Captain Kangaroo" playsuit.

KUSAN'S "KOTTONTAIL" RABBIT-ON-A-LEASH TOY

The illustrated frisky "Kottontail" is a new novelty toy from Kusan, Inc., Nashville, Tenn., that hops and jumps after a luscious-looking carrot on the end of an 18" leash.

Made with an extra-tough plastic "felt," the "Kottontail" is gift-packaged in a practical "hutch"-type box.

The item retails for $1.98.

EXPLORER'S SET COMBINING BINOCULARS, HOLSTER OUTFIT

For the young cowboy or cowgirl who has a hankering to get away from it all and lead a backyard expedition to uncharted territory, Keyston Bros., one of the nation's largest manufacturers of Jr. Cowboy holster sets, asserts it has just the item to get this kind of adventure on the road.

The new product is called an Explorer's set, and features a standard-size pair of binoculars, complete with compass, an all-leather pouch and carrying case. The set also includes a large single holster with hair on-cowhide front, a sure shot repeater gun, and an adjustable leather belt with buckle.

Keyston feels that the would-be explorer field is relatively untapped territory, and that the cry for new frontiers to conquer—a continuing one for both youngsters and toy merchandisers—is answered by this appealing set. Its price is $3.98 retail.

PROFESSIONAL-TYPE SWIM GEAR IN FAVOR, NOTES GLOBE RUBBER

Just returned from a cross-country trip, during which he met with key accounts in major markets, sales manager Ben Benjamin of Globe Rubber Products Corporation reports that "the big swing is to professional styling in swim gear."

To illustrate his findings, Mr. Benjamin points to the rapidly increasing demand for his company's Seville Skin Divers line of swimming accessories. These are masks and lenses made in black rubber and featuring the resort styling that is favored by professional and serious skin divers.

Though Globe's other swim lines in green rubber and natural gum type rubber continue in popularity, Mr. Benjamin feels that the professionally styled gear will attain even greater sales volume as more swimmers discover the sport of skin diving and become more highly skilled in the art. What is more, he believes, many swimmers, even though they do not skin-dive, will want to own the type of equipment used by the professionals.

Model of X-3 Turbo-Jet Plane Latest Kit in Lindberg Line

Illustrated here is the plane after which one of Lindberg Products' newest kit projects is modeled. Officially called the X-3, the plane was built to explore the efficiency of turbo-jets and small-span double-wedge airfoils at speeds up to 2,000 mph. Its triangular-shaped cockpit acts to reduce the effects of the thermodynamic heating and drag at supersonic speeds. Overall, the plane's design was selected after tests of 60 different configurations had determined the one most suitable for sustained flights at extremely high speeds.

"Pictorial Souvenir" Subjects Feature New Econolite Lamps

Bringing to vivid life the warmth and color of a well-remembered era, Econolite Corporation, 8900 Bellanca Avenue, Los Angeles 45, announces three "pictorial souvenir" additions to its popular line of scenes-in-action lamps.

The new creative originals by Econolite are designed as companion sellers to the Forest Fire, Niagara Falls, Butterfly and Tropical Fish, making a total of 34 subjects now available in this novelty series.

Utilizing the same structural design of predecessors in the series, the new lamps have dual plastic, full color shades, brass-plated filigree bases, and the "hallmark of Econolite quality"—sapphire-jeweled bearing mechanisms. All carry the Underwriters' Laboratories' approval label and are equipped with a turn off switch and bulb. The size is 6 1/2" by 11" in height. Each lamp is cartoned for ease of shipping by the dealer.

One of the "pictorial souvenir" subjects in the new series is "Historic Showboats." Here two famous Mississippi riverboats, the "Robert E. Lee" and the "Natchez," come steaming out of the past with stacks belching fire and smoke in an all-out race for riverboat supremacy.

Another subject, called "Famous Trains," reproduces on opposite sides of the shade two historically well-known locomotives, the "General" and the equally noted "John Bull." Realistic flames and smoke pour from the old-time oversize funnels.

The third lamp in the series is in a different mood. This subject is a reproduction in realistic color and action of an old New England mill scene, with the water of a tree-shaded stream spilling through the sleepy old mill wheel.

Sales of Econolite mounted novelty lamps in 1956 doubled those of any previous year, says sales manager Albert Schwartz.

150 MILLION BOOKS, PUZZLES

Western Printing and Lithographing Company has since 1935 produced more than 150 million copies of various books and puzzles based on The Lone Ranger. They include coloring books, storybooks, cut-out books, comic books and picture puzzles.

In addition, Grossett & Dunlap have published 18 Lone Ranger novels since 1937, with a total sale of almost 2 million copies.

"Pictorial Souvenir" Subjects Feature New Econolite Lamps

Bringing to vivid life the warmth and color of a well-remembered era, Econolite Corporation, 8900 Bellanca Avenue, Los Angeles 45, announces three "pictorial souvenir" additions to its popular line of decorative lamps.

The new creative originals by Econolite are designed as decorative accents to the home. The "General," "J. Edgar," and "Bull" lamps are part of a total of 34 subjects now available in this novelty series.

Utilizing the same structural design of predecessors in the series, the new lamps have dual glass shades, brushed brass-plated filigree bases, and the "hallmark" of Econolite—quality, sulphure-jeweled bearing mechanisms. All carry the Underwriters Laboratories' approval label and are equipped with a turn-off switch and bulb. The size is 12 1/2" high, each lamp is cartoned for ease of shipping by the dealer.

One of the "pictorial souvenir" subjects in the new series is "General," "J. Edgar," and "Bull." Here two famous Mississippi river boats, the "Robert Lee" and the "Natchez," are shown in the past, with the "Natchez" being the last of the great river boats.

Another subject called "J. Edgar" reproduces on opposite sides the shape of two historically well-known locomotives, the "General" and the equally noted "J. Edgar Bull." Realistic flames and smoke pour from the old-time oversize funnels.

The third lamp in the series is in a different mood. This subject is a reproduction in realistic color and action—of an old New England mill scene, with the water of a tree shaded stream spilling through a sleepy old mill wheel.

Sales of Econolite decorative lamps in 1956 doubled those of any previous year, says sales manager Allan Schwartz.

150 MILLION BOOKS, PUZZLES

Western Publishing Co., Lithographing Company, has sold and produced more than 150 million copies of various books and puzzles based on the Lone Ranger. They include coloring books, storybooks, and at books, comic books, and picture puzzles.

In addition, Western & Dunlop have published 800,000 novels since 1937, with a total sale of almost 2 million copies.

My Fair Lady Doll, Put Out by Eegee Dolls, Bows in at Fair

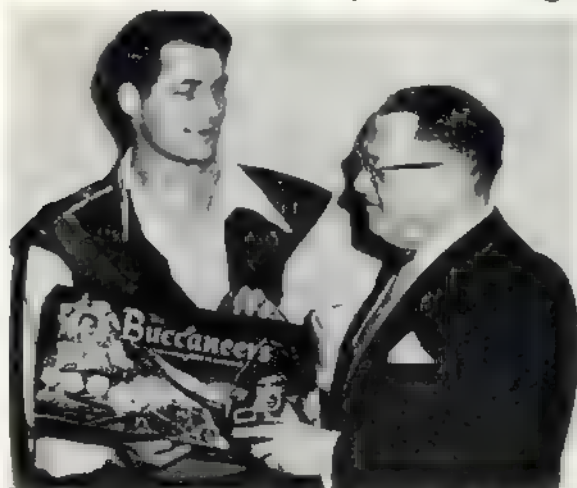

With all the excitement characteristic of a gala opening the My Fair Lady Doll makes her debut at the Toy Fair. The package, designed by Robert Zeidman Associates, industrial designers, New York City, was planned to mirror the elegance of the George Bernard Shaw portrait at a glance and to reassure the devotees of the show for girls of all ages.

Bold gold stripes against the creamy white of the doll are trained in the tall, restraining glass black of the box itself. Against this dramatic background are a strong black cigarette mask strikingly out from a near magenta yellowing tords at the corners and several of the leading characters from the show postured in black outline.

Inside the box, framed against a curved haramic insert of a scenic prop from the show stands the My Fair Lady Doll herself tastefully and beautifully gowned in the black and white velour and lace tradition of the Victorian era. Manufactured by Eegee Dolls, Brooklyn, N. Y., the doll retails for $12.98.

Sea-Action Game Based on TV Show Introduced by Transogram

Actor Robert Shaw, currently starring as Dan Tempest in the weekly CBS TV series "The Buccaneers," congratulates Charles S. Raizen, president of Transogram, on the dramatic four-color package label of the new tie-in game. A sea-action board game of strategy and skill, it is being introduced to the trade during the Toy Fair as one of Transogram's "hot" 1957 novelties, retailing at $1.98.

The show itself, first viewed over CBS last December, has been gaining steadily in popularity among youngsters and teenagers. With a full year's run scheduled, Mr. Raizen says he anticipated widespread recognition and acceptance of "The Buccaneers" game. Aside from "the tie-in," he feels the game can stand on its own as "challenging and thoroughly exciting entertainment."

Licensor for The Buccaneers is Murray McInnis of M&W Associates.

NEW PERSONNEL DIRECTOR AT DOUGHBOY INDUSTRIES

In another move designed to produce for efficiency the business of its operation, Doughboy Industries of New Richmond, Wis., has just established a new, streamlined personnel department and picked a well-known expert to run the program.

Thomas E. Koop, formerly of Northwest

Thomas E. Koop

Orient Airlines and once with the United States Employment Service has been named director of the firm. He will have charge of screening, testing and interviewing new employees and will work in close cooperation with all officials and department heads.

One of his biggest assignments will involve the personnel of the large Doughboy plant, where the pools and toys are manufactured. He will work with supervisors and division heads in final selection of employees. The program for the future will call for special training for different types of work in the operation.

CLINT DILLON JOINS SALES STAFF OF W. B. STOWERS

Clint E. Dillon has been added to the sales staff of W. B. Stowers & Associates, manufacturers' representatives in Room 314 Dallas Merchandise Mart. Mr. Dillon has been in the toy business in the southwest for the past three years.

"As may be recalled," states Mr. Stowers, "Robert L. Harper joined me January 1 last year. With Mr. Dillon, there are now three of us traversing the southwest territory intensively with six top toy lines."

Ungar Sales Reps Convene for 3-Day Meeting in California

On January 29 Ungar toy sales representatives from all parts of the country assembled for a three-day sales conference at the Ungar factory in Los Angeles.

The purpose of the meeting was to outline the company's sales plans for 1957 and to have the management become better acquainted with the newly-appointed representatives, states Sidney D. Ungar, president of Ungar Electric Tools, Inc.

Those attending were: Robert Wagonhurst of Sidebottom & Wagonhurst, San Francisco; Harry D. Knight, Chicago; Leon B. Ungar, Los Angeles; Sheldon Savits, White Bear Lake, Minn.; Arthur Bloch, Dallas; Bob Bauer, St. Anne, Mo.; Wendell G. Young, Boston; Bert Gabriel, New York City; Mac Hanson, Atlanta; Sam Beason, Cleveland; and Pete Dillman, Mt. St. Sales Company, Denver.

Kramer & Rosen Appointed to Represent Alan-Jay Plastics

Marty Kramer

Joe Rosen

Marty Kramer and Joe Rosen, of the firm of Kramer & Rosen, 1133 Broadway, New York City, Room 428, announce that they have been appointed sales representatives for metropolitan New York and New Jersey by Alan-Jay Plastics, makers of selected toys for infants and soft plastic squeeze toys.

The two men are also representing, in the east, Panda Products Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y., manufacturers of polyurethane foam toy blocks; and Brumberger Sales Corporation, Brooklyn, N. Y., manufacturers of intercom and signal sets, slide viewers and projectors, mail-box banks and other items.

Messrs. Kramer and Rosen would call on all types of trade, advise them and look forward to welcoming them as customers who will be in New York for the Toy Fair.

FUNNIES BY THE MILE

If all The Lone Ranger newspaper comics ever printed were placed on a continuous sheet, they would make a comic strip 48,447,007 miles long—one that would reach from here to the moon and back over 22 times.

PAIR OF ELVIS PRESLEY PAINT BY NUMBER SETS BY PEERLESS

Two Elvis Presley paint-by-number portrait sets, the #1521 to retail at $1.98 and the #1501 to retail at $1.59, have been placed on the market by Peerless Playthings, 255 Bergen Turnpike, Ridgedale Park, N. J.

K & O MODELS ANNOUNCES NEW INBOARD MODEL, THE HOLIDAY

A model on a 33-foot inboard cabin cruiser, the Holiday, has been introduced at $349 retail by K & O Models, Inc. of Van Nuys, California.

The Holiday is powered by a single fastlight motor and becomes one of the two smallest boats in the veteran boat company's large Fleet Line. It is 11' long, operates from a new push button control, and has an operating light mounted high, way between the cabin and the bow.

A detachable red and white cabin has on its top an aerial and handrails. On the mahogany stained deck are chrome fenders, a flag standard, rudder light and control switch. A red and white lifebuoy is mounted aft.

A life-size animated Santa Claus for window or floor use is available from Jee-Bee Toy Creations, 41, E. 8th Street, Kansas City, Mo.

Swaying from side to side and waving his right arm winningly, Jee-Bee's 66" tall Santa with real fair beard, is style #606 in a new line of Santas, animated and stationary. It is handsomely clothed in rich red velvet plush-trimmed, with plastic boots and belt.

PUBLIC RELATIONS, ADVERTISING FIRM HEADED BY GENE SCHNEIDER

Gene Schneider Associates, a public relations and advertising consulting firm specializing in toy and playthings programs, has opened its new offices at 45 E. 34 Street, New York City.

The new firm, which will handle toy accounts exclusively, offers integrated public relations, advertising, and sales promotion services.

A complete "Do-It-Yourself" public relations program, especially packaged to be activated by the toy manufacturer himself, is one of the features of the service offered by this new office. This program outlines an overall yearly public relations campaign, individually prepared for each manufacturer and designed to give him maximum return for the minimum effort.

Mr. Schneider brings many years of toy promotion experience to his new company, both as consultant and as a manufacturer. He was formerly an officer of George Peabody & Associates, where his accounts included the American Character Doll Company. He was also associated with the Arranbee Doll Company as public relations and advertising manager. During 1954 and 1955 he was a manufacturer himself, as president of the Ben-Wig Corporation.

Sayco Doll Corporation, Service Mfg. Company, and Maco Toys are three of the toy manufacturers presently being serviced by Gene Schneider Associates.

The advertising and merchandising division of the new firm will be under the direction of Sol R. Fried, who has been for the past seven years associated with one of the leading advertising agencies in the toy field.

DO-IT-YOURSELF BEANIE CHALLENGES YOUNGSTERS

The do it yourself trend took a new turn recently with the introduction of a do-it-yourself novelty Beanie by Benay-Albee Novelty Company.

The 59¢ kit includes plastic strips of different colors, each of which carries a raised, multicolored figure from the annals of Walt Disney's world. A large needle, specially suited to the perforations on each strip, simplifies the task of stitching the pieces together to form a beanie. When the hat is completed, a pom-pom fits neatly on top to provide the finishing touch.

17-Inch Model of Large Pools A U.S. Fiber Aid to Display

The problem of displaying wading pools, which often take up too much space on the showroom floor, is said to have been solved by U. S. Fiber and Plastics Corporation in connection with its new "Million-Air" rigid-wall Koroseal line.

The company is offering a 17" model of its pool, large enough to attract attention yet small enough to fit on a counter. The model, with blue sidewalls and a yellow bottom, is an exact replica of the larger pools which this year range in diameter from 50" to 22 feet.

Details of the welded steel wire wall construction and inflatable safety bumper can be easily seen on the model. Accompanying the model pool is a four-color 17" by 14" display card showing one of the firm's large-size family pools in use. Copy urges: "Get in the swim."

The rigid-wall pools are circular and can be assembled without screws, nuts or bolts. In packing the pool, the wire fencing is rolled up so that it can fit into a small space, thus facilitating economical storing and handling, the company says. The carton that holds a six-foot, 15-inch-diameter pool, for example, is only 12" by 12" by 14".

According to U. S. Fiber, the pools have exceptionally long life expectancy. Steel wire of high tensile strength (115,000 pounds per square inch) is used for the fencing; it is given a triple coating of zinc, after welding, to provide a smooth, clean, weather-protected finish.

Heavy-gauge B. F. Goodrich Koroseal vinyl is used for the liner. This material is virtually weatherproof and will not crack, rot or mildew, states the maker.

"Giant" Features Lowe Item

In the current Cinemascope movie, "Giant," the late James Dean can be observed "hitting the jackpot" with F. S. Lowe's popular Little Land Lot Machine, a $1 retailer.

The latter operates just like a regulation size machine. When the handle at the side is pulled down, the wheels spin and the combination shows up in full colors. An award chart shows the winners. No coin is needed for the item, made of brilliant gold-plated plastic.

Urb's Home Ice-Skating Rink Offered in 4 Different Sizes

A home ice-skating rink that is ideal for use in the backyard and can be set up in less than a half hour is now being stocked by department and specialty stores. It can be used wherever temperatures drop below freezing.

Manufactured by the Urb Products Corporation, 55 Meadows Street, Brooklyn 6, N. Y., the rink consists of two rings of Masonite $\frac{3}{4}$ " tempered plywood strips bolted together to hold a specially formulated plastic liner. Circular in shape, the rinks are made in 15, 20, 24 and 35-foot diameters.

Purpose of the liner is to keep the water from seeping into the ground before it freezes. The "Masonite" rings, one of which fits inside the other, hold the liner in place, enclose the water inside the rink, and prevent the liner from being damaged by skates. The rink can even be set up on ground that is not entirely level, according to Urb.

With the rink, a layer of ice only $\frac{2}{3}$ " thick is sufficient for skating. Because the rings prevent water from running off, the rink is easy to resurface by spraying, the manufacturer claims.

"Miss America Doll" Prominent During Atlantic City Pageant

Sayco, manufacturer of the official Miss America Doll and one of the co-sponsors of the Atlantic City Pageant for the selection of Miss America, was very much in evidence during the week of the contest.

It began with the arrival of Little Miss America winner of a year-long contest conducted by Sayco in toy departments coast to coast. She turned out to be pretty nine year-old Patricia Marino of East Boston, Mass. She was greeted at Atlantic City by Sayco's vice-president in charge of promotion, Mel Rosenblum. The morning before, she had appeared on Dave Garroway's network TV show.

Her first function was to welcome the 51 Miss America candidates. Later, she took part in the evening parade, riding on a float surrounded by hundreds of Sayco Miss America Dolls dressed in coronation robes and transparent pink evening gowns.

The Dennis Shop in Atlantic City and many other restaurants, hotels and boardwalk merchants featured the doll on display

53 AUTOGRAPH ANIMAL, GUND'S SCRIBBLE SEAL

Those who practice the well-established hobby of autograph collecting are foremost in the market for Gund Mfg. Company's novelty Autograph Animals.

Fifteen inches long and available in pink or blue, the Gund number illustrated here is the Scribble Seal, poplin-covered and cotton-stuffed. With a quality ball-point pen attached for fast and easy autographing, the Seal is individually boxed and retails for $3.

According to Gund, the Autograph Animals are so appealing that celebrities can hardly resist signing them.

ADORN ELECTS REIGEL TO POST OF VICE-PRESIDENT

Robert J. Reigel has been elected vice president in charge of sales of Adorn Plastic Specialists, Inc., Chicago. The appointment was announced by Jerome J.

Robert J. Reigel

Kahn, president of the vinyl plastic fabricating firm.

Mr. Reigel was formerly distributor sales manager of Chicago Standard Transformer Corporation. In his new position he will administer Adorn's sales program as well as make extensive trips to call on the trade.

DOLLS DO DOUBLE-DUTY

From the 14th to the 19th century, fashion dolls served the dressmakers of England and the Continent as "ambassadors of the latest vogue." In 1391 the Queen of England received a set of dolls that displayed the modes then current at the French court. After they had served this purpose they became the treasured toys of royal youngsters. Such dolls became obsolete when in the 19th century the French began illustrating fashions in book and album form.

Halsam Effects Loew's Theatre Tie-In for New Skyline Sets

Halsam Products Company has completed details for a national tie-up with Loew's Theatres for the promotion of American Skyline construction sets, it was announced recently by Hal L. Elliott, chairman of the board, and Sam Guss, president of Halsam. The company is located at 3616 Touhey Avenue, Chicago 45.

The promotion, timed for the release of the John Wayne film, "The Wings of Eagles," will be multilateral. A dramatic Skyline display including model skyscrapers and a railroad station—complete with working HO gauge trains—will be set up in the lobbies of leading theatres across the country.

During the weeks this display is on exhibition, an American Skyline Contest will be run on the local level in connection with promotion of the movie. Color Contest blanks, in mat form, will appear in local newspapers, with prizes of deluxe Skyline sets and theatre passes as incentives.

Loew's representatives of Loew's Theatres have received a brochure detailing the handling of this operation, with additional hints as to how the contest can be arranged, to include department store, radio and TV participation. Photos of top prize-winners will be given to dailies in the area where they reside.

Last season the demand for American Skyline far exceeded the supply, states Halsam. However, the company has greatly increased its production facilities, and is now producing Skyline sets in large quantities.

NEW STEAM LOCOMOTIVE, NEWS STAND ACCESSORY BY LIONEL

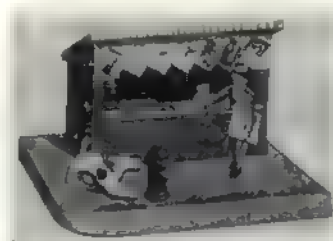

A new #746 Norfolk and Western Class J steam locomotive and an animated news stand are among the new additions at Lionel this year.

The locomotive, an authentic replica of the original, has a bullet-nosed jacket following the contour of the boiler and is accented by a broad red stripe at the running board level. The accompanying tender is striped black and white.

Equipped with Lionel exclusive Märklin traction, the engine features an illuminated headlight, a smoke generator that puffs real smoke, a two-tone whistle and a powerful worm-gear motor. Length overall is 20".

An accessory with a humorous touch, the animated newsstand has a dower who can be moved to the front of the center of the track of the controller button. The same action causes the newsboy to turn to offer his papers and a lively pup to begin chasing his tail around the newsstand.

The newsstand is designed with Lionel #7 or #27 gauge sets.

New John Badal Skip-Ropes

Colorful plastic, high-quality skip-ropes will be shown at the Toy Fair in the John Badal Company's space, Room 221, Hotel Sheraton-McAlpin.

Known as the Lass & Lad Quality Skip-Ropes, the products are termed washable, long-lasting and weather resistant. Made of plastic cord, the ropes come in various pastel colors. They are packed in 36-dozen bundles, assorted.

Retail on the ropes is 29c for the Regular, 7.02 feet long; 39c for the DeLuxe, 7.02 feet long; and 49c for a DeLuxe number 9.33 feet long.

NEW SALES APPOINTMENTS ANNOUNCED BY HOLGATE TOYS

James V. Dunleavy, president of Holgate Toys, Inc., has announced the following new appointments to the sales force for 1957:

Walter H. Hoser, Hillsdale, N. Y., will cover New England; Thomas Smith, Republic Building, Chicago—Wisconsin, Missouri, Illinois and eastern Iowa; John Argall, Denver—the mountain states; F. A. V. Moran Company, San Francisco—Merchandise Mart—the west coast; C. Pitcher, Harrisburg, Pa.—southern Pennsylvania; New Jersey, Washington, D. C., Delaware and Maryland, Liddy Associates, Memphis—the southeast.

Fred K. Curtis, headquartered in the New York City office of Holgate, will continue to cover, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Kentucky and western Pennsylvania. Lee Hopkins, at the Dallas Merchandise Mart will, as before, cover the southwest.

With three additional experienced designers assisting Jarvis Rockwell, head designer, the 16 new additions to the '57 line promise, says Mr. Dunleavy, to give Holgate the best year in its history.

BARDELL'S NEW ROCK-IT RIDER HAS ROCKING AND ROLLING ACTION

A new (patent pending) rolling in motion is combined with rocking action in Bardell's new Rock-It Rider. This combination of motions produces a realistic action, giving the child the sensation of riding through space.

The youngster sits in this big rocket (over four feet high) and guides it through "outer space" with as much or as little movement as he likes. Since the youngster himself controls the movement, the Rock-It Rider can be enjoyed by a one-year-old as well as a seven year old. To make it even more practical for the child, there are three adjustments for setting the ease of obtaining the action, depending on the age of the child using the toy.

The test models, it is said, proved the Rock-It Rider to be very popular with the youngsters. The item will be available to all stores through their local toy jobbers.

Manufactured by Bardell Mfg. Corporation, Steger, Ill., it will be exhibited in Room 879, McAlpin, at the Fair.

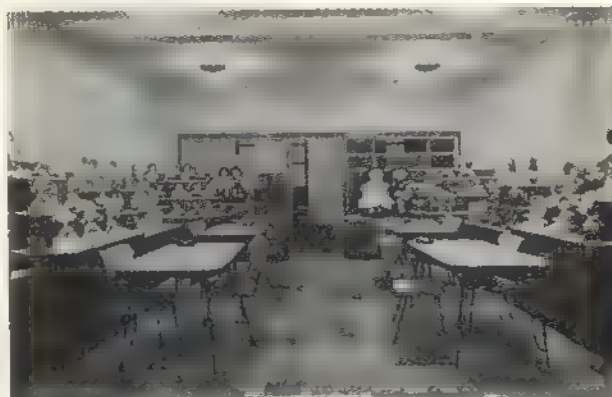

SIMON & SCHUSTER DISTRIBUTING CAPITOL'S YOUNG COLLECTOR KITS

Simon and Schuster, Inc., announces that effective March 5, it will become the sole trade distributor of all boxed items produced by the Capitol Publishing Company. These include a number of novelty books and an extensive list of boxed hobby kits.

Working with Cyrus Porter, president of Capitol Publishing, Simon and Schuster will redesign and refurbish the full line of Young Collectors boxed kits, which previously sold at prices ranging from $2.95 to $4.95. A new one is scheduled for the very near future and all of the kits will now be available at a uniform price of $2.95. Each kit contains 25 specimens and a 96-page booklet, with over 100 illustrations, written with the help of experts from the American Museum of Natural History, the Smithsonian Institution, the New York Botanical Garden and the American Numismatic Society.

Simon and Schuster and Capitol will also bring out this Spring a new line of "hobby-starters" — Capitol Junior Adventure Kits. The first two — Let's Collect Rocks and Minerals and Let's Collect Seashells, will each contain 10 specimens and a 32-page illustrated booklet and will retail for $1. each.

Georgene Novelties' Showroom Refurbished for the Toy Fair

Georgene's David Carlton advises that he will be on hand in the showroom to welcome Toy Fair visitors and show them the company's line of new and established items that are being offered this year.

New Ny-Lint Missile Launcher Added to Firm's Weapons Line

Described as the most satisfying addition to their growing line of toy weapons is the new 1957 Ny-Lint Missile Launcher (catalog #2600). While this all-mechanical toy has the power to drop its projectiles as far as 60 feet away, and is "amazingly accurate" at this range, the sponge-nosed plastic missiles are so light and soft as to be virtually harmless.

This toy is all-mechanical in operation, as compared with the popular Ny-Lint Electronic Cannon introduced last year. The launcher mount swivels full circle on the sturdy truck base; the barrel is elevated or lowered by a self-locking hand-wheel; a button near the gunsight triggers the missile. The heavy truck is in two parts with a pivoted connection to provide easy and flexible travel over rough terrain.

Three missiles are stored in a clip on the launcher platform. A radar screen back of the cab rotates freely to pinpoint vital offshore targets.

Resemblance to coast defense armament is carried out in the special blue color of this Missile Launcher. Its finish is glossy, durable, sprayed on baked enamel, as on all Ny-Lint Toys. Construction is all-welded, of 20-gauge or heavier steel throughout. Big shiny black rubber tires on cream-colored wheels give the weapon easy mobility. It is a big and sturdy toy, 31½" long, 8¼" wide, and 18¾" high with barrel raised. The retail price is $9.95.

The #2600 All-Mechanical Missile Launcher is a product of Ny-Lint Tool & Mfg. Company, 1823 16th Ave., Rockford, Ill.

NAT'L GAMES' NESTED BLOCKS STACK TO HEIGHT OF 4 FEET

Giant-sized nested blocks which stack to a nearly four-foot high "skyscraper" will be displayed by National Games, Inc., at the Toy Fair. James K. Makrianes, president, has announced.

The largest block of the set of five is 10" by 10" by 10", the smallest 6" by

For children 1-6, the blocks are finished in a high-gloss, non-toxic lacquer which is thoroughly washable and highly scuff-proof.

The sturdy strength of the blocks, retailing for $4.98, is proved by the fact that each will support a 200-pound man. This suggests their use not only for building and making play trains, but as TV or tea-party seats for toddlers.

The Giant Nested Blocks will be on display at National's exhibit in Room 527, The New Yorker Hotel, during the Toy Fair. National Games is located at 91 Church Street, in the city of West Springfield, Mass.

GUND APPOINTS AD MANAGER AND PUBLIC RELATIONS FIRM

The Gund Mfg. Company, 200 Fifth Avenue, New York City, one of the country's largest manufacturers of stuffed toys and animals, has announced two appointments: that of Arthur Pine Associates, New York, as publicity-public relations counsel; and that of Irving Tuckman as general advertising manager.

Mr. Tuckman has been associated with Gund for the past six years in the capacity of advertising assistant.

Oak Rubber Purchases 4-Story Factory Building in Ravenna

The Oak Rubber Company program of expansion and diversification took a big step forward recently with the purchase of the former Redfern plant of the Cleveland Worsted Mills in Ravenna, Ohio. A large brick factory building with four floors and 125,000 square feet of floor space the property also includes several smaller buildings and covers about four acres of land.

Located on the main lines of both the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads the plant also offers truck docks and ample parking facilities. The acquisition will enable the nationally known toy firm to meet the challenge of rapidly expanding markets in a booming economy.

For years one of the world's largest toy ballroom manufacturers, Oak also makes a large line of latex toys for infants. In 1956, the successful introduction of a new inflatable playball for beach, pool, and home reportedly taxed the productive capacity of the present plant to the utmost. Further development of this line for 1957 aggravated the space problem.

Now Oak announces the firm's diversification into the plastics field. At the Toy Fair the first items in a brand new line of flexible plastic toys will be shown. Oak's president, W. R. Collette, sees in this field a bright future, with new materials and new processes constantly adding to the potential. The new manufacturing facilities will enable the company to take full advantage of the opportunities in plastics as well as to expand still farther in latex ballroom and toys, he believes.

Brookglad's "Poor, Pitiful Pearl"

Shown above in recessed wall displays in the 200 Fifth Avenue showroom of the Brookglad Corporation are samples of "Poor, Pitiful Pearl," described by the manufacturer as "a wistful, pathetic creature that cries out for adoption."

Complete with a long saran wig that needs coiffuring and tattered clothes that need fast attention, "Pearl" is an 18" all-vinyl number that retails for $9.98 together with the accessories required in order to make her acceptable to her sisters in doll society. She has moving eyes, and is wired to sit, stand, kneel or bend.

Sackman Observes 50th Anniversary

IF TOY FAIR visitors who stop in at the spacious, 2,800-square-foot Sackman Bros. showroom at the Toy Center (Rooms 460-4) this year sense an atmosphere of perhaps even greater than usual activity and enthusiasm at the home of "Yankiboy" playclothes, the reason should be no great mystery.

For 1957 will go down in toy trade history as the 50th anniversary of this firm, a company that can proudly point to a long record of manufacturing and merchandising "firsts," not the least of which was its pioneering in the field of playclothes back in 1907.

When the late Charlie Sackman first hung up the Sackman Bros. shingle in a small but busy loft in downtown New York 50 years ago, playclothes, like many other things found in the modern toy and juvenile department, were as unknown as the buses that have replaced the horse cars that used to ply the streets not far from Charlie Sackman's workshop.

But Charlie Sackman and the ambitious young men who were gradually added to the firm's budding organization soon began to come up with a never-ending succession of forward-looking ideas and innovations that have continued through the years right up to this day. Of course, the fundamental, all-encompassing idea that Mr. Sackman hit upon in those earliest days of his new business was playclothes—the field which the firm so successfully embarked on five decades ago and has specialized in ever since.

Oldtimers who knew Mr. Sackman will recall how he used to recount his reason for launching such a wholly new line. He used to say "Every youngster has to wear clothes and, of course, play activity is the biggest thing in an active youngster's life in the early stages of his development. So, we simply put the two together and thought

It wasn't long after the first samples of the new Sackman playclothes were shown to buyers and shipments began to leave the factory that the appropriate tradename, "Yankiboy," was adopted. Like all ideas that are sound in concept and whose execution fills a genuine need, "Yankiboy" playclothes lost little time in demonstrating their appeal to the trade and public. Over the years, distribution of "Yankiboy" playclothes continued to gradually expand until now, in 1957, it would be difficult to find a Main Street in any city in the country where one can't walk into a toy or juvenile department and not find an assortment of "Yankiboy" playclothes.

Right from the start, and down through the years, "Yankiboy" playclothes have always included a full selection of Indian, policeman, fireman, baseball and cowboy suits—but, as in everything else in this fast-

Trio of New Easter Playthings From the Sun Rubber Company

"Begging Rabbit," "Dippy Duckling" and Donald Duck, the latter in a new costume, are heading the Sun Rubber Company's Easter toy parade this year. All were created in the firm's new vinyl laboratories and molded by an exclusive Sun patented process.

Company predictions are that the "Begging Rabbit," brand new in Sun's 1957 line of more than 100 items, will be a top Easter and spring season seller and will also have year round appeal. The flesh colored rabbit holds a brilliant red basket in its arms. It squeaks and whistles when squeezed.

Sun's "Dippy Duckling" is an all vinyl floating tub or pool toy 5" high. It is colored yellow and red and quacks when squeezed. Over retail counters "Dippy Duckling" will sell for $1, "Begging Rabbit" for 79¢.

The third performer in Sun's special Easter offering is an old favorite, Donald Duck, decked out in a new, brilliant red jacket. Standing 8" in height, he'll accommodate with a quack when squeezed. His retail price is $1.

Other vinyl floating and squeeze toys Sun is offering in its 1957 spring line include "Spot," the dog; "Cleo," the fish; "Susie So-Soft," kitten and "Wiggy Wags" dog.

Inquiries about these and all Sun products should go to the Sun Rubber Company, Barberton, Ohio.

MASTER INDUSTRIES, MAKER OF STUFFED TOYS, TO EXPAND

Master Industries, Inc., 111 E. 6th Street, St. Paul, Minn., reports through spokesman Oscar D. Berris, treasurer, that sales of their stuffed toy line rose to a record high last year. "With the addition of several new numbers for 1957," said Mr. Berris, "we expect even larger figures this year." Production facilities, he further advised, are to be doubled.

At the time of its founding some years ago, Master Industries decided to emphasize quality rather than price in its stuffed toys. Displaying a flair for the unusual, the company's designer supplemented the standard Teddy Bear, Panda and similarly traditional stuffed toy items with such provocatively named animals as the "Drowsy Bear," "Countess," a Pekingese, "Old Sarge," an English bulldog, "Lazy Mule," and many others—all of which will be shown during the Toy Fair in Room 1408 in the Hotel New Yorker.

"Though we've never sacrificed quality for price," Mr. Berris commented, "we've always tried to hold down our costs in order to maintain reasonable prices to the consumer without cutting dealer profits. Since we're greatly concerned with the welfare of the children who play with Master Toys, we take special precautions to insure safely attached eyes and color-fast, non-toxic and non-allergic fabrics."

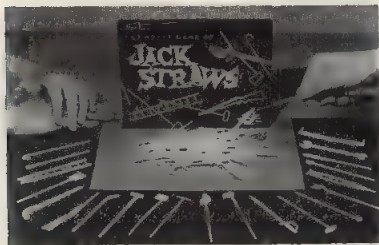

Aside from its home office showrooms, Master Industries maintains showrooms in space 1428, Merchandise Mart, Chicago, space 672, Merchandise Mart, Dallas; and at 1124 South Hope Street, in the city of Los Angeles.

VALLEY MFG. COMPANY NAMES TWO NEW REPS

Valley Mfg. Company, Bay City, Mich., reports the appointment of two new sales representatives for their line of pool tables and bumper pool numbers. They are Julius Levenson, 1107 Broadway, New York City; and Anderson Sales Company, 2330 W. 3 Street, Los Angeles.

John Ryan, national sales manager for Valley Mfg. Company, says "These two firms are recognized as tops in their field. They will be selling all of our modern items in the adult, junior and toy classifications."

Plastic Jack Straws Set in Qubic Games' Line for '57

A plastic version of Jack Straws, the oldtime favorite that featured a boxful of miniature wooden rakes, shovels, ladders and other items and challenged the player to hook out straws without disturbing the pile, has been announced by Qubic Games, 54 Warner Street, Springfield 8, Mass.

Retailing for $1.50, the plastic Jack Straws set contains about 50 straws, each 3 1/2" long, made in bone-color styrene; over 20 different varieties of shapes, including a two-man saw, a ladder, gun, rake, crutch, shovel, hoe, axe and key-hole saw, and a hook and rules.

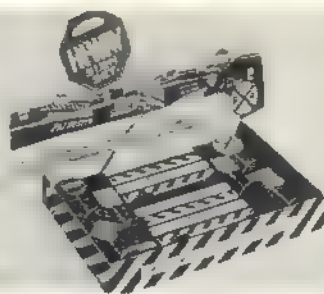

The box, 7 1/4" by 5 1/4" by 1", is decorated with reproductions of various straws. Packing is one dozen to the carton; weight, 5 pounds.

Metal Vehicles for '57:

Tonka Announces Biggest Line Ever—38 Numbers

With expanded production facilities at its disposal, Tonka Toys, Inc., enters the new year with the biggest line of metal vehicles and accessories in its 11-year history. Fifteen of the firm's 38 models are new for 1957, as are seven accessory packages.

The new models, as well as others in the line, will be introduced at the Toy Fair in Rooms 729-730 of the Hotel New Yorker, as well as in Room 208 at 200 Fifth Avenue, which is the company's New York office.

Like any "automotive" manufacturer, Tonka Toys has restyled its vehicles, which are turned out by 500 workers in 83,200 square feet of factory area. In addition to new body styling (including hood air intakes, wrap-around windshields, brighter colors, use of metallic paint, etc.) scale-model realism is again enhanced by the use of 20-gauge steel. Chromate finishing of plated surfaces, baked vehicle enamel, authentic design and durable protective packaging.

Last year's most popular item, the Seler Pumper, is still part of the line and is sold separately ($8.98) or in the three-vehicle fire department. The company states it was unable to meet demand on this water-squirting miniature in 1956.

Packaged in two color illustrated cartons, the seven accessories include: a scraper blade with mounting bracket for attachment to all dump trucks in the line (suggested retail $1.49); a stake trailer which attaches to the pickup truck for hauling "livestock" and other cargoes ($1.98); a "hi-way" sign set with six metal road signs and two barriers in attractive counter display package ($2.98); Tonka farm animals, six pieces of livestock of polystyrene for use with stock vehicles ($1.49); a stock corral which is a wooden unit measuring 19" across and equipped with a loading chute ($1.49); a "V" blade snow plow with mounting bracket to fit all Tonka dump trucks ($1.98); and the Tonka box trailer for use with Tonka's hitch-equipped pickup truck ($1.98).

Seven toy sets, all contained in display packages, augment a variety of individual units. These include the Tonka Fire Department ($27.95); Tonka Trailer Rental Set ($7.98); Road Builder Set ($24.95); State Hi-Way Department ($19.95); Tonka Stock Farm ($7.98); Tonka Trailer Fleet ($16.95); and Tonka Truck-Trailer Rental ($9.95).

Hydraulically-operated, the 3-in-1 Hi-Way Service Truck is expected to be one of the most popular of the new toys. It comes equipped with an attachable scraper blade and "V" type snow plow at a suggested retail price of $7.98. With two-position tailgate and drop-down sides, this dump truck is in the 1" to 18" scale proportion like all Tonka Toys.

Twin hydraulic mechanisms operate the "Big Mike" dual dump truck. Retailing at $7.98, it is the heaviest dump truck in the line with tandem dual wheels.

Another number is the Pickup and Stake Trailer, which makes a toy animal for $4.98. The two-wheel trailer, which hitches easily to the truck, is equipped with a removable stake panel through which the polystyrene animal can be loaded.

Following this farm theme, the Tonka Stock Farm ($7.98) includes six polystyrene farm animals, a wooden corral and aluminum ramp and a large stock truck. This set can be used as a part of many games and activities.

Other new toys in the Tonka line include: a Pickup with Box Trailer ($4.98), a unit which employs a handy latch for attaching the metal trailer; Truck-Trailer Rental ($9.95), a set including a arm Stake Truck, Pickup model, Stake Trailer and Box Trailer; Tonka Trailer Rental Set ($7.98), the lowest-priced set in the line, which utilizes the Pickup model with two box trailers and a stake trailer; Steam Shovel ($3.98), newly designed and featuring a crank operated mechanism with rotating cab; Shovel and Carry-All ($7.98), including the new shovel and a trailer which has removable ramps and a winch for simple loading and unloading; Thunderbird Express ($5.98), a newly-styled freighter with large doors for loading and unloading; Hydraulic Dump Truck ($4.98), which is equipped with hydraulic lumping mechanism and has a two-position tailgate for dumping or spreading operations.

And the Road Builder Set ($24.95), a deluxe package that consists of six construction type toys—a manually-operated dump truck, road grader, steam shovel, carry-all trailer, "Big Mike" hydraulic dump truck, and scraper blade; Tonka Stock Rack with Animals ($5.98), a heavy-duty truck with sliding gate accompanied by three polystyrene animals; Gasoline Truck ($4.98), a colorful, big unit patterned after the real thing; and the Hydraulic Aerial Ladder ($12.98), a firebuff's dream which features hydraulic action to lift the ladder for extension to its 36-inch height, a tiller man's seat and revolving ladder base.

Disney Merchandise To Be "Everywhere" At the Toy Fair

WALT DISNEY'S Mickey Mouse Club merchandise, popularized by the most well-known children's daytime television show, is expected to be a main attraction at this year's Toy Fair.

Approximately 90 of the Walt Disney Character Merchandising manufacturers will be participating at the Fair. All types of games, mechanical toys, dolls, stuffed toys, novelty items, pistols, puppets, typewriters, foam rubber toys, "make-it-yourself" kits, musical instruments as well as many others will be seen.

Joining such Disney-licensed "old-timers" as Louis Marx, Hassenfeld Bros., Gund, Transogram, Fisher-Price, Whitman and Jaymar will be Radio & Steel Mfg. Company, showing coaster wagons, scooters, and miniature coaster wagons; Globe Union, Inc., roller skates; Empire Plastic Corporation, a mechanical flip-book with reels; Spec-Toy-Culars, Inc., miniature plastic musical toys; Raylite Electric Corporation, Christmas light decorations; Aladdin Industries, Inc., metal lunch kits; Northwestern Products, bagatelle games and pin ball games; and American Mirror Works, novelty mirrors.

The Mickey Mouse Club has an estimated total daily audience of 18,967,500 made up of 15,382,500 children and 3,585,000 adults. It is seen in some 7,587,000 homes. An audience of this size reportedly gives the Mickey Mouse Club show one of the widest exposures of any daytime television program.

With Disney re-releasing Cinderella nationwide in major cities at Easter, merchandise based on the characters from the all-cartoon fairytale will also be incorporated into the manufacturers' Fair exhibits.

Of great importance to buyers will be Johnny Tremaine merchandise. A full-length live action film set in the Pre-Revolutionary War days of Boston, Johnny Tremaine will be released to theatres in June. Heavy television promotion on the film is scheduled for both Disney TV shows. At least one Disneyland TV Show (one hour) will be largely devoted to the new film.

Besides the television and theatre exhibition, a comic strip based on Tremaine will appear in newspapers. Retailers across the United States are already planning to have Johnny Tremaine merchandise on their counters by the release date in June, according to Disney spokesmen.

Manufacturers showing Tremaine items at the Fair include: Bantam-Lite, Inc., Hempstead, N. Y., novelty flashlights; Raysore Industries, Inc., Elkton, Md., to make-up kit; Benay Albee Novelty Company, Maspeth, N. Y., hats; Ben Cooper, Inc., Brooklyn, N. Y., costumes; Dell Publishing Company, New York City comic books; L. M. Eddy Mfg. Company, Inc., Framingham, Mass., play outfits; Gund Mfg. Company, New York City, hand puppets; Jaymar Specialty Company, Brooklyn, N. Y., puzzles; Louis Marx & Company, New York City, revolutionary guns, pistols, canteens; Oak Rubber Company, Ravenna, Ohio, balloons; Simon & Schuster, New York City, big and little Golden Books; Transogram Company, Inc., New York City, paint sets; Whitman Publishing Company, Racine, Wis., coloring books.

A third significant news item for merchandisers coming from the Walt Disney office is the announcement of a new nighttime television adventure series based on "Zorro," an exciting historical figure of early California history. "Zorro" will be a live-action TV series of 39 weekly half-hour adventures scheduled to begin in October.

An over-all total of 130 hours of new television programming for 1957-58 is on the agenda for Walt Disney Productions, including new programming for Disneyland, the Mickey Mouse Club and the addition of "Zorro." Disney will produce new material for the Mickey Mouse Club, which will be a half-hour rather than an hour daytime show, when starting its third year in October.

"Cinderella" merchandise may be seen in the Toy Fair showrooms of various manufacturers.

THERE'S good news about the spotted alfalfa aphid. For the first time since it hit this country four years ago, the pest has been stalled on just about all fronts.

• New insect enemies, fungus diseases, chemicals, resistant varieties and weather are all helping slow it down.

No one is counting out the aphid yet—it's the worst alfalfa pest ever. But this year's hull is giving us time to beef up controls.

In California, where ladybird beetles and small imported wasps have cut numbers in the southern part of the state, scientists are now carrying the predator fight into northern counties.

California scientists are also pushing the use of Systox to kill aphids without harming friendly insects.

Meanwhile, farmers in many parts of the west are seeding Lahontan alfalfa, the Nevada variety that resists the aphid.

In the South and Southwest where the aphid's attack fizzled during its favorite February-to-June months, scientists are stepping up the fight.

"We're trying fungus diseases and imported parasites," says Oklahoma A & M scientist D. E. Howell. "We hope to be ready if it builds up again."

In four North Carolina counties, a county agent's spray program helped check a build-up this spring.

• Midwestern scientists are speeding up work on aphid-resistant alfalfa. Purdue University researchers have developed resistance in varieties that are adapted to the Midwest. Wisconsin scientists are selecting for resistance in their new Vernal alfalfa.

Farmers and scientists are coming up with better chemical control, too. Nozzle "drops" on high pressure booms, for example, force malathion or parathion sprays down into the alfalfa to get aphids hiding in the undergrowth.

New sprays using such chemicals as methyl parathion, Phosdrin and Thimet also look good in tests.

Scientists warn that the aphid could still flare up yet this year.

"Wet weather seems to be holding it back. But damage could still be bad if we get a dry, late fall," says Missouri scientist Stirling Kyd.

"A fall build-up could be disastrous in our 'alfalfa economy,'" adds Wisconsin scientist John Medler. Fall infested stands would have a tough time surviving the winter. End

BELL PRODUCTS COMPANY
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI

IN OREGON, Darrell Perry, lineman, helps bring some 52 miles of telephone line into Powder River Valley. This $50,000 project connected 56 ranch families with the world and helped them overcome fire, grazing and water problems.

IN KANSAS, Mrs. Dorothy Veach, operator in Abilene, helps serve 200 rural customers each day. Her home is a 240-acre farm. Because of her background, she understands farm problems. "That's why I always try to be extra helpful on rural calls," she says.

BEST TELEPHONE CROP IN TEN YEARS!

More telephones were added in rural areas during 1956 than any year in the past decade. Across the land, thousands of telephone men and women worked together to bring you more and better service.

These people are typical of those in the telephone office in your town . . . and those out on the lines and in our laboratories. They work toward a common goal—more and better rural service. During the past year this Bell System team brought telephone service to about 350,000 customers and improved service for hundreds and thousands more. Truly they are working together to bring people together.

We'll continue that job in the years to come.

Working together to bring people together
BELL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

IMPROVED MOLDED HULLS

A new patented process used by the Wagemaker Company of Grand Rapids, Michigan turns out a molded hull of 5 to 7 veneers with a smooth finish and great structural strength. These hulls come in 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17' lengths and all are distinguished by names for easy identification.

These molded plywood hulls have all been improved over earlier models. Storage compartments have been added to the backs of lazyback seats. More beam and depth have been provided and appearance has been improved. The best features of some have been combined so that this year's models include the best features of several.

A complete new design has produced the Seafarer 15 which features a newly designed tail fin, and new color styling as standard. The popular walk-through center deck will be included. New models include the 15' Invader, an open type with forward deck and motor well. The 17' model will seat eight people. It is designed to take one or two motors and has a storage compartment forward. The Fleetline, in 14' and 16' sizes, is of both molded plywood and ply-lap construction.

FLOATS HELP WATER SKIERS

A highly visible plastic float is now being produced by J. H. Shepherd Son & Company, 1820 East Avenue, Elyria, Ohio, for use on ski lines. This float is attached to the tow line so that it can not sink below water level. This means that the line is always visible, and it can't become tangled with the motor prop.

The photograph shows these floats being used at the beautiful Cypress Gardens, Winter Haven, Florida.

Shepherd ski line floats utilize a highly visible, red and white color combination. They are lightweight, and are made from first quality, high impact material for longer, trouble-free use. The brilliant color in these floats is part of the plastic itself. It cannot chip or peel. In addition, Shepherd ski line floats are unaffected by the action of salt-water, they are extremely weather resistant, and are extra-strong to withstand even severe use.

ONE-PIECE HULLS OF FIBERGLASS

Pearson Plastic Corp., Seekonk, Mass., is building several interesting small craft. Cub 8 combines the stability of a flat bottom and the grace of rounding curves. She handles easily as a rowboat or accommodates a small outboard. A generous displacement makes this dinghy stable, safe and comfortable for five persons. Molded in one piece with a long skeg incorporated, this tender is leakproof. Built-in flotation, gunwale guard, mahogany seats, and bronze fittings are standard equipment. She is available as a sailing dinghy. Length 8', beam 52", depth 22".

Maiden 15 is a wide runabout with flared bow designed to keep the cockpit dry. The knife-like stem prevents pounding, the flat sections allow easy planing. She banks nicely in a turn and is impossible to flip. The Maiden comes in three models with three seats, center deck, or walk thru. Hull is one piece fiberglass, color impregnated. Length overall 14' 6", beam 5' 10", depth 33".

Apache 16 is a rugged boat for open water. As a fisherman or a family cruiser the hull design gives both stability and speed. Low maintenance is a feature with one-piece color-impregnated fiberglass hull, fiberglass decks and floorboards. Length overall 16', beam 6' 7", depth 45".

MOTOR BOATING

SPREAD OF SAIL

This arresting picture of the British schooner Susanne was taken in 1905 by the famous English photographer, Frank Reken. Designed by Fife in 1904, she was of composite construction and was 93'7" l.o.a., 75'3" l.w.l., and 19'8" beam. Her sail area was probably well over 6,000 sq. ft.

Susanne was a contemporary of the American schooner Westward (whose skipper was the well-known Charley Barr), whom she raced against during the latter's campaign in British waters.

Little MARINER
proudly
DAY-CRUISER

YOU asked for it! Boatmen familiar with the performance of the Little Mariner Fishhawk and the Bayfarer family cruiser, asked us to design this new DAY-CRUISER. She's a 20' high-style, fast-stepping beauty. Ideal as a sports fisherman or pleasure cruiser in any waters, with sufficient livability built in to make overnight trips a joy.

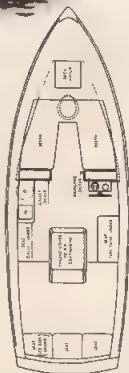

Advanced hull design provides safety features and performance that are remarkable in a boat of this size. Sturdy, heavily-framed construction insures long life and low maintenance cost. Powered with a 70 h.p. Graymarine, her 27 mph gets you there fast! Optional design permits outboard power with speeds up to 20 mph. And for comfort, besides the roomy cockpit there's a galley with icebox, two berths, head and hanging lockers. It all adds up to a lot of boat for a price that will surprise you. Write for complete specifications and illustrated brochure, then compare before you buy any boat.

Becomes Regular Walking Doll

Does a Split and Back Bend

Bends and Swivels — Ankles, Knees and Body

Kicks Out with Knee Bent or Straight

STAR OF THE BALLET. Valentina Ballerina will dance right into your heart. Authentic in every detail, she wears long dance hose, real CAPEZIO Slippers and the glamorous tutu of the Blue Bird Ballet! Because her knees and ankles are flexible she assumes all of the positions illustrated and hundreds more merely by the touch of the finger!

But that's not all! For the first time in history a doll ingeniously jointed — at the waist, permitting her to bend and turn or sway in any direction. Her head is of soft life-like vinyl. Her eyes open and close. Her hair is saran and is rooted in her scalp (actually imbedded like real hair) in a long full ponytail style. Her arms, too, are of the same skin-like vinyl, and are shaped to take on the graceful pose of a ballerina. The body and legs are fine unbreakable plastic. When you hold her and lead her she takes short dancing steps. By lowering her fast to a normal walking position she can be dressed in street clothes and becomes a regular walking doll. Valentina comes with a 3 way reflector practice bar that serves as a stand and as an attractive display piece. You'll treasure Valentina Ballerina for years and years. Truly a doll masterpiece!

DOREENA BALLET TOUR

36 PIECE DOLL, WARDROBE and STAGE SET

This 20" package of joy is the greatest thrill ever for your little dancer. Her head is soft life-like vinyl. Her eyes open and close. Her hair is saran and is rooted in her scalp (actually imbedded like real hair) in a long full ponytail style. Her body and legs are fine unbreakable plastic. When you hold her and lead her she takes short dancing steps, and turns her head from side to side. But, that's not all!!! Because her knees and ankles are flexible and she can assume any of the positions illustrated and hundreds more merely by a touch of the finger. By lowering her fast to a normal walking position she can be dressed in street clothes and becomes a regular walking doll. Along with the Doreena Doll is her wardrobe for street wear and stage wear.

She has authentic Ballet costumes for:

- Swan Lake
- The Nutcracker and, Oh yes!
- Beau Danube
- A leopard for practice, too.

Going to and from the theatre — she must wear street clothes — so she has regular walking shoes and short socks — a lovely street dress and a dressy little coat and hat. Her shoes are by CAPEZIO. When she has a formal to attend after the theatre, she wears her beautiful velvet Beau Danube costume with a matching velvet stole. For sleeping, she has a lovely sheer Ninon nightgown. An extra pair of dance shoes and dance hose are also included — Not to mention hangers for her things, and curlers to change her hair style from time to time.

Since she sometimes performs at parties and teas, she has her own stage which travels with her — and her wardrobe hangs in the two sections that fit right into this compact set. There never was a doll like this before.

KODAK

Ⓟ Kodaslide Signet 300 Automatic Slide Projector

By projecting your color slides in full glory, this is the perfect complement to your fine 35mm camera. Your screenings sparkle from the brilliance of its 300 watt lamp with maximum efficiency optical system and five-inch $f/3.5$ lens. Simple push-pull movement of Allreput changer handle projects slide, refines it and advances 35-compartment magazine to next slide. Slides can be shown in sequence, skipped or repeated. Quiet, impeller-type blower offers three-way protective cooling. All-metal body in frosty green finish. Extra-long 12-foot cord.

Ⓢ La Belle Producer 55 Slide Projector

All the magnificence of your 35" mounted transparencies shines through the projection by this La Belle model Two good reasons are its five-inch $f/3.5$ lens and blower-cooled 500 watt lamp. Slides feed from magazine to receiver, restack automatic in proper sequence. Shutter closes during slide changes locally in proper sequence. Release button moves stubborn slides . . . never a white screen glare. Release button moves stubborn slides and "relieved" head can't gouge magazines. Light traps around lamp and body stop stray light. Micro-Focus knob for absolute sharpness and selector for glass or paper slides.

Ⓥ Skan 200 Watt Slide Projector

Enjoy your color slides in full screen extravagance . . . and at a remarkably thirty price! With this famous-name projector, you'll see your slides in the bright light of a 200 watt lamp with "slide cooling" blower . . . and under the scrutiny of a five-inch $f/3.5$ lens. Produces more screen illumination than most 200 watt projectors made. At your fingertips is a push-button tilt control and, for smooth operation, a built-in slide truck. Friction focusing brings out details otherwise lost. Two very manual changer takes all 24" mounted slides.

Ⓦ Skan Automatic Slide Projector

A treat awaits the audience (and operator) who watch the projection of a Skan Automatic! There's no annoying delay while slides "pop" into focus . . . never the nuisance of refocusing over and over again. Nothing but immediate sharpness, slide after slide, through a five-inch $f/3.5$ coated anastigmat lens and 300 watt lamp. "Slide cooling" blower eliminates the heat filter, achieves truer colors and more sparkling detail. Price includes Allreput automatic changer that selects, centers slide in correct focal plane and refines slide in magazine.

Jewelry from Straw

EVER dream that you could pick your summer jewelry from a grain field?

Of course you won't find a finished pin or necklace hanging on a wheat stalk. But if you gather straws just before harvest, you'll have the makings of some smart accents for your summer dresses. And for almost nothing, too!

Be sure to get some long straws from tall grain for braiding. Cut off and discard the heads and joints and gently remove the husks from each section of the stem. Then sort straw by length and diameter, and tie it loosely into bundles. Soak the straw in hot water for at least an hour before using; work with it wet.

When you want to make accessories from braided straw, tie three fine straws together at one end. Squeeze straws into a flat ribbon, and braid.

No mistaking it— HERE COMES THE B-58 BUICK

NO OTHER BUICK ever looked like this. There's no other car on the road quite like it—from that Dynastar Grille right back to the twin tower taillights.

But the differences in driving are even more exciting—in the Buick built with more aircraft principles than any other car in the world. Once behind the wheel, you find a new kind of land travel.

You'll feel it at once in the successor to automatic transmissions—the incredible Flight Pitch Dynaflow.*

You'll feel it in the silence and smoothness and instantaneous action of the B-12000 engine—the last word in performance efficiency until top-octane fuels are nationally available.

You'll feel it in the bounceless, swayless, yet completely cushioned Miracle Ride. And, if you choose, you can even top that with Buick's Air-Poise Suspension.*

You'll feel it in deep satisfaction, in the steel-sinewed solidity that tells you a new standard of durable Buick quality has been hammered into every inch of this car's structure.

So don't wait. Go find out more about this bold and brilliant forerunner of a new era. The B-58 Buicks are drawing the knowing ones now, at all Buick dealers'.

Chevy puts the purr in performance!

That new V8 in the '57 Chevrolet is as quiet as a contented cat and as smooth as cream. And it's cat-quick in response when you ask for action!

Just nudge the accelerator, and it pours out the kind of velvety action that helps you be a surer, safer driver at all times. Its right-now response keeps you out of unexpected highway emergencies. And it overpowers steep hills with such ease they seem like level landscape.

New Chevrolet V8 engine options put up to 245* high-compression horsepower under your command. With 283 cubic inches of displacement, this V8 is a new, bigger and better edition of the engines that have put Chevrolet at the top of the performance ladder. It's sassy, sure—but as tame to your touch as a purring pussycat.

Try the smoothest V8 you ever put a toe to, and all the good things that go with it. Like new Turboglide—the first and only triple-turbine automatic drive (an extra-cost option). And Chevy's own special sweet and solid way of going. Stop by your Chevrolet dealer's. . . . Chevrolet Division of General Motors, Detroit 2, Michigan.

WANT TWO NIMBLE TONS of Fresh New Fashion?

THIS beauty is a 1957 Buick — and you can readily see the outward and inward things that make it such a joy.

Like the way its styling is clean and bold and fresh — with every line accenting a low-sweep silhouette.

Or its surprising roominess inside for a car so low — full legroom — ample hiproom — plenty of headroom.

Yet this only sets the scene for what's to come.

It's when you put this sleek Buick through its obedience tests that you learn what's really the dream car to drive.

It begins with a great new Buick performance team — the mightiest and highest compression V8 on the Buick record books — harnessed to an advanced new instant response Dynaflow.*

Along with this sparkling performance comes a brand-new Buick ride — with new roadability — solid new torque-tube drive — new surety and ease of handling — even new leveled braking and greater stopping power.

So if you like your cars big — and you like them nimble — see your Buick dealer for a tryout at the wheel of a big buy, big thrill Buick. Do it this coming week.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century — optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

BIG THRILL'S BUICK

SPECIAL — CENTURY — SUPER — ROADMASTER

When better automobiles are built Buick will build them

Plenty of Ginger
Behind This Glamor*

You tell yourself: "Now that's a smart-looking car!"
And do you know why?

Because it is just that—long and low and sweepingly graceful—styled for newness to be bold and fresh, not flamboyant.

So you find yourself going for the good looks of this bright new Buick—and you explore a little more.

That's when the excitement goes way down deep.

That's when you're behind the wheel—feeling the instant response of that new Variable Pitch Dynaflo[®]—now so full-range and flexible in "Drive" even without switching the pitch, your need for "Low" is practically eliminated.

It's a new kind of performance, sparked by the brilliant new obedience of a big 364-cubic-inch V8 engine with the highest horsepower, compression and foot-pounds of torque in all Buick history.

Then you find out even more.

You brake to a stop—even a quick one—and you realize that you and the car stay on the level. That's Buick's new levelized braking virtually ending the down-in-front dip cars have had to live with up to now.

You go around curves and corners with the confidence of a cat on carpet. No slew. No sway. Like a train on tracks. That's Buick's combination of ball-joint suspension, a new low center of gravity, and a unique front-end geometry giving you the easiest handling and surest cornering you've ever had.

You go on and on—and get happier and happier.

For you're bossing an automobile that's completely new, from wheel covers to lower roof line. New in styling, new in power, new in performance, new in ruggedness, new in safety.

Go feel the real thing. Go visit your Buick dealer and take the wheel of a '57 Buick. Do it today.

THE MIGHTY CHRYSLER WINDSOR TWO-DOOR HARDTOP WITH YEARS-AHEAD TORSION-AIRE SUSPENSION AS STANDARD EQUIPMENT

ONLY CHRYSLER GIVES YOU SO MUCH FOR SO LITTLE!

Here is the car that changed the "look" of motoring, with styling other cars will be imitating for years to come. Here is the car that changed the "feel" of motoring with Torsion-Aire Ride, the greatest engineering improvement of the year.

When you visit your Chrysler Dealer and drive the Chrysler Windsor, it may also change a lot of your ideas about fine car value. This is a prestige car by every standard of quality, yet you can own it for the cost of most medium-priced cars.

One other thing to remember . . . its resale value is at an all-time high. Better looks, better performance, a better buy and a better trade-in. That's why it's the biggest winner in Chrysler history. See your Chrysler Dealer now!

New kind of baby for the Doctor

The whole town knew the "Doc" was going to like the new Ford we gave him . . .

For here was a new kind of car that was built for his kind of driving. One that was longer, lower and roomier than many higher priced cars. One whose "inner car" was built so solidly that even those old back roads on the edge of town would seem like airstrips!

One whose Thunderbird V-8 helped set 458 performance and endurance records at Bonneville, would easily let him make emergency calls in stride.

What we didn't know was that "Doc" had already ordered a new Ford Station Wagon!

(But underestimate the power of a woman? Never! His missus made him keep both!)

This new Fairlane 500 Club Victoria is one of two sizes that Fords come in this year. Like all Fairlane and Fairlane 500 models it stretches out over 17 feet long. Ford's Custom and Custom 500 models are distinctly different. And they're over 16 feet long! Your choice is not limited to extra chrome and trim. You choose between a big car and a still bigger one. Come in and see!

It's fun to go. FORD

THE 58 FORD was proved and approved around the world! On the roads of 3 continents, the new Interceptor V-8 engine demonstrated amazing new performance.

PICTURESQUE TORTURE: Ford's tough body structure stood up superbly over the long, wrenching grind on the worst "car killing" trails we could find.

BOULDER BOULEVARD: Over roads never really improved since Roman Empire days the 58 Ford showed an all-new kind of riding comfort and smooth, sure handling.

STYLE IN PARIS: Everywhere people saluted the new, high-fashion look of the 58 Ford.

Nothing newer in the world

The 58 Ford is not only new in exciting beauty... it's new in everything that matters most in a truly modern car!

From its graceful new Power-Flow hood and Safety-Twin headlights to its sculptured rear deck - this Ford sets the pace with the world's most modern styling.

Its new Interceptor V-8, with Precision Fuel Induction, is the greatest V-8 engine advance in 25 years. And when it's teamed with optional, new Cruise-O-Matic Drive, you can get up to 15% more gas economy.

In every Ford model, you get new Magic-Circle Steering that makes steering as easy as pointing. And you can literally ride on air with Ford's optional new Ford-Aire Suspension.

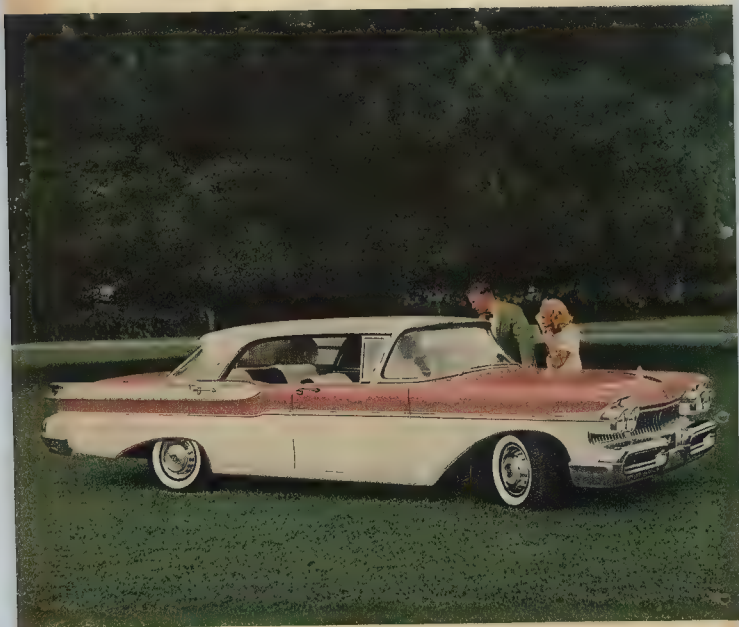

See your dealer; see the car that conquered the world to prove itself to you.

The Aluma Craft Super C is a deluxe aluminum runabout

ALUMA CRAFT ANNOUNCES A 15-FOOTER

► All Aluma Craft boats have been redesigned this year for greater strength and smoother, drier riding. An entirely new model is the Super C, a 15' deluxe runabout with a recessed forward deck. It steers with a wheel in the after cockpit. A wrap-around windshield, running lights, and a convertible top are optional equipment. It is certified for outboard motors up to 60 hp.

Other models on which improvements have been made are the F-57 and the FD. Both are open boats, the F-57 being 13'11", and the FD 14' long. New horizontal and bow ribs and transverse stiffeners give these boats additional strength. They are offered in natural aluminum finish or in three color combinations.

ALUMA CRAFT BOAT CO., 2633 27th Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn

MARMAC STEERING CONTROLS

► Marmac Dynaflex steering for inboards is available in models suitable for pleasure and commercial craft up to 50' long or more. They drive from the steering wheel through a rack and pinion which transmits control through heavy-duty push-pull cable to a stainless steel member on the steering arm.

Marmac's outboard steering system has been redesigned, with modernized steering wheel and new linkage. Tube housing and steering shaft housing are brass, to prevent corrosion, weather-exposed parts in the transom area are stainless steel, and the linkage has Alemite lubrication fittings. The steering ratio has been increased from 2½ turns to 3; for full 40-45 degree turning radius. Quarter-inch push-pull cable is used. Marmac controls are now available for side-mounting.

Engineered all new from the crankshaft up ...the most powerful V8 in Buick history

WHEN we say new we mean new.

This 1957 Buick power plant is newly conceived, newly built—to power the newest car in Buick annals.

We aimed to make this the mightiest and most responsive Buick V8 engine yet. So we gave it a 364-cubic-inch capacity—up to 400 foot-pounds of torque, up to 10.1 compression. We gave it larger pistons. A stronger crankshaft. A new “head.” A hotter spark. A more efficient carburetor. A new air cleaner. New nodal-point mounts to shush vibration. New, larger exhaust ports for easier “breathing.” We even gave this great Buick engine a new rustproof fuel line...

But most important of all, we developed an advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflo* to feed Buick's record-high power to the rear wheels—a transmission that delivers a smooth and instant response like none ever did until now.

Here, in fact, you now have greater starting response—a fuller margin of safety—than you ever had before—and you can still switch the pitch for that all-out safety-burst of power when the need demands.

So treat yourself to a trial run in the sleekest Low-Sweep Buick ever built. Sooner you visit your Buick dealer, the sooner you can get your order in for the newest Buick yet.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

Quick starting and Anti-Flood Designed Engine

This powerful, supreme quality, Clinton, available on-coated gasoline engine with dual proof, moisture-proof, high output magnets and sealed ignition points gives positive quick starts in any weather. Another plus in quick starting... the exclusive Clinton Recoil Starter needs only a minimum pull and prevents compression kickback. Contoured dome and perling plus hot fire igniter prevents flooding.

Grouped Controls

All controls are grouped for instant response to simple fingertip operation. Maximum safety provided by positive "ON-OFF" on top.

Series 94-1 available with 16", 20" and 26" guidebars. Also available with flex-type carburetor (D3-1).
Series 92-1 available with foot-type carburetor and 16" and 26" guidebars. Also available with diaphragm carburetor (D32).
Series 577-1 available with 20", 26", 30", 36" and 42" guidebars or 14" and 18" bows. Available with 1/2" and 5/8" pitch chain.
Series 323A available with 20", 26", and 30" standard guidebars. Available with 1/2" pitch chain.

THE ONLY CHAINSAW WITH THE 15 MINUTE ENGINE REPLACEMENT

This means you never need an expensive, time-wasting engine overhaul. You simply bring your chainsaw to your Clinton Service Center and, in the time it takes to drink a couple of cups of coffee, the trained Clinton Servicemen install a brand new engine. He gives you liberal trade-in for your old engine unit, too.

SHOP TIPS

FOR EASY DRILLING, make a drill bit gauge to keep the cutting point angled at 59 degrees from the center. Two hexagonal nuts welded together on a handle make a gauge that fits on the drill point to give you the correct angle, says Ken Hadenfield, Buena Vista Co., Iowa.

LETS YOU SEE OUT the rear window. Fasten a screen door spring under your car's trunk lid. When you can't close the lock, hook the spring to the latch wall so the lid won't flop up. When not in use, hook spring up out of the way. L. Finley, Ohio.

SAVES SCRUBBING. Fill an old window spray bottle with turpentine and keep in shop; give your hands a squirt to clean off grime. H. L. Johnson, S. D.

EASY WAY TO SOLDER ALUMINUM. Heat the aluminum hot enough to melt down a pool of ordinary solder. Then use a piece of steel wool to scrub the molten solder into the hot metal. This actually tins the aluminum so solder will stick. H. E. Moody, N. Y.

SHOCK-PROOF electric fence tester. Wrap rubber tape around an old spark plug, then short across from the wire to a steel post. Tester is small enough to carry around in your pocket, says Wallace Freed, Grundy Co., Iowa.

TO DRY WET WIRES and plugs on your car, truck or tractor, borrow your wife's hair dryer. It will dry the whole ignition system in about five minutes. Sure beats wiping wires with a rag, or pushing the stalled vehicle, says Curtis Miller, Erie Co., Ohio.

New Help for Lung Cancer.

Supervoltage radiation looks like the most promising of new treatments when cancer of the lung has gone beyond surgical help. Of 84 patients who received it, 63 showed benefits within three months. Twenty-four were alive an average of 12 months after treatment, 19 of them completely free of symptoms. (National Cancer Institute report of work by Dr. Ruth J. Guttman, Columbia Univ.)

Surgery—and Home Again.

Going home quickly after an uncomplicated operation is not only less expensive, but convalescence at home is more pleasant and recovery is often faster. So report two doctors who for ten years have sent patients home—usually on the third day after uncomplicated appendix, hernia, thyroid and similar operations.

A patient without other infection can do better at home, if there's someone there to watch over him and a family doctor available to check up, they report.

Peter Tumbledown

The township highway department has recently put black-top on the road past Peter Tumbledown's farm, and this solves Peter's problem as regards getting into town. There remains the problem of getting his old car from the wagon shed to the road, which problem in rainy weather is practically insoluble. The road superintendent unwisely drove in to talk with Peter about something recently, and they had to get a tow-truck to pull him out.

How a Clinton Chainsaw featuring Straight line cutting handles and operates better

SEE AND FEEL THE CUTTING DIFFERENCE

The words "Straightline Cutting" mean nothing to you until you try a Clinton Chainsaw yourself. You must experience and be able to compare the clear virus cutting—the ease of handling—the perfect tow balance of a Clinton. 3 models to choose from—both direct drive and reduction belt drive with patented TORSION DRIVE.

The Direct Drive Clinton feeds itself through the wood—no heavy pressure needed. The Clinton with Reduction Belt Drive lets you apply all the leverage or pressure you want in the cut. Patented TORSION DRIVE absorbs tremendous load shocks preventing engine damage and sudden load shocks.

Check the features below—then try the Clinton of your choice and see the cutting difference for yourself.

- ▼ QUICK STARTING ▼ FAST CUTTING
- ▼ LIGHTWEIGHT ▼ BALANCED
- ▼ EASY HANDLING ▼ LOW CUTTING
- ▼ TESTED, PROVED ▼ SERVICE EVERYWHERE
- ▼ REPLACEMENT ENGINE

Quick starting and Anti-Flood Designed Engine

This powerful, supreme quality, Clinton jewelled air-cooled gasoline engine with dust-proof, moisture-proof, high output magnets and sealed ignition points gives positive quick starts in any weather. Another plus in quick starting—the exclusive Clinton Recoil Starter needs only a minimum pull and prevents compression lockback. Contoured dome and porting plus hot fire ignition prevents flooding.

Grouped Controls

All controls are grouped for instant response to simple fingertip operation. Maximum safety provided by positive "ON-OFF" switch.

Series D4-1 available with 16", 20" and 26" guidebars. Also available with fixed-type carburetor (D3 1).

Series D2-1 two blade with fixed type carburetor and 16" and 20" guidebars. Also available with diaphragm carburetor (D2D).

Series S77-1 available with 20", 26", 30", 36" and 42" guidebars or 14" and 18" bows. Available with 1/2" and 9/16" pitch chains.

Series 322A available with 20", 26", and 30" standard guidebars. Available with 1/2" pitch chain.

THE ONLY CHAINSAW WITH THE 15 MINUTE ENGINE REPLACEMENT

This means you never need an expensive, time-wasting engine overhaul. You simply bring your chainsaw to your Clinton Service Center and, in the time it takes to drink a couple of cups of coffee, the trained Clinton Servicemen install a brand new engine. No guess, no liberal trade in for your old engine unit, too.

"$2,128 Net Profit from 180 Cords of Pulpwood" Homelite Chain Saw

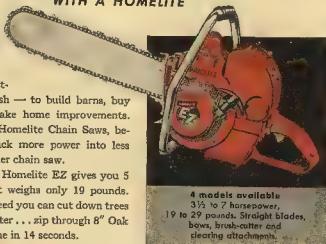

Mr. Donald B. Roberge of Rice Lake, Wisconsin used a Homelite Chain Saw in his spare time to cut 180 cords of pulpwood from his 160 acre woodlot. He received $2,500 for the wood which, after deducting $372 for skidding, hauling, maintenance and depreciation, left him a big net profit of $2,128. With this extra income, Mr. Roberge plans to build a new barn for his dairy farm.

MAKE YOUR WOODLOT A NEW SOURCE OF PROFITS WITH A HOMELITE

Farmers all over America are harvesting woodlots for cash — to build barns, buy new equipment, make home improvements. And they're using Homelite Chain Saws, because Homelites pack more power into less weight than any other chain saw.

For instance, the Homelite EZ gives you 5 full horsepower, yet weighs only 19 pounds. With direct drive speed you can cut down trees up to 3 feet in diameter . . . zip through 8" Oak in 5 seconds, 18" Pine in 14 seconds.

4 models available

through any resting period. It may solve some of our dormancy problems in other crops too, bulbs particularly," says UCLA scientist H. C. Kohl.

Treatment with gibberellic acid also promises to replace the cold weather needed to develop flower parts in biennial crops such as beets and carrots. UCLA researchers will try it on the McIntosh apple which does poorly in California's warm climate.

Another possible use may be to stimulate fruit setting without pollination. Tomatoes, cucumbers and eggplant, sprayed while in bloom, set fruit earlier and more abundantly, reports S. H. Wittwer, Michigan researcher. So the hormone might be a real help when cool weather keeps bees in their hives.

British researchers report that gibberellic boosts the sugar content in wheat plants. U. S. scientists hope that it may sweeten sugar beets, too.

Oddly enough, gibberellic acid is obtained from a fungus disease related to alfalfa wilt. To get it requires a tricky fermentation process similar to, but considerably more complicated than that used to get penicillin. You won't be able to buy gibberellic acid until manufacturing methods improve.

"As recently as last June, we could get barely enough to run a few experiments," says Lawrence Rappaport, University of California vegetable crop specialist. At least three firms—Eli Lilly and Co., Chas. Pfizer and Co. and Merck and Co., Inc.—are offering increasing amounts to research workers.

Gibberellic acid first came along just three years ago. It was the discovery of B. E. Cross, an English scientist, and F. H. Stodola of the USDA Regional Laboratory at Peoria, Ill.

Surprisingly, gibberellic acid may be the stepping stone to other, natural growth hormones. UCLA scientists have now recovered growth stimulators from peas and beans that they bought in a local super market. These natural hormones act like gibberellic acid to increase growth in corn!

What's more, the California scientists have discovered similar growth boosters in young seeds of avocado, corn, wild cucumber, lupine and plum.

No effects on humans have been observed from use of these hormones. Nor are plants overly sensitive to varying concentrations. For example, Rappaport slugged tomato plants with gibberellic acid concentrations as high as 4,000 parts per million—400 times the normal dose—without harming them.

This season, scientists hope to find out whether they can increase the yields of grains and forages. They may also come across the answer to that age-old riddle: What makes a plant grow? End

TWO NEW HOMELITE 6-Horsepower Power Twins!

Lightest, most powerful direct drive chain saw made. Full 6 horsepower ups through 8" oak in 4 seconds, 18" pine in 14 seconds. Fells trees up to 5 feet in diameter. Its light 19 pounds are easy to handle, easy to operate. Does every kind of farm cutting job... cutting cordwood, fenceposts, hedgerows, pruning orchards, turning woodlots into cash crops and building lumber.

Most versatile chain saw you can own. The 6 horsepower makes quick work of felling trees up to 7 feet in diameter. Cuts through 20" trees in 18 seconds. Full line of attachments lets you convert easily from straight blade to plunge cut bow, brush-cutter or clearing attachment. No other chain saw offers so much for your money.

did a pump repair job for a psychiatrist, and enjoyed it. He was such an interesting conversationalist. Listened to everything I said!

The variety of jobs I get suits me just fine, after those years on the farm and in the depot. Occasionally I take on a new kind of service work just to keep things interesting. I took factory training to service these new-fangled electronic ranges that bake a potato in two minutes and a cake in ten. I also got into installing and servicing oil heaters and furnaces—installing in the summer and servicing in the winter.

I find that city people are nice, friendly souls, but really quite helpless about fixing things. They're willing to pay good prices to have you do things for them, and don't seem embarrassed not to know how. And those who do know how probably don't have the tools or materials they need.

I make a minimum of $3.50 an hour and often $6, with an occasional day running up to $60. And I don't see why other farmers who like people and like a little variety couldn't do the same—maybe as a sideline—because farmers are "handy men" by necessity. They can repair most anything with a saw, hammer, pliers, screwdriver, wrench, and maybe a welder. I know a lot of them are as skilled as I am.

I get twice as many calls for my services as I can accept. I turn them over to friends in the service business.

Now don't think that all I do is work. Far from it. We go deep-sea fishing several times a year. Those salt-water fish sure taste good, and usually they're so big that one will provide several meals.

We do lots of things we never did back home. On a hot day out mowing the lawn, I wear nothing but shorts and sneakers, exposing my knobby knees to a good sunbathe. Back home I'd never even think of going without my shirt where people could see me.

Getting up at 3 a.m. to drive to the beach for breakfast as the sun comes up is another way to add novelty to living. When you retire, I say think up something unusual, even outlandish, to do every day. It's important to get out of that lifelong rut.

Take my organ playing. I had always wanted an organ and finally found a $4,000 Wurlitzer that had been in a church fire. I got it for $150.

Out in my shop I peeled and scraped off charred wood, sanded smoke stains off the keys, replaced a lot of burned wires, made an organ bench and sat down to it. A few faint squeaks was all I got. Then I sent for a service book and traced the wiring circuits. Soon I got fat music, but not very

“$1,827 Net Profit in 68 Days of part time Cutting” Homelite Chain Saw

With his Homelite Chain Saw, Mr. Henry L. Hughes of Table Grove, Illinois cleared 40 acres of land and cut 4,000 fence posts in just 68 days of part time work. Mr. Hughes sold the posts for $2000. His total expenses — including skidding, hauling, maintenance and depreciation on his Homelite — were only $172.90, leaving a net profit of $1827.10. In addition to this profit, Mr. Hughes will plant the cleared land for an extra annual cash crop.

HARVEST YOUR WOODLOT the HOMELITE way

With a lightweight, high-powered Homelite you can turn your woodlot into a new source of profits quickly . . . and have the cash for those needed repairs, new buildings or new equipment.

For instance, the Homelite EZ — the world's lightest, most powerful direct drive chain saw — packs 5 full horsepower into only 19 pounds. With it you'll cut down trees up to 3 feet in diameter . . . and it will only take 5 seconds to cut through 8" Oak, 14 seconds through 18" Pine.

Jeff Was a Mind-Reader

heard a sound. But suddenly Jeff rushed from beneath the table as if aware of the coming doom. The screen door slapped behind him as he darted into the yard and down toward the barn.

Our father went to the door, and then gave a little yell. "Those geese!" he cried. "Those contaminated bloody geese!" And he took off like a horse.

Jeff had scattered the geese by the time our father swept Prissy into his arms. Prissy, shrieking with terror, was more frightened than harmed, but the back of her head and neck bore ugly little welts where the geese had punished her for coming too close to their nests.

"Mama!" father said angrily, "if you don't keep those contaminated geese of yours penned up, I'll skin them all alive!"

But after it was all over, and the fright and anger had blown away, there was still the great wonder as to how Jeff had known.

"Must be able to hear out of that half ear better than most," the hired man said.

Father wasn't satisfied with that answer. "It was too far for the rest of us to hear," he said. "Looks to me as if he knew without hearing."

The incident and Father's comment received little more thought until Mother noticed that when Father went to town, Jeff went to the foot of the lane about a half hour before Father arrived home. The drive to town took a half hour by Model T Ford.

"Seems to know when you decide to start home," she said. "What time did you leave the store today anyhow?"

Father remembered that it was 11:30.

"It was 11:30 when he got up and went down the lane," she said. "I know because I was worrying about whether you were going to make it for dinner or not."

In later years, when Jeff had acquired enough independence to venture from home sometimes, we had a still more remarkable chance to study his incredible talent for wireless telegraphy. To come home from the village, we had a choice of two roads. Starting from the same corner at the Methodist church, the Town Line ran north and west and the Bay road ran north and east. Five miles out of town, the two roads were roughly three miles apart, and our farm was located halfway between.

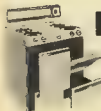

Father's decision as to which road to patronize generally depended upon which had the fewer mudholes or snowdrifts. But Jeff always seemed to know which way he would come. He would trot down the side road at the appointed time, either to the Town Line corner, or to where the side road el-to take on the toughest jobs the farm or woods can offer.

Speed

to cut through 8" trees in seconds.

Safety

for a man doing a man-size job.

Simplicity

for men who are too busy to waste time with delicate parts.

New Pioneer 5-hp RA chain saw was woods-engineered to give it maximum dependability and long, trouble-free life on rugged jobs

But having them makes mighty good sense

If you've ever used a really good tool, you know why it makes sense to get this woods-proved Pioneer chain saw for every outdoor use.

Take its ruggedness. Even in routine use, it means you save money in repair bills. And it means you won't have to pamper it, either.

Or take its speed. It comes from a direct drive (no gear train) between engine and chain. This faster cutting, of course, means smoother cutting, with less ripping and splintering.

The extra safety built into the Pioneer was to protect professional chain saw users. But it can be mighty comforting for any man, especially if there are children around.

The Pioneer had to be simple, too. The professional who earns money with his saw has no time for delicate adjustment of complicated parts. That means, you never have to worry, either. Pioneers are fully guaranteed by Outboard Marine Corporation, makers of famous Johnson and Evinrude outboard motors and Laurel-Bay power mowers.

There are actually 24 woods-proved features built into this Pioneer. We'd like you to get the solid feel of what they mean to you by action-testing the Pioneer for yourself. We invite you to try a free demonstration at your Pioneer dealer's.

DEALERS: DIRECT FACTORY-TO-YOU DEALERSHIPS ARE AVAILABLE IN SOME AREAS. WRITE FOR INFORMATION.

Firewood tool The new Pioneer can pay for itself in firewood cutting alone.

Brush clearer Many Pioneer owners pay for their saw in one season doing their own clearing!

Builder Pioneer's smoother cutting makes it perfect for building a fence, lean-to, or shed.

What Can You Do with a Worrier?

• • • Don't get me wrong. My husband is a wonderful man. But he's such a worrier that he's got us all on edge. Even the children stop playing when he comes in from the barn.

RE-RING FOR SPRING!

Now is the time to re-power your farm engines by installing PC 2-in-1 chrome piston rings

It's a grand and glorious feeling to know that your farm engines are in tip-top condition—ready to do their powerful best work—when spring rolls around again. That's why it's smart to prepare for next year's farming right now by installing Perfect Circle 2-in-1 Chrome piston rings.

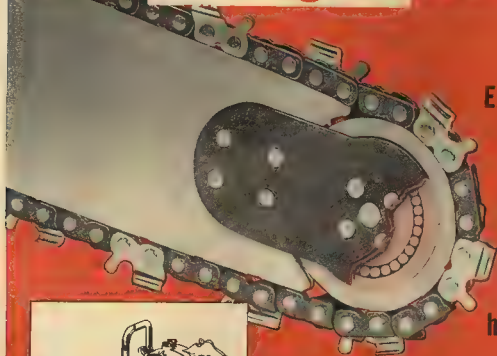

Perfect Circles perform better under the rugged demands of farming because both the top rings and the oil rings are plated with thick, solid chrome that resists wear—more than doubles the life of cylinders, pistons and rings. This means more work time—less shop time! For sustained power with lasting oil economy it pays to install PC 2-in-1 Chrome piston rings with every engine overhaul! full of spunk...

but beautifully behaved... the '57 Chevy!

It doesn't just look sweet, smooth and sassy... it is! You get sports car control behind the wheel... a solid, sure-footed feel on the road, smooth and easy response to every command.

When you design sports car handling into a passenger car, then drop in the industry's most advanced, most talked-about V8 engine; you've got a car that's noticeably different from any other on the road. That's the new Chevy! Its pep and easy handling make it fun. Safer, too. It's spacious inside, daring in design outside. But still it's a stickler for tradition, and in the grand Chevrolet manner it's known to be as trouble-free as that totem pole!

Drive a new Chevy, one with the exact power you prefer (h.p. goes up to 245*). With triple-turbine Turboglide, too, the newest and smoothest of all automatic drives (an extra-cost option). Your dealer will gladly arrange it... Chevrolet Division of General Motors, Detroit 2, Michigan.

*270-h.p. high-performance V8 also available at extra cost. Also Ramjet fuel injection engines with up to 383 h.p.

The new Bel Air 2-Door Sedan with Body by Fisher—one of 20 new Chevrolets.

Exclusive Micro-Shear Cutter head —does both chopping and blowing

This highly efficient cutter head helps give the "800" its giant capacity, getting maximum use of its horsepower. Straight knives are mounted at an angle on a cylinder for faster, cleaner chopping. Not a lawn mower-type cutter head. Permanently mounted sharpener is standard equipment—sharpens knives in less than five minutes without removing them.

... but remember

LINOLEUM:

- needs continual waxing
- isn't very easy to install yourself
- must be waterproof around sink and seams so wood underneath can't absorb moisture
- will dry out, fade and deteriorate from use of soaps, detergents
- will show heat rings and scorch
- will fade in direct sunlight

VINYL:

- will blister and get sticky if you set a hot skillet on it
- will cut, scratch and indent more easily than linoleum
- does stain from bluing, grape juice, dyes, alkalines (such as drain cleansers, ammonia, disinfectants)—though resistant to most other stains

LAMINATED PLASTICS:

- have a higher initial cost
- are most satisfactory when bonded to wood core at factory and are installed by a skilled workman
- may warp unless well installed
- show knife marks and can be scratched by rough utensils

CERAMIC TILE:

- is hard, rigid, and noisy
- has some light reflection—if glazed
- will stain some if unglazed—joining material will stain, too
- may crack or break with heavy blow
- has high initial cost—should be installed by a skilled workman

STAINLESS STEEL:

- has high original cost
- is not resilient, quiet, or colorful
- shows scratches, fingerprints, water spots
- will dent with heavy impact
- will show discoloration from acids, alkalis (like ammonia, soft drinks)
- will conduct electricity

"My old stained and cracked counters are getting me down," Agnes Smith, right, told Dr. Elaine Knowles Weaver. "I want to replace them, but honestly, there are so many choices, I'm confused." Ohio State University's research will help her decide.

Need a new counter top?

Here are samples of the five materials you can choose from →

BY ELAINE KNOWLES WEAVER AND VELMA EVERHART

SCHOOL OF HOME ECONOMICS, OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

If you're remodeling your kitchen, you probably wonder what to use on the counter tops.

Plenty of homemakers have puzzled over this, since counters take such a beating in a farm kitchen. So we at the Ohio Experiment Station decided to help them—by testing the different types: linoleum, vinyl, laminated plastic, ceramic tile, stainless steel.

When Mrs. R. H. Smith asked us recently what would be the best counter top for the kitchen in their Franklin Co., Ohio home, we couldn't give her a pat answer. But perhaps our discussion will guide you, if you

Mrs. Smith's kitchen has 92 square feet of counter and splash-back. Here are approximate costs of new tops—including labor. (Price estimates will vary with patterns and quality you choose and section of the country you live in.) Linoleum: $100 to $150. Vinyl: $90 to $140. Laminated plastics: $175 to $375. Ceramic tile: $375 to $425. Stainless steel: $1500 to $1800.

Desirable qualities...

LINOLEUM IS:

- very resilient—deadens sound
- self-sealing—cuts seem to "heal"
- durable if well installed
- flexible for continuous splash-back
- stain-resistant if kept waxed
- economical in price
- a non-conductor of electricity

VINYL IS:

- resilient—deadens sound
- flexible for splash-back
- unaffected by soap, detergent
- resistant to food stains
- unaffected by direct sunlight
- easily installed by amateur
- reasonable in price
- a non-conductor of electricity

LAMINATED PLASTICS ARE:

- non-porous with glasslike surface
- remarkably resistant to stains, acids
- easily cleaned and cared for
- extremely durable under hard wear
- suitable as facing for counter edge—eliminates metal edging (but labor costs are higher)
- non-conductors of electricity

CERAMIC TILE IS:

- durable, with smooth, hard surface
- easily cleaned when installed with minimum joining material exposed
- resistant to all stain if glazed
- unaffected by heat
- resistant to ordinary scratching
- a non-conductor of electricity

STAINLESS STEEL IS:

- durable for a lifetime—won't break, chip or crack
- non-absorbent hard surface
- unaffected by heat
- seamless when molded to fit counter by special order
- more reasonable in price when flat sheets are used; can be installed by family handyman felt obligated to promote the company's product by trying to teach sailors to drink water. The family nature of the Indianapolis organization and the hazards of inexperience made the ban against alcohol highly desirable. This ban, however, did not extend to entertaining in nearby homes of members.

Racing for everybody was the order for the club's first Labor Day weekend, a handicap regatta open to all boats being scheduled. The race committee furrowed its brows over books on handicapping, juggled slide-rules, and came up with handicaps which everybody accepted more or less happily. For three furious days some 50 boats of all shapes and sizes plowed around the race course, and everybody got enough racing to talk about during all of the coming winter. But the next weekend it was revealed that the Snipe fleet had invited all of its playmates from throughout the central states to come for a round of races, and the club rocked with another roaring regatta, complete with sudden storm and with three Snipes, a Thistle, and a Buck convertible turned over.

Freshening fall winds gave the new sailors opportunity to learn more about the ways of a boat under sail and they kept at it, racing off a fall series. Final act of the season was a "Long John" regatta sailed in the chilling bluster of the first Sunday in November with "long johns" worn under foul weather gear. The Highlanders and Lightnings came into their own in this event.

Indoor "regattas" continued the Sailing Association's activities through the winter, the largest of these filling the Indianapolis Athletic Club ballroom with three hundred and fifty very happy and friendly people. Most of them had been strangers to each other in the spring but a season of sailing together had developed warm and wide-spread friendships. Many members remarked that they had gained a whole new circle of friends from their sailboats.

When winter iced the reservoir, boat kits began to go together in barns and shops. Cars stood outside in the snow while inside the garages boats were being refinished. It was learned that the sport of sailing included a lot of sanding, scraping, and painting, which also could be good sport on winter days. But the winter proved too long for a number of members to stay off the water. One group, headed by the commodore, chartered a ketch for a Virgin Islands cruise, while the vice commodore led another group to the Bahama "Out Islands."

The first birthday of the Indianapolis Sailing Assn. was celebrated at the annual meeting of all members in March with announcement of plans for enlargement of the club house and extensive improvement of sailing facilities. Membership was approaching the 300 mark, and boats numbered more than one hundred. Instead of ten thousand dollars, thirty thousand had been spent, in addition to many thousands donated in materials and labor. And instead of crying into their beer because water was so far away, Indianapolis sailors were looking forward joyously to another frenzied season of sailing right at home amid their corn fields.

P.S. Our second season came to a close with a "Long John" regatta on November 4. Three regattas for Y-Fliers, Snipes and Thistles—highlighted our season, with boats from Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, and Kentucky participating. The home fleet took quite a beating, but we had grand sailing. Rare were the weekends when there were not 40 to 50 boats competing in our own point-score races.

Membership has now stabilized at around 300, with boat owners numbering about 140. Our financial condition is sound, despite a spurge of improvements made last spring, and it looks as if sailing has come to the central Indiana corn fields to stay.

SAILING AMID THE CORN FIELDS

enced skipper, not a beginner, who was usually found in the dog house.

When June came the clubhouse stood completed and the association was ready for its formal opening. That was a day—with music and speeches, and more than 1000 members and guests milling around and piling into sailboats. Luckily there was no wind, so the only casualties were from sunburn and excess of hotdogs.

As soon as the average skipper learned to handle his boat and won his qualification card, he became possessed by the urge to race. Out he came to the starting line full of confidence and ambition. But before he turned the weather mark he discovered that sailing a boat and racing a boat were two different things, especially if he was up against the several experienced racing skippers in the club. Yet few became discouraged. They took their beatings and came back for more, eager as ever. Every week there were usually newer skippers who were worse than they were, and racing for tenth place can be almost as tense and exciting as racing for first.

The Snopes were the first racing fleet organized and had the largest nucleus of experienced skippers. In fact, they had three or four top skippers with shelves full of hardware won around the nation, making it very tough going for the poor novice who had bought a Snape. The weekends these boys were gone to regattas at Snape. The weekends these boys were gone to regattas at other clubs were the only times when a new skipper had much chance of finishing in the first five.

Thistles began appearing on the reservoir in numbers and soon went out there racing. They were practically all new boats, evenly matched, and all sailed by skippers with little or no racing experience, so the outcome of each of their races was highly uncertain. They had themselves a terrific time.

The Lightnings were all old boats, gathered in from lakes to the north where they had been sailed for several years. Some would go and some wouldn't, but in both speed groups were three or four that were evenly matched, and a good skipper in a bad boat could give a battle to a green skipper in a better boat. They, too, had some hard fought races whenever summer breezes hardened.

Outside of these three classes there was a numerous miscellany of boats—C Scows, Y-Flyers, Penguins, Flying Dutchmen, Highlanders, Comets, and so on, only one or two in each class. Their skippers caught the racing bug too, and sometimes, when point scores weren't being counted, were permitted to race with the organized fleets. When a little Penguin with a keen skipper showed its transom to larger boats, this practice became somewhat unpopular.

Women of landlocked Indianapolis took to the water with a zest equal to that of their men. For them there was no pacing of a widow's walk, gazing to far horizons for sight of a returning sail. They were out there with the men, heaving on sheets, wrestling with dagger boards, and getting soaked with spray. Some were skippering their own boats. One was awarded the club's sportsmanship trophy for the year.

The little snack bar in the club house proved to be a popular spot crowded with night skippers and crews when the racing fleets came in. It also was quite a profitable place adding nearly one thousand very welcome dollars to the club's first year's income.

First regatta experience came when Y-Flyers from surrounding states arrived one bright Saturday morning in August. The local Y-Flyers weren't organized but regatta-wise skippers picked in and for a first regatta it was a howling success, in spite of a mast-breaking storm howling winds in the day time, howling sailors at night.

Visitors to the Indianapolis club from other yacht clubs noticed a certain peculiarity, no hot but very hot cooler. It was explained to them that since sailing on Geist Reservoir was by courtesy of the Indianapolis Water Co., the club every winter, has been primarily responsible for bringing Cuban yachtsmen into the international picture. Next to the Havana Race in point of age and length in the southern conference is the Miami-Nassau Race which began in 1934 and has continued annually except for wartime interruption. Newest in this grouping is a short race from Havana to Varadero which was begun experimentally last spring and will henceforth be one of five races in which points are amassed for the Governor's Trophy. Recent winners of this prized trophy have been the controversial Hoot Mon and the keel-centerboarder Fintsterte.

There are also in the eastern waters of the United States important coastal races, such as those from Newport or New London to Annapolis and those others in the opposite direction from the Marblehead area to Halifax and the well established Vineyard, Block Island and Monhegan Races. Thrashes of intermediate distance in partly sheltered waters are as numerous as Saturdays in a summer.

When the art editor was going through photographs to illustrate this article he asked, "How about the Great Lakes?" and was reminded that while many yachts have passed from the Lakes to take part in Bermuda and Florida races a benign Providence has not yet filled the Lakes with sea water. We therefore skip lightly over the famous long distance events of Lakes Ontario, Erie, Huron and Michigan, merely pausing to remark that the Chicago-Mackinac which was first sailed in 1893 is the oldest regularly scheduled long distance event in the world.

In the Pacific the principal ocean racing feature is, as has been said, the Honolulu Race. Its distance of 2925 miles is measured to Diamond Head on the island of Oahu from San Pedro, Calif., but it has been started in years past from other places in Southern California as well as from San Francisco.

From that city in 1939 the cutter Blitzon, from the East Coast, won.

In the racing to Honolulu the trans-Pacific Yacht Club does not impose the top limit which obtains in Bermuda racing, and the 63-foot w.l. (96 feet o.a.) ketch Morning Star has been able to attain speeds that seem phenomenal to us contestants in the so-called nasty weather belt. For example, when rigged as a schooner Morning Star sailed from San Pedro to Diamond Head in 1949 in 10 days and 10 hours, while as a mast-head-rigged ketch in 1955 she knocked 19 hours off her record and in so doing averaged better than 240 miles a day for nearly 10 days. For a comparison that will permit us fully to appreciate the swiftness of this passage it is necessary to go back more than 50 years to the trans-Atlantic race for large yachts of 1905, which was won by the three-masted schooner Atlantic.

Atlantic's waterline length was 135 feet. Her best day's run was 341 miles—the greatest distance ever sailed by a yacht from noon to noon. Her passage of the ocean for which she was named was faster than has been attained by any other sailing vessel—yacht or merchantman. And yet her best nine consecutive days gave her a daily mileage which was virtually identical with that of a yacht of half her waterline length. Morning Star, designed and built by the Italian family of Marinovich who have not otherwise distinguished themselves in the annals of ocean racing—may be hailed as a star of the first magnitude.

There were 50 finishers in this Honolulu Race—an all-time record for the series—and it was historically notable in at least two other respects. For one thing it was won for the second time in a row by the ketch Staghound, and for another the top four places in the fleet were divided among the four classes—which bespeaks pretty good handicapping. Such an equal distribution of the honors is rarely achieved in ocean racing, although it was approached in the 1956 Bermuda Race when the first three places went to representatives of three of the four classes. In that race, however, the corrected time of the remaining class winner was surpassed by several boats in the other classes.

In 1925, there was a race of four yachts from San Francisco to Papeete on the island of Tahiti and that event

Although blue water racing thrived in the early Thirties on both coasts of America it suffered a relapse in England. Three American yachts went over for the Fastnet in 1933 (the event had been made a biennial to alternate with the Bermuda Race after 1931) and had it not been for them British participation would have dwindled to two starters. But the late Charles E. Nicholson, England's most famous designer, met the overseas challenge by entering a boat of his own design and so made it three apiece. The number of British boats again shrank to two when one of them started her motor to avoid being drifted on the rocks.

Spurred on by taunts and criticism from both sides of the water, British owners began to get busy and in the race following produced 13 starters. In 1955, the year of the Fastnet's latest running, more than 30 Britishers, together with participants from Sweden, Holland, France, Spain, Ireland and the United States, joined a record fleet of 47 starters.

Nor does this begin to tell the story of Britain's interest in the sport. Under the aegis of the R.O.R.C. the hardy yachtsmen race periodically across the Bay of Biscay, the English Channel and the North Sea, as well as up Channel and down Channel, and from late May until the beginning of September hardly a weekend goes by without its long distance race.

Before leaving the far side of the Atlantic it is worthy of note that the Swedes have the Godland Run—a Baltic event which is the near equivalent of an ocean race—and that the French and Italians put on spirited blue water events in the Mediterranean. The Portuguese have staged an ocean race out of Lisbon, while last summer the first revival of big ship racing since 1928 took place when training ships of square rig as well as fore-and-aft raced successfully from Torbay, England, to Lisbon.

The small-boat races from America to Spain, England and Norway having been mentioned in passing, we come to the fourth and latest of these truly trans-Atlantic events. This was the Newport to Marstrand, Sweden, Race which occurred in 1955 and was won by the Rhodes-designed keel-centerboard yawl Carina—which thereupon followed the example already set by the previous trans-Atlantic winners (Niña, Dorade and Stormy Weather) and won the Fastnet.

In the two decades intervening between the race to Norway and that to Sweden there had occurred a race from Bermuda to Cuxhaven, Germany, two races from Bermuda to Plymouth, England, and one race from Havana to San Sebastian, Spain. Eight German yachts and one Dutchman sailed to Cuxhaven in 1936, victory going to the German yawl Roland von Bremen. In 1950 the sloop Cohoe won the race to Plymouth from four other Britishers, and in 1952 the sloop Samuel Pepys won a slow race over the same course in competition with one American, one French and two other British yachts. The race from Havana to San Sebastian was sailed in 1951 and won by the American ketch Malabar XIII from one Cuban, one other American and one Argentine competitor. Starting the day after the start of the 1955 Swedish race and, because of the greater distance involved, lasting several days later, a second race from Havana to San Sebastian was won by the Spanish yawl Mare Nostrum, the other competition again being confined to one American, one Cuban and one Argentine entry. Commodore Rafael Posso, prime mover in these Spanish races, had scheduled a third race for next June, but has now postponed it until 1959 so that it will not conflict with a proposed race from Newport to Santander, Spain, which is being organized by the New York Yacht Club, with the Havana Yacht Club as a co-sponsor.

Although by no means the first in the field, the relatively short (284 miles) St. Petersburg-Havana Race has been sailed more often than any other salt water fixture. It began in 1930, has occurred every year except in the war years of 1942-5 and next spring will be sailed for the 24th time. The race, longest leg in the Southern Conference series which provides spirited racing

LEARN BOAT HANDLING

In fact, USPS members often render assistance during emergencies, but they do this as well-trained boatmen, not as part of any planned rescue service.

4. It does not inspect boats to see if they have the equipment required by law (the Coast Guard Auxiliary performs this service), nor does it board vessels for inspection when they are underway (only the U.S. Coast Guard may do this).

What, then, is the United States Power Squadrons?

First, it is a non-profit, educational organization, dedicated to increasing the pleasure of "pleasure boating" by teaching the principles of proper small-boat handling, seamanship, and navigation. In carrying out this program, USPS issued almost 40,000 course papers from National Headquarters for use in instructing students. Next year, it is possible that 50,000 will be enrolled in the piloting classes. These classes are free, and anyone is eligible to take the course, whether or not he owns a boat, and regardless of his previous experience, age, or sex.

Second, being a private organization, USPS has chosen to limit its membership to males who are 18 and over, citizens of the United States, and who have passed the examination given at the end of each piloting course. As a private organization, USPS reserves the right to invite prospective members into the Squadrons by selection.

This does not mean that the ladies have been completely ignored. In recent years, many Squadron auxiliaries have sprung up all over the country, with the encouragement of local Squadrons. To assist in the formation of sound auxiliaries, USPS has established a national committee which offers suggestions on starting such groups, and standard proposed by-laws.

Each year, in order to carry out the over-all program of education, each Squadron offers one, and sometimes two or more courses in piloting. These free classes often run from 10 to 14 weeks in length.

After acceptance into membership, a USPS member may go on to advanced and elective courses which include subjects such as advanced piloting, seamanship, junior navigation, such as navigation, weather, engine maintenance, and sail. These courses are open also to women certificate holders and apprentices (young men between the ages of 16 and 18).

The idea for an educational organization was born in the Boston Yacht Club in 1912 with the creation of the Power Squadron of that club. Those were the days when a yachtsman was a sailor, and everyone else was a renegade. The idea spread rapidly, other yacht clubs formed Squadrons, and the USPS was formally organized in 1914 in a meeting at the New York Yacht Club. In the intervening years, the name has remained the same, although subcommittees are joining USPS in ever-growing numbers, for they are eager for the information offered by USPS. Instruction course papers, which are revised periodically, show that many of the changes now being made are aimed at some of the specific problems of the small boat.

Traditionally, yachtsmen are self-taught. This was OK when the waters were uncrowded, in the good old days when an outboard was a modern appliance intended to replace oars. With outboard cruisers, and every harbor filled to overflowing, a knowledge of boating techniques is essential for enjoyment as well as safety.

Going to school in the winter (most classes start in the fall, and many will be registering for classes in a few weeks again) can make enjoyment of boating an all-year affair.

All USPS courses are taught by members, who themselves received their knowledge from other volunteers who went before. Piloting examinations are graded locally, but all other examinations are marked by members of national committees, with occasional outside assistance. Upon completion of piloting, a certificate is awarded. Members who go on to other courses, and pass them, have notations added to this certificate indicating their proficiency.

on the busy shore side of City Island and a lofty reputation in the yachting field for personal integrity and the quality of his work, which is the work of a perfectionist given to severe self-criticism.

It was inevitable, perhaps, that Rosie's three sons should become photographers, although he did nothing to push them into the path he had chosen. It was inevitable, too, that they should become skilled boatmen with their father's appreciation of all that the sea is and means.

The family grew up on the shore front of City Island, that rising boating community to which Morris and Esther Rosenfeld moved in 1927 from the confines of the city proper. On City Island all hands eat, sleep and talk boats whether they build, repair, supply or merely admire them.

So the boys became photographers and sailors. The daughter, Eleanor, did her bit for art in her father's office until she married—a yachtman. David, the eldest, wed a sea captain's daughter and was lured away from his Dad's shop to set up and administer a course in the practice and art of photography in New York's Metropolitan Vocational High School. He is now a spare-time member of the firm.

Stanley, who inherited many of his father's qualities, served overseas during World War II, married a school teacher and became Rosie's right bower. William, the youngest, and a war-time Coast Guard seafaring officer, married a minister's daughter and followed Stanley into the shop.

After half a century of wedded life paralleled by a career that flourished as the years slipped by, Rosie must sometimes say to herself: "I have done pretty well. I have a lovely, understanding wife, a fine family, a niche that I carved for myself in the world of yachting, and the health, enthusiasm and love for my profession to keep me going for years to come. What more can a man ask?"

What more indeed, Rosie. Congratulations!

ASSOCIATION OFFERS SERVICE TO BOATMEN

The American Yachtsmen's Association of Annapolis, Maryland and Washington, D. C. has completed five years of active and aggressive service on behalf of the American boating public. The Association now numbers nearly 2,000 members from forty-one states, as well as all U. S. territories and several foreign countries. The membership roster includes boating enthusiasts ranging from able-bodied seamen on large tankers to operators of 8' sailing dinghies, from non-boat owners to marine operators and owners of some of the world's finest ocean yachts.

In its widespread legislative activities, which have been conducted at national, state and local levels, the American Yachtsmen's Association has represented pleasure boating interests at Hearings on legislative proposals involving pollution, restriction of navigable waters, licensing, boat taxation, and many others. Surveys have been made of member opinions on many of these subjects and have been presented as forceful evidence against adverse legislative proposals. Through volunteer member monitoring, a constant watch is maintained on development of regulations and activities on all inland and coastal waterways.

Special member privileges include the maintenance of an information and research staff to assist on special personal problems ranging from organizing local yacht clubs to exporting boats, or to working passage to Japan to start a round-the-world cruise. The monthly newsletter offers the latest developments in pleasure boat activities, and members buy and sell boats and equipment through its Swap Column. Worthwhile savings are available on insurance and merchandise procurement. Hard-to-find items are located around the world. Member's chart service insures receipt of up-to-date charts and assistance in cruise planning, with the names of recommended marinas is also among the many other services available through membership.

public during her stay at San Francisco, and she was greatly admired by the many who trod her decks. A similar vessel, the Spanish Juan Sebastian De Elcano, called at Charleston, South Carolina early in the year.

Several training schooners were to be found on the high seas. One of the most active was the Albatross, a Swedish four-masted with a staysail rig. To help cover training expenses, she carries cargo on most of her passages. She visited various Mediterranean ports during 1955. The Swedish two-masted Gladen and Falken were also on the move. The French Navy sent to sea two smallish schooners, the Etoile and Belle Poule, each carrying about thirty officer-cadets. During the summer they visited England. The three-mast schooner Flying Clipper, once the British yacht Sunbeam II owned by Lord Runciman, is now worked out by Malmo, Sweden with cadets. Built in 1929 at Dumbarton, she is 195 feet overall. The Moray Sea School of Burghhead, Morayshire, Scotland acquired the Danish three-mast schooner Peder Most, formerly of Svendborg. Built in 1944, she once was a trader in Greenland waters, and later in the Baltic and North Sea. Re-named Prince Louis by the Duke of Edinburgh, she will replace the former schooner Marie Graham which had been launched in 1878. During the dedication ceremonies, the Duke, in speaking of sail training in general, said: "I remember only too well the times when I was wet, cold, miserable, probably sick and often scared stiff, but I would not have missed that experience for anything. In any case, the discomfort was far outweighed by the moments of intense happiness and excitement."

The Germans under Russian domination have a handsome brigantine, the Wilhelm Pieck for training purposes in the Baltic. Launched at Warnemunde in 1951, little is heard of her activities as she operates behind the Iron Curtain. A number of other brigantines, not training vessels, were to be found at sea during the year. Perhaps the best known of these today is the Madalan, the Brava Packet which carries passengers and cargo between Providence, Rhode Island and the Cape Verde, making one annual round trip. In January, 1955, she was caught by a heavy gale while bound out off Nanucket. Heavy seas swept aboard, smashing her steering wheel, sweeping away her compass and stand. When her deck cargo let go, deck rails and stanchions carried away. Her sails were ripped. At some time she struck an unknown object in the water, punching a hole under her counter. Clearing weather found her a sorry sight, but her crew made repairs, and she sailed on. The spring and summer months were spent in the inter-island trade. Then, in September Madalan arrived off Breton Reef again, thirty days from Dakar. For once she was light, no cargo nor passengers, as she had not stopped at the islands on the voyage from Africa. Early in December she departed for home with eight passengers, three motor vehicles and a mixed cargo of household goods.

Consort of the Madalan, the schooner Ernestina, best remembered as the Elsie M. Morrissey of the late Captain "Bob" Bartlett, arrived at Providence also in September, after a fast run of 23 days, much of her speed due to a motor, her first in sixty years. She carried four passengers and a load of beans and flour. In recent times her captain and co-owner has been Enrique Mendes, now 76 years old. When he took his vessel away from the old Colonial Lane wharf in Providence in November, he was setting off on his 54th Atlantic crossing, this to be his last voyage to Fogo and retirement on a farm. Enrique Mendes' life at sea started before the turn of the century aboard a New Bedford whaler as a harpooner. Later he was deckhand on coastal schooners before he entered the Brava run. He served aboard fourteen different vessels, four of which sank under him. One of these, the three-mast schooner Frank Brainerd, was caught in a fierce gale 500 miles off Bermuda in December, 1936. Dismasted, wallowing in raging seas, the schooner had been a sorry sight when the Imperial Oil Com-

Everything you need plus speed!

Turn daytime leisure into cruising pleasure... take your family and friends in the day boat that guarantees the level-best ride in even choppy waters. Built on the famous Super Hy-Plane Hull* it goes at lightning speeds up to 32 miles per hour depending on engine selection. design for these parts. I think some type of surface-running propeller will be developed to bring the real possibilities of the hydrofoil boat of the future within reach.

We also have other possibilities, i.e., air propellers and jet propulsion. At a speed over 40-50 knots you will find advantages in the air-propeller and over 60-70 knots in the jet system of propulsion.

The possibilities of a real breaking through for the hydrofoil boat have become greater in the last few years. I refer to the problem of getting suitable motors. Modern motors are well adapted to this purpose. In the hydrofoil boat it is ordinarily not necessary to take out all the power.

The definite success of the 50-year-old idea of the hydrofoil boat is no longer dependent upon technical circumstances.

I envision for instance speedboats for passenger transport in this case it may be appropriate to make a comparison with the airplane. With a hydrofoil boat we can do, over the sea, all that the airplane can do—but of course in the speed range from 40-100 knots. We can do it cheaper, as the boat is cheaper than the airplane and as it can load more. The organization required is more simple, the safety factor good, and the cost less.

ORGANIZED OUTBOARDING IDEAS

Boating clubs seeking ideas for expanding their activities receive another valuable asset from the Outboard Boating Club of America, national association of outboarding enthusiasts and manufacturers and sellers of marine equipment, which has just published a new booklet, "Organized Outboarding—Activity Ideas for Outboard Boating Clubs."

The aim of this new OBC publication is to aid local boating groups in working for improved boating facilities, in conducting boating safety education campaigns, in protecting themselves from unjust and discriminatory legislation, and in getting greater enjoyment from outboard boating through their affiliation with a local club.

Nearly 100 of the most active and most successful boating clubs in the country were contacted in compiling material for Organized Outboarding. It is designed to serve as a handbook of practical and popular activity ideas that have proved to be most successful for local clubs.

Subjects covered by the booklet include club meetings, club cruises, beach parties and picnics, better boating facilities, boating safety and legislation, regattas, races and boat shows, public service activities, special events and club promotions.

GLENN MARINE DESIGNS

Both amateur and professional boatbuilders will find the plan service offered by Glen Marine Designs, Compton, California, to their liking. To meet the demand for an outboard cruiser, their latest design is of interest. This need is directly related to the fact that larger and twin motors are both popular and practical. To meet this need, they have produced a new 21' by 7'10" design under the name of Vera Cruise.

Designed for outboard power in single or twin types of from 20 hp up, the hull is of the V-bottom type, designed for planing with sheet plywood. The plan sets are offered in two ways. The one provides the necessary drawing and instructions for the amateur builder, while the other offers, in addition, full-size patterns for the stem, knee, and breasthook as well as half sections of all frames and the transom. The hull, weighing about 1200 pounds, can be readily carried on a trailer.

Go fishing in solid comfort with a hard top to shade you from the burning sun... to shelter you in a sudden shower! And get to the fishing grounds in a hurry at speeds up to 32 miles per hour depending on the engine you select. It will be a smooth ride, too, and the credit belongs to the Super Hy-Plane Hull*. It has a spacious cockpit with two steering positions, a stern tiller for inlet running and trolling as well as a forward wheel. Forward, two quarter berths make it the perfect overnighter, especially when you add the comfort extra of a marine toilet. Other extras include side curtains and cockpit cover. As a result, the various symbols connected with these courses may be worn on uniforms or displayed on boats, and thus often arouses much interest among non-members. Members who have completed AP may display a single star; Seamanship is indicated with a short bar. A member who has passed both AP and S may exhibit a star which has a bar on its left and right, similar to short dashes. Both AP and S are requisites to JN and N, and therefore JN is indicated by two stars with a bar between. Members who have passed Navigation may display three stars with the bars in between them.

It has been said that the insignia of the educational achievements show what a man has gotten out of the Squadrons, but his Merit Marks indicate what he has put into USPS. Like the man with a best and only suit of clothes, a single Merit Mark is the highest, and at the same time, the only reward that can be given for work performed during any given year. Even the Chief Commander receives a single Merit Mark, and he is proud of his as is the man who worked on the entertainment committee of a small Squadron.

Another topic of much conversation among non-members is the special flag which may be flown only by members of USPS. It looks a little like a Coast Guard ensign, and basically is designed with a fouled anchor on a red field encircled by stars; the stripes are blue, but are vertical instead of horizontal.

This flag is intended only to serve as a means of identifying the skipper of a vessel as being a member of the United States Power Squadrons. In that sense, it is somewhat similar to yacht club signals, which identify members of a specific club to each other and to yachtsmen in general. Therefore, the USPS ensign is flown from a Squadron craft only when the member is aboard, and therefore in command of his boat. Like other flags of its type, it is flown from 8:00 a.m. to sunset, and is raised and lowered according to explicit rules of etiquette.

With more than 33,000 members today, USPS has doubled in size in the past decade. However, large membership is not a goal of USPS; rather, membership has increased in an attempt to cope with the magnitude of the problem which faces all boatmen today: With so many new boats and new boatmen on the waters, what can be done to avoid confusion, accidents, and loss of life in America's greatest outdoor sport?

USPS believes the answer lies in education, that a boatman who knows what to do and why he does it will have a better accident record than an uninformed, inexperienced person. And, with almost 45 years of experience behind it, USPS looks to the future with confidence.

In a few weeks, yachtsmen all over the country will be going to Squadron classes again. Anyone interested in knowing if such free plotting classes are available in his or her vicinity is invited to write for information to National Headquarters, United States Power Squadrons, 9 West Demarest Avenue, Englewood, N. J.

The text book is Plotting, Seamanship and Small Boat Handling, published by MoTOR BOATING, 572 Madison Ave., New York 22, N. Y. The retail price is $4 per copy.

ROUGH IDLING

The various causes for rough engine idling are listed in Service Bulletin No. 104 issued by Pennsylvania Refining Company, 2686 Lisbon Road, Cleveland 4, Ohio.

According to engineering studies, the most common cause for rough idling is the accumulation of gum, dirt, and carbon deposits in the carburetor. Even small amounts of such deposits that collect around the throttle plate and in the idle air bleeds seriously affect the carburetor idle system. It generally results in a fuel mixture too rich for efficient combustion and causes excessive fuel consumption at idle speed.

According to the bulletin, periodic cleaning of the carburetor is the only practical solution. The company's bulletin points out the ease with which carburetors may be cleaned right on the engine in a few minutes' time.

BUCCANEER

Sea-safe and speedy!

Wow . . . what wonderful speed . . . up to 33 miles per hour depending on the engine you choose! Rugged, seaworthy . . . it's clinker built and designed to give a dry and level ride in open waters. You couldn't pick a better boat for fishing . . . a more comfortable boat for family parties. It's 19 ft. long with 7 ft. beam and will out-perform any boat of its size, price and class.

Tremendous cockpit has a stern seat and room for fishing chairs. There are two steering positions; a stern tiller and forward wheel. The engine box is hinged and insulated. ROSIE still in grammar school and he and four or five other boys interested in photography pooled their savings to buy a camera. Their tour of East Side pawn shops in quest of a desirable instrument that they could afford ended in Trigger's, an emporium at Third Avenue and Ninth Street which dealt in all manner of hocked merchandise.

The camera thus acquired was rotated among its owners on a weekly basis. One day, when Rosie had it, he was walking along the East River. In a long since departed shipyard at the foot of Houston Street a square-rigger ship was hauled out for repairs. "It was a cloudy day," Rosie recalls, "but every once in a while the sun would break through and shine brilliantly for a moment. I happened to hit it just right, made a picture of the square-rigger and submitted it to a magazine that was running a photo contest. I won $5 and a year's subscription to the magazine."

That was the beginning. When young Rosenfeld quit school—it was nothing in those days, he pointed out, for thirteen and fourteen-year-olds to do a man's work—he worked for an old German named Gutz on Spruce Street, who photographed on wood and copper to make plates for Gann & Company's school textbooks, it being considered in some circles that the halfpence then making their debut were hard on children's eyes.

He worked with Jimmy Haire, lugging a huge 11 x 14 box camera (the snapshot instrument of that era) and three plate-holders containing six plates around town on assignments, or speculative ventures. He free-lanced for Leslie's Weekly, for Harper's and he worked for a time with Levick. He hustled and he worked. He got some good breaks and some bad ones.

But for one of the latter he would have been there to photograph the Wright brothers' first flight at Kitty Hawk.

His friend, Jimmy Haire, told him one day that he was going down South to cover for Collier's the attempt of someone to go up in a flying machine. Rosie passed the tip to four or five magazines in an attempt to get an assignment to the event and thus guarantee his traveling expenses. "No one would believe me," Rosie said. "The guy over at Leslie's, whom I knew, told me I was nuts, or whatever they called it in those days. No one could fly, he told me. Anyhow I couldn't call the idea in anyone so I missed seeing the first flight of a heavier-than-air machine. I didn't have money enough to make it on my own."

He hasn't missed much since. He got a good break in 1906, a good one, that is, besides his marriage to the girl who later helped by working in his shop, carrying plate cases, holding lights and assisting in focusing shots.

The break came at the Russo-Japanese peace conference at Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy Yard. The throng of newsmen and photographers sent there to cover the event were barred from the conference building. A petition to the Secretaries of the Navy for permission to get up close to the work they had to do resulted in one reporter and one photographer being permitted to cover for all of them.

Rosie was the photographer selected to record history in the making, a signal honor for one so young, he felt.

Before he went into business for himself in 1910 at 116 Nassau Street, where he still holds forth, Rosie free-lanced around New York on a variety of jobs which included covering the Tong wars in Chinatown with the late George Buchanan Fyfe, doing a series of pictures for the Scouts Zeitung on the process of making blueprints, photographing the first Chinese picnic at College Point, L. I., and greeting with camera yachts racing back to Atlantic City from Bermuda in the first years of the now classic ocean test.

In the course of fifty years of never settled, never dull but always happy married life, Rosie has acquired three sons, a daughter, nine grand-children, a beautifully situated home

 last-minute report

New egg deal pays 3 to 10¢ above market

A rash of new contracts like this could turn the Midwest's back-yard flocks into big commercial poultry set-ups

ONE day recently a small classified advertisement appeared in 35 eastern Iowa and western Illinois weekly newspapers. Just four days later, 500 farmers had written in; feed dealers and egg buyers were keeping the telephone wires hot, and still others were driving over to see the man who ran the ad.

The man: Merlin Nichols, Avon, Ill., egg dealer. The ad: "Eggs wanted—will pay 3¢ to 10¢ per day over local markets for quality eggs picked up at your farm on a guaranteed basis."

With it, Nichols gave another shove to the "Egg Business in a Package" move which FARM JOURNAL first reported two months ago (November, page 36) from Kansas. Similar deals are popping up all over the Mid-west. In a nutshell, egg dealers offer premiums for quality eggs which they ship East at a profit. With the help of the egg dealer or a feed company, or both, farmers line up their buildings, birds, and equipment to zoom from a back-yard flock to a commercial poultry business overnight.

Nichols, who has been in the egg business 25 years and can handle 75,000 dozen eggs a day, promises a guaranteed market, daily pick-up at the farm, and a fixed market premium.

Each farmer, in turn, agrees to go into the egg business on a commercial scale of 1,000 to 1,600 layers or more, to follow a few rules for quality eggs, and to sell all his eggs to Nichols for five years. At the end of five years, he will own free and clear the modern laying house and equipment built under the terms of the contract.

Nichols does not financing himself—leaves it to the farmer to do his own borrowing from FHA or wherever.

The farmer has to put up the cost of the 1,200 pullet chicks he needs to start. But Arcady Farms Milling Company of Chicago finances the feed up to $1.30 a bird for their first 24 weeks in the laying house. The farmer repays this gradually out of weekly egg checks.

There's no monkey-business about the premium that Nichols pays. It's right in the contract. He signs his name to a guarantee that he'll pay "not less than 3¢ under the daily Chicago Top Market Mixed Quotations for 36 months." After that, he guarantees to raise this still further so that he'll be paying farmers no less than 1¢ under the same Chicago quotations.

What's more, the contract says that each day's quotations are to apply to the particular grades picked up at the farm and delivered that day.

Big surprise in this egg deal is that farmers do their own grading, candling, and packing right at home.

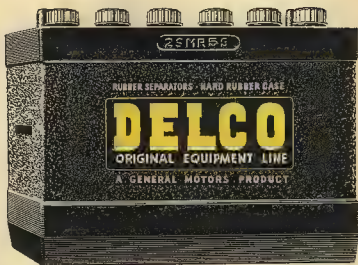

The package plan in Kansas, which guarantees farmers 37¢ a dozen for grade A large, is holding up even though prices have slid to 23¢—25¢ at country buying points. "We aim to keep right on signing contracts," says Bill Hurst of Hurst Foods Inc.

Last week poultryman Leslie Heaton, Rush County, Kan., told FARM JOURNAL that the plan is giving him $3.90 more per case than other producers are getting. That's the difference between making a little money and going in the hole," he adds. "It gives us a regular income and will be a real good set-up when the pullets are paid for after the first nine months."

Ivan Weinhold, Ellsworth County, Kan., averaged more than $10 a case for all of his eggs last month. "And nine cases out of 11 last week made grade A large."

The Kansas plan, which was started by General Mills, is still gaining momentum. "Not one of our farmers has said that he's sorry he joined the plan," says Claude Schwabe, feed dealer at Lacrosse, Kan.

General Mills now has 183 houses (goal: 600) completed or underway in Kansas, are also offering a package plan in Missouri, with a goal of 200 houses, and "are interested" in Nebraska.

Announcing two new 4-Wheel-Drives at record low prices!

Yours now . . . new full-sized low-tonnage Dodge Power Giants . . . only trucks of the low-priced 3 with both off-road pull and on-road go!

Here are two new models of the only low-tonnage 4-wheel-drive trucks offered by the low-priced three. They're built to carry a real profit-packed load, with G.V.W.'s to 8,000 pounds . . . yet they're priced right down your alley.

You get the extra dig-in traction of four driving wheels plus the power, payload capacity and exclusive features of a regular Dodge Power Giant. Take your choice of body styles—pick-up, stake or Town Wagon—with V-8 or 6 power . . . and you can even enjoy the extra convenience of a push-button automatic transmission.*

These Dodge 4-wheel-drive Power Giants can go practically anywhere off the road, and with a flick of a lever, head down the highway with 2-wheel-drive ease. Add a few accessories and you've got mobile power to lick almost any farm job that a tractor can do. But find out for yourself. Get the details from your dealer the next time you're in town.

*Available on all low-tonnage and Forward-Control models.

DODGE PowerGiants

POWER WHERE YOU NEED IT . . . Power take-off accessories let you pull stumps, dig holes . . . supply power for special farm equipment.

HAUL FULL-SIZED LOADS in your choice of full-sized bodies. Use power accessories to help you load or unload anywhere on your farm.

HIGHWAY GO . . . V-8 or 6, plus off-road traction, means new 4-wheel-drive trucks get your produce from field to market quicker.

New! See page 585 for home cabinet built-in mixer

DORMEYER "SUPER CHEF" and "POWER CHEF" From the functional top-notch performance you get, to the artistic sparkling appearance...you are sure to be thrilled with these Dormeyer "Mixers." The "Super Chef" has a luxurious oil-chrome finish and two handsome stainless steel bowls—just the right combination to add elegance to your kitchen, traditional or modern! The "Power Chef" is baked on enamel. Extra powerful...does everything faster, neater and smoother. GRINDS raw meats, vegetables, leftovers, nuts, etc. MIXES—gives lighter, higher, finer textured cakes, greater aeration. JUICES snap-on juicer gets all the juice out. Automatic beater release in the handle. Beaters pop out for easy cleaning.

Easily adjusts to the bowl size simply by turning arm to right or left depending on whether you are using a large or small bowl. This adjustment puts beater in right position to get all the batter into action. Becomes a convenient "portable," too...lift off the mixing head and mix foods in their own cooking pans.

Has ten full-powered speeds with automatic control which keeps mixing speed constant. Indicator clearly shows multiple operations no guesswork. Heavy-duty motor with built-in power drive for food grinder, juicer, slicer, shredder—just snap on and use, no adaptors needed. Automatically adjusts for light or heavy batter. AC/DC.

PLAY BUMPER POOL!

BUMPER POOL—Now . . . for the first time for home use! The fascinating game now sweeping the country in coin operated form. Official in size and play, yet folding and portable. Ideal for homes and clubs where space is at a premium. Similar in principle to the exciting action games of Hockey and Soccer, yet requiring the skill and precision of billiards. Bumper Pool can provide hours of engrossing pleasure. Capable of making exciting bank shots from rail cushions, plus tricky maneuvers of ball around and between live plastic bumpers. Legs fold under for easy storage. Bumper Pool size is 36" wide, 51" long. Comes equipped with two 48" cue sticks, a set of ten 1½" lathe turned balls, chalk, leg levelers and a book of easy to read rules. Bumper Pool can be played by two players or by four players as partners . . . using 5 white balls and 5 colored, one of each being a marked ball. The first player or team to sink all of their five balls is declared the winner. Truly, a new and exciting pastime, yet priced at a fraction of the cost of the coin operated version. F.O.B. N. Y. ► At the Eastern approach to Nassau harbour, south of Athol Island, many coral heads have recently been blasted and levelled, leaving a clear channel out to Forgee Rocks. A lighted buoy is to be installed shortly off Fort Montagu Spit so that this channel may be used by day or night.

► The handsome auxiliary ketch Aries, built some years ago by Camper and Nicholson in England, has spent some months in Nassau harbour awaiting her owner, R. J. Reynolds.

► Thompson's Yacht at Green Turtle Cay is now under the operation of Bert Roberts, of Nassau who created the picturesque Sandy Point Fishing Camp, Abaco. Managed by Neville Keyes, a number of charter fishing boats are available in addition to supplies of gas and fuel for visitors.

► Radio beacons have been operating for some time on the islands of Grand Bahama, Mayaguana and San Salvador. A new one is now being installed about 800 yards from the southern tip of North Bimini. A 90-ft. mast has been erected, surmounted by a red light, which will be a help to seafarers, even if they do not have R.D.F. At this writing a frequency has not been allocated.

► The dates of the Star Class Spring Championships in Nassau are March 30-April 6.

GULF COAST NOTES

By Gordon Gsell

► New Orleans' outstanding power boat race drivers were recognized at the recent annual award banquet of the New Orleans Power Boat Assn. High point race trophies were awarded to Joe Passalacqua, owner, and Harry Hayden, driver, of Cypress Kid in the outboard hydroplane division; to Al Moore, owner, and Sonny Kolb, driver, of Sneaking

Around in the utility class; and Jimmy Bowles, owner and driver of Brewster in the inboard class.

Hayden was also cited for being the high point amateur driver in the nation and Bowles for recently receiving certification of his world record five mile run made in a Baton Rouge, La., regatta last May. The N.O.P.A. annual sportsman award, donated by Gene Lills, a former top driver of the association, was presented to Nick Nichols. Silver life membership cards in the association were given to Dan Trazivuk and Charles Hassenboehler and special silver membership cards went to George Creevy, Joe Kilian, Ralph Clesi, Lester Surgi, Jerry Waguespack, Herman Prager, Jr.

► Walter C. Keenan, Jr., of Tulane University's sailing club won the first Tulane regatta easily with three first places Nov. 16-17. The regatta was sailed in Southern Y.C. Fish Class sloops on the S.Y.C. race course and eight college skippers turned out, in brisk breezes and rather chill temperatures. Keenan won each race by a wide margin. The regatta is planned as an annual affair since the university students have turned out in good numbers for several races and for sailing instruction at the S.Y.C.

ON COLLEGE CHARTS

By Leonard M. Fowle

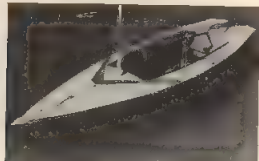

► M.I.T. retained its New England I.C.S.A. team racing championship in the Charles River Basin, Nov. 10-12 and 21. Runner-up Bowdoin gave the victors a real battle for the Leonard M. Fowle Trophy before losing, 4-2. Tech's skippers—Capt. Bill Stiles, Jim Barber, Dennis Posey, and Bill Widnall Bowdoin's were Ronnie Dyer, Dave Belknap, George "Skip" Howland, and Charlie Leighton.

► I.S.A. made experiments in conducting the '56 team racing title, including preliminaries in the very early season and taking advantage of the three-day holiday weekend to conduct additional "on-the-spot" eliminations. In order to Except...

Up to two years ago, the look-alike Solomon twins did the same things together. Even had polio at the same time.

Except...

Sandy didn't.

Even today, after some $1500 in March of Dimes help, she needs braces and crutches to get around.

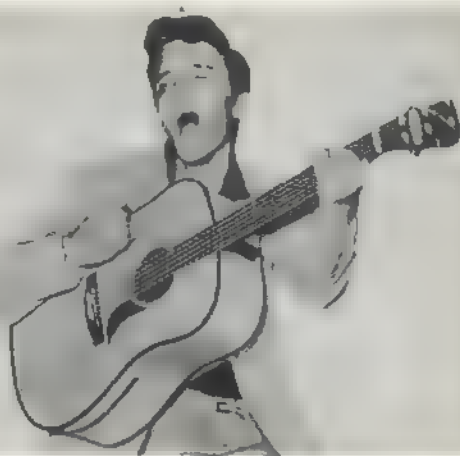

Except...

Sandy, like thousands of other polio victims, still needs a lot more treatment. She'll get it—as much as she needs. You, who made the Salk vaccine possible, can provide that care. And, what is more, your dimes and dollars will also help train the minds and hands of the professional experts so desperately needed to give it.

Elvis Presley Guitar Announced By Emenee, Two Models Offered

Youngsters can now emulate the favorite star with the new official Elvis Presley Guitar. They can play a tune almost immediately, and without lessons, on the instrument.

Equipped with Emenee's exclusive Automatic Chord Player, the teenager simply presses the button on the player marked with the number of the chord he wants and strums the guitar. The music, which accompanies the instrument and contains Elvis' favorite songs gives complete playing instructions.

The Emenee guitar is full size, three feet long with a two-tone sturdy, plastic body. It is decorated with a full-color portrait of Elvis himself, a picture of a pound dog and "tender heart" all on a "pearl" finish surface.

The guitar has a rich professional tone and gear action metal tuning pegs. It comes complete with a silk slipcover cord and neck and has a handsome luggage-type carrying case.

The four-string guitar sells for $10 and the six-string guitar for $12. Made by Emenee Industries, Inc., 200 Fifth Avenue, New York City 10, the instrument will be sold in department, music and toy stores throughout the country.

Block in Toy Center Showroom

Richard Schersch checks an order

Room 902 in the 200 Fifth Avenue Building, New York City's Toy Center, is the new sales home for Block Doll Corporation, makers of the new Answer Doll, a novel 12" miniature that reads "yes" or "no" when her head "no" when one of a pair of buttons on her body is pushed. The doll comes in three different models ranging at $1.98, $2.98 and $3.98, respectively.

An animated display piece for showing the Answer Doll in perpetual motion has been created by Sam Block, president of the company, and for 40 years a prominent figure in the doll trade scene.

Block Doll Corporation has its plant facilities at 24 Juncos Place, New York City. Richard J. Schersch and Irving J. Gaden are in charge of the new showroom.

"Fly" a real kite on the wall in a boy's room for an unusual and inexpensive decoration. Masking tape will hold the kite in place without marring the wall.—Mrs. C. F. Brackin, Georgia

To cut a cake in even slices, mark the frosting lightly with a piece of string. Hold one end of the string in each hand and stretch it across the cake. Then cut over the lines when ready to serve.—Mrs. Donald E. Taylor, West Virginia

Tack up a spring clothespin near your cleaning supplies or work bench to hold your work gloves.—Mrs. Loretta Hemmer, Nebraska

To keep brown sugar soft, empty it into a plicofilm bag and place the bag inside a canister. Then tightly fold the top of the bag down over the sugar and replace canister cover.—Mrs. Harvey Harms, Mississippi

If your clothesline prop falls down on windy days, screw a cup hook into the "V" at the top of the prop. The hook will fit over the line and hold the prop, no matter how hard the wind blows.—Vivian Kennedy, Ohio

Use your smallest measuring spoon to scoop out balls of red jelly for use as a garnish in place of marachino cherries.—Lette B. Ritchie, Wisconsin

Slide sandwiches into paper bags with a pancake turner. This keeps sandwiches with soft fillings from being crushed or forced apart.—Mrs. Hugh W. Polnow, Kansas

To prevent iron-on tape from sticking to an iron, place a smooth sheet of aluminum foil between the tape and iron.—Mrs. Esther Legg, Iowa

Eggs can be poached easily in buttered glass ovenware custard cups. Place the buttered cups in an inch of boiling water in a pan with a tight cover. The eggs can be eaten directly from the cups.—Marjorie Hannings, Pennsylvania

CUT CONCRETE OR ASPHALT WITH NEW SPEED AND ECONOMY

3 NEW MODELS

MODEL E-15—14.6 H.P.

Eveready Concrete Saws cut more concrete per hour . . . reduce costs on every job . . . whether sawing contraction joints in new construction—sawing repair patches—sawing trench openings for utility lines or plant maintenance.

SPECIFICATIONS

- Standard Blade Guard accommodates either 12" Diamond Blade, or 14" "Tuffie" Reinforced Abrasive Blade. With 12" Blade, cutting depth is 3". Nose piece of Guard is hinged to allow for sawing curb.
- "Tri-Matic" Blade Alignment prevents any binding, twisting, or tilting of the blade as the saw moves over uneven or broken surface. Provides maximum engine power to the Blade.
- "Hydra-Eze" Blade Control hydraulically lowers and raises the blade. Ponds blade smoothly into the cut. Lifts it fast and straight, without jerks or twisting.
- Mount Blade Guard and Blade on either side of saw, to cut in confined area. Saw cuts parallel up to 3½" from wall or curb.
- Handy Dashboard Controls: Water supply valve engine throttle, "Hydra-Eze" lifting handle and "Hydra-Eze" lowering level.
- Cutting depth gauge with positive lock—set it for depth of cut desired.

OPTIONAL FEATURES

- Electric Self-Starter (Model E-25 only).
- Water Pump (Model E-25 only)
- 18" Blade Guard, for cutting up to 6½" depth (all saws).
- "Powr-Drive" Unit (all saws)

MODEL E-25—25 H.P.

EVEREADY "TUFFIE"

Reinforced Abrasive Blades

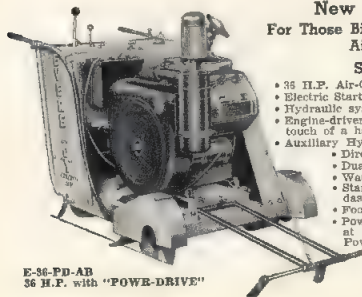

The most revolutionary advancement in the history of concrete sawing. This new low-cost 14" blade cuts perfectly uniform ¾" wide contraction joints in green concrete with favorable aggregates which may contain crushed granite, river-gravel, etc.

EVEREADY "READY-CUT"

Diamond Blades

Maximum cutting efficiency—fast cutting speed plus long blade life. There's an EVEREADY Diamond Blade specification for every age concrete, with every type of aggregate. Fit every make and model Concrete Saw.

Increase Your "Farming Reach"...

GO 6-ROW WITH JOHN DEERE

Cut Time, Labor, and Fuel Costs in One Wide Sweep

It's another John Deere first—a new way of farming to help you meet head-on and whip those bugaboos of bad weather, limited working time, and mounting labor and fuel costs. New John Deere 6-Row Farming Equipment teamed up with Modern John Deere Tractor Power.

With your farm geared to 6-row operation, you can be assured of keeping in stride with today's stepped-up farming pace. You can count on cutting fuel costs and working hours by as much as 1/3 and increasing the efficiency of power and labor by as much as 50 per cent. And it is all bound to show up in a lower figure on the cost side and a higher figure on the profit side when the tally is taken at the season's end.

John Deere 6-Row Farming Equipment includes both planters and cultivators designed to increase your "farming reach" at the same time that you sink costs to bedrock and squeeze every extra profit dollar out of every harvest.

So, go 6-row! Combine the eager, aggressive power of a Modern John Deere Tractor and the wide, hungry span of new John Deere 6-Row Equipment and put yourself in the forefront of today's stepped-up farming pace.

Ask your John Deere dealer for a demonstration and for information on the John Deere Credit Plan that will make it easy for you to own new John Deere Power and Equipment.

The width of the 6-row cultivator (large picture) can be narrowed for easy transporting or cultivating crops planted with four-row planters.

John Deere 6-Row Equipment includes corn planters, corn and cotton planters, and broders all available with attachments to increase their utility.

"Wherever Crops Grow, There's a Growing Demand for John Deere Farm Equipment."

ties show the most promise. At Fort Hays, Kan., 80% of the plants in a stand of Lobelia inflata have resisted the aphid. Lobelia isn't adapted to the northern half of the country, so scientists are working to get aphid resistance bred into our adapted varieties.

Big hope for next year among northern state entomologists is that a cold winter will knock out aphid populations. Raun points out that aphids disappeared during last winter in northern Kansas, northern Missouri and Nebraska. "We hope cold weather will knock them out here this winter," he says.

Even if it does, there's the chance for re-infestation from the south again next year. If infestations had come in earlier during the summer, there probably would have been severe damage this year in northern states.

The aphid is an ornery critter you'd better be on the lookout for next year. It's about half the size of a match head, straw colored, and has six rows of dark spots on its back with a spine growing out of each.

Water Fights Start In Midwest States

Iowa's water level is the lowest on record, according to Charles Brown, Iowa Geological Survey.

Of 125 wells on which records are kept throughout the state, only one is back to normal. All the rest have less water in them than at any time on record.

Requests to help find water are pouring in at 10 times the rate of a few years back.

Streams are flowing at a low ebb, too. The flow in 80% of them is the lowest since records were first kept.

Meanwhile, Nebraska, blessed with one of the best underground water supplies in the country, is taking steps to slow down depletion and to assure everyone a chance to use the water available. The Legislative Council has accepted a committee recommendation for a new law which would require irrigation wells to be spaced at least 600 feet apart and 300 feet from property lines.

Wisconsin farm groups are also asking for water legislation. Estimates are that water use in Wisconsin will double during the next 15 years.

A state Supreme Court ruling last June has brought this new interest in water to the forefront. The city of Fond du Lac optioned a big tract of land to get more water. When pumping started, farm wells started to go dry. But the Court ruled against the farmers.

With increased demands for water outrunning supplies in many areas, Secretary of the Interior Fred

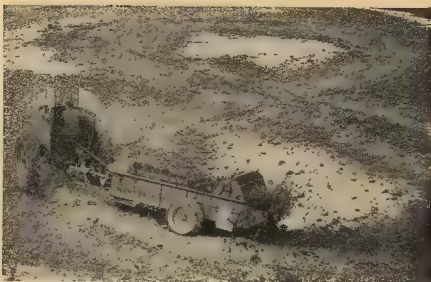

Figure 3 track test spreaders. Four hundred loads of clay and straw mix that's twice as tough and heavy as packed manure, taken over this grueling test track, are estimated to equal 1800 to 2000 field loads. All the newest New Idea spreaders have been put through this test.

Torture Tested so they'll last longer

Yes, NEW IDEA spreaders and loaders are overloaded - wracked — broken — rebuilt — a lifetime of use jammed into weeks or months.

For two generations, NEW IDEA spreaders have earned the respect of American farmers because they spread best and last longest. Today, too, we want to satisfy the needs of farmers who buy more NEW IDEA spreaders than any other make.

To make your dollars and your hours go as far as possible, you need a spreader-loader team that can stand the gaff every day for years.

That's why the latest NEW IDEA spreader-loader teams have been put over the torture tracks to improve their structural endurance. That's why they are driven till they break down, records kept, models rebuilt, and are destroyed again.

Farm tested for performance. NEW IDEA on-farm testing has been going on for years. And we still prove the quality of spreading under actual farm conditions, where time and uniformity of spreading can be measured.

Today, more than ever before, you should look at NEW IDEA spreaders and loaders before you buy. They are first in performance, first in value, first in sales. The finest you can buy, yet cost no more because volume of the world's largest spreader manufacturer keeps costs down.

Best idea yet... get a New Idea

Which tractor stays at the barn?

One thing's for sure. When you own a Ferguson, it won't be the tractor you leave behind.

It'll be your favorite . . . on light jobs or heavy. On either, there's no better tractor for easy handling and low operating costs. Because the Ferguson is recognized as the one tractor with a completely integrated hydraulic system. No tedious, separate adjustments. You get full use of all your power—automatically.

When you're plowing, for instance: You can plow with 3 bottoms in most soils . . . at a cost the bigger, fuel-wasting tractors can't match.

Farmers generally sum it all up in one sentence by saying: "It's got the Ferguson System."

It's the System that gives you complete control. You can raise or lower implements . . . hold them in any position . . . maintain effective draft control . . . even change the speed of response.

That's how the Ferguson saves your job time and cuts operating costs. That's why we think you'll pick it for just about every tractor job. Why not see your Ferguson dealer? Talk performance. Talk trade. See him first . . . or last. Either way you can't lose. Ferguson, Racine, Wis.

How to keep your horse at work

● A rubdown with Absorbine Wash right after work helps prevent galled shoulders, sore necks, stiffness across the back, shoulders and loins. Absorbine applied to a blemish or at the first sign of puffiness helps stop a more serious condition like ringbone or sprain. Does not remove hair nor blister skin. Horse can be treated on the job. Only $2.50 for a large bottle at all druggists.

and Only $24.95

The SONIC WAVE
No. 400—16" Remote Control Cabin Cruiser
Packed 6 to a carton
Shipping weight: 299 lbs.

The SONIC WAVE features:

- High impact styrene plastic hull
- Special rubber motor mounting
- Gold plate on all Sonic system parts
- Specially designed electro-magnet, rotary switches, and relay

The Sonic Wave is powered by a newly designed motor with an internal switch, built in low vibration and low drainage factors—for longer life

The Sonic Boat is controlled by a Sonic Gun which is included and can be easily operated by any age child. The impulses caused by the reports of the gun motivate the Sonic System which guides the boat in starboard and port turns, sends it full speed ahead, or brings it to a stop. The gun operates the boat within a range of 50 to 75 feet.

fort to get the necessary appropriations for a good research program.

We have sent some of our top animal disease scientists to England, where the British have been doing extensive research for the last 30 years. They've had the disease for nearly 200 years—low as high as 5% of their ewes each year to it.

This is our present control program: Slaughter all flocks in which any animal comes down with the disease. Then trace breeding sheep that have been sold from these flocks during the time they might have been exposed. These animals (and their immediate offspring) are slaughtered, and the rest of the flock placed under surveillance.

This, obviously, is an involved chore because scrapie has hit some top purebred flocks that sell breeding stock widely. (See map at the left.)

So far, scrapie has hit 59 flocks in this country—58 of them in 17 states since 1952. In all cases, imported breeding stock has been blamed. Another 1,800 flocks may have been exposed by sheep bought from infected flocks.

Should scrapie worsen, it will be up to sheepmen to demand laws to provide sterner action—such as destroying all suspect sheep or at least preventing their sale except for slaughter.

Wet Corn Makes Cheaper Beef Gains

Proof continues to pile up that wet corn makes better cattle feed than dry corn. So if frost should catch that low field of late corn this fall, and you have an air-tight silo, you've still got some mighty good cattle feed on hand. Fattening heifers at Purdue gained just as fast on 33% moisture corn as another 35 head did on 16% corn. But more surprising, they did it on 10% less high moisture corn, on a dry matter basis. They averaged 2.2 pounds a day on a 126-day full feed of ground ear corn, 3 pounds of Purdue Supplement A, hay and minerals.

Last year W. M. Beeson tried the same type test with steers. They needed 12% to 15% less high-moisture corn for a pound of gain, compared to dry corn.

So an early frost just could make you extra money, if you have a way to handle the crop—and some feeder cattle that are worth the price.

More Pig Parlors

The pig-feeding business continues to boom in the South. Purina officials estimate that more than 2,500 "pig parlors" have now been built.

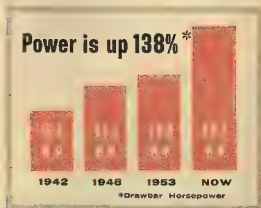

And nearly 1,000 farmers have set up "12-sow" units to supply pigs for their parlors and keep them in use the year 'round. This could whip the feeder-pig shortage—biggest problem that FARM JOURNAL's "panel" of hog raisers saw when they toured the southeast last month. End

LIVESTOCK

Are we losing the

Drawing: Paul Peters

THE nation's sheep industry is in a touch-and-go battle with one of the most mystifying and vicious diseases ever to strike livestock.

It's called scrapie, because infected animals rub against fences or buildings with such frenzy that they "scrape" the wool from their bodies.

Federal and state disease officials are up against a tough customer. Here are some of the reasons:

► We have no test to determine when a sheep is infected, a carrier or is incubating the disease.

- We have no vaccination.
- We have no treatment.
- We don't know for sure how scrapie is spread.

But we do know some things about the disease—and none of it good:

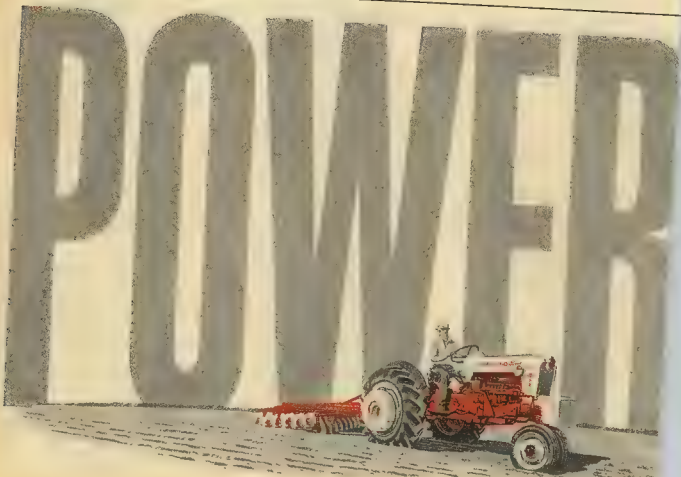

► It may take sheep as long as 4 months to come down with the disease once they're exposed.

► The disease-causing organism is one of the toughest of all to kill. The heat and chemicals that kill even known virus won't touch this one.

► It's a sure killer of sheep that develop symptoms you can see, but no one knows whether some sheep might be carriers without showing symptoms.

What are we doing about this threat? So far, we've spent not one penny for research in the United States. And, as far as FARM JOURNAL can discover, no one has made any serious effort TYPICAL BREAK shows how disease can spread from just one flock. Big problems in control: No test, no vaccine, we don't know how it spreads or length of the incubation period.

DEAR POLLY

Switch Cliques?

Dear Polly: In our school everybody belongs to cliques. When I was elected CAA president and class vice-president, the girls from the top clique asked me to join them. They're really nice girls. Most are officers in clubs, play in the band, and get good grades. Would the kids in my own clique resent it if I joined this other group?

MICKY, IOWA

• If there were no cliques, which girls would you like for friends? If it's the girls in your old crowd, why not stick with them? Obviously you don't need to join the "top" clique for prestige.

But if you now have more in common with the other school leaders, don't let loyalty bind you to your old crowd. That's not a good basis for friendship.

But do make friends with other students, too, for variety.

Which Boy Do I Love?

Dear Polly: About a year ago my boy friend, Bob, moved 500 miles away. Eventually Bob started to have dates and so I did, too. That made him so mad that he quit writing. Now I think I've fallen in love with the boy I've been dating. But how can that be, when I daydream about Bob all the time?

NANCY, CONNECTICUT

• Since Bob is so far away and doesn't even write, don't you think you might as well cross him off? I doubt, too, if you love the other boy when you think about Bob so much. Maybe now's the time to develop some new interests.

Parents Don't Approve of Boy

Dear Polly: I've been dating Jack, a very nice boy from town. The kids all like him, he's prominent in his school, and he treats me wonderfully. But my folks don't approve of him because his parents run a tavern. Do I have to give him up because they say so?

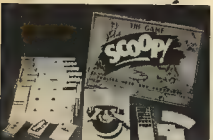

GWEN, COLORADO

• If Jack is as nice a boy as you say, he should be worth going to bat for. First, you might persuade your parents to talk with their friends in town who would know Jack. If the report is good, they should be willing to get better acquainted with him.

Have Jack to your home, with other

Boys Don't Dance

Dear Polly: Prom time is coming up and most of the fellows can't dance. Could you print some lessons in the FARM JOURNAL so they could learn how?

MAXINE, MINNESOTA

• I'm sorry, but we don't have enough space to print dance instructions, Maxine. If the boys want to learn that way they can probably get a book on dancing from the library.

But it would be much easier, and more fun, if you girls would teach them. You might organize a class at noon, with one of the teachers as an instructor; or you could have some fun sessions at your homes in the evening.

Give Valentine's Gift?

Dear Polly: Since Christmas my boy friend and I have decided to quit going steady, although we do date sometimes. Should I send or give him a valentine gift?

LETTIE, TENNESSEE

• Probably not, unless you give gifts to the other boys you date. Send him a nice-but-funny valentine.

Get Paid the Same

Dear Polly: I'm 15, and my sister is 12. Every week we clean up the house together, and we get paid the same amount. I don't think it's fair, because I do more work than she does. What do you think?

MILLY, OREGON

• Are you sure there's really a lot of difference in how much you do? If you put in the same amount of time, and your little sister does the best she can, maybe you'd better let the pay question drop. Since you're older, naturally you can accomplish more than your sister. But you probably have a break by getting to do most of the planning and the more interesting jobs.

Wants Long Curled Lashes

Dear Polly: My eye lashes are light and barely noticeable. How can I make them long and curly?

BETTY, FLORIDA

• Your lashes will seem longer if you give them a light touch of petroleum jelly when you do your make-up. For very special occasions your mother or sister might let you use some of her mascara. The only way to make lashes curl is to use an eye lash curler, which you can buy at a cosmetic counter. Use that, too, for extra special occasions only, until you get older.

Date Engaged Boy?

Dear Polly: The boy I used to go with is engaged to my girl friend. Recently he's been especially friendly to me, and I think he'd date me if I gave him any encouragement.

I really do like him. And if he likes me better than his fiancée, wouldn't it be better to find out now instead of after they're married?

JOAN, MISSOURI

• You're treading on dangerous ground, Joan. No one is criticized much more than the girl who makes a play for an engaged or married man.

Even if you decided to disregard public opinion and your girl friend's feelings, and succeeded in breaking the engagement, would you want what you went after? A man who would date you while engaged to someone else would be a risky bet as a husband.

Pork Chops with Fingers?

Dear Polly: I saw a man in a restaurant eating a pork chop with his fingers. Is that permissible?

OLIVE, NORTH DAKOTA

• No, it's not correct. Pork chops should be eaten with a knife and fork.

We Make Our Fun

Dear Polly: Two years ago I kept nagging to go to town, because there was nothing to do in our community. Then Mom suggested I have a party, and helped me plan it.

Everyone had fun, so after that we kids had parties about once a month at each other's homes. Later when we wanted a mixed soft-ball team, Dad made us a diamond in a field. We practiced every week.

During the two years, our group has grown from 6 to 20—we welcome any teen-agers from the neighborhood who want to come.

I think kids can have fun anywhere, if they're willing to make their good times—and if their parents cooperate!

SHIRLEY, MICHIGAN

Do You Have Fun?

Has your community started any kind of fun that you think other teen-agers might like to try, too? How has your family helped you and other teen-agers have a good time? Write and tell me all about it. We'll pay for ideas we publish. Write to: Polly's Fun, FARM JOURNAL, Philadelphia 5, Pa.

UP IN POLLY'S ROOM

enthusiasm light up your face. A girl who's merely pretty would be unnoticed beside you!

• Big forehead: Wear hair down or fluffed at sides, not pulled back. Try extending eyebrows slightly and cutting half bangs.

• Square jaw: Wear your hair either longer than your jawline, maybe in a page boy pulled back, or short and sleek. Try top interest like a wave or wisp of bang. Wear V or oval necklines.

• Receding chin: A dentist can probably fit your teeth with braces so your lower teeth come nearer to meeting your upper ones, to pull your jaw out. Holding your head erect also helps.

• Protruding or crooked teeth: Wear braces—and remember how pretty you'll be when they come off!

• Excess hair on face. Bleach it. If it's serious, see a skin specialist about ways to remove it permanently. For just a couple of stray hairs, use your tweezers—but clip them, don't pull them, if they're in a mole.

• Short neck: Wear your hair short and sleek—avoid high necklines.

• Glasses: Choose frames carefully to flatter your features. Beware of too-fancy frames, wear little jewelry, and keep your hair style simple.

• Freckles: Avoid the sun—and learn to like freckles! Powder helps hide.

• Birthmarks: Ask a doctor or nurse about a cover-up to apply like make-up.

• Round shoulders: Sports like tennis, badminton and swimming are pleasant cures. Or exercise regularly, swinging arms in circle up and back. Practice standing and sitting erect.

• Too thin: Check your general health with your doctor. Eat and sleep more; exercise to build up an appetite. Wear full skirts, bulky fabrics.

• Too heavy: Go to your doctor for a check-up. Then cut down on everything you eat. Avoid snacks except an apple, carrots or celery. Skip desserts.

• Large bust: Avoid tight clothes, or any accent there. Draw attention to neckline. Buy good firm bras.

• Large hips: Reduce them with active sports, such as bicycling, or exercises that require bumping hips against wall or floor. Wear slightly flared skirts in plain dark colors.

• Large stomach: Reduce it with exercise, such as lying on floor and lifting legs slowly up and down. Wear fullness in front sides of skirt, not all the way around. Wear one-piece dresses.

• Heavy legs: Wear plain shoes, hose with seams. Skirt should be medium length and never tight.

• Thin legs: Avoid very full or short skirts; wear seamless hose. End necessary to remove it with cold cream or with water or with soap and water.) After you have massaged off your mask, immediately smooth on a thin film of extra-rich night cream—even if you intend to put on fresh make-up immediately. This enriched cream gives a nice texture under your make-up and protects your skin against drying.

• new cream mask

Is your skin oily?

You might try a cream mask that has a very slight drying effect. But few oily skin conditions are improved with a mask that dries to a hard crust and cracks when you move your face. For an oily skin, try a cream mask that is medicated. After mask is removed, apply astringent with a cotton pad, then use a softening face lotion under your make-up base.

Is your skin sensitive?

Then pass up medicated creams that say "You may expect a smarting or tingling sensation."

Is your skin normal?

Choose a mask that will remain creamy—one that does not dry on your face. After using the mask, apply diluted astringent (moisten a cotton pad first with cool water, then with astringent). Smooth on a night cream or lotion, whichever seems to suit you best. Then you're ready for makeup base.

Does your skin have very oily areas as well as dry areas?

You may want to use two kinds of masks. Or, apply your oily-skin mask sparingly to the parts of your face that are not so oily. Then after you have removed the mask, apply astringent only to the oily areas. When you apply softening lotion, put a generous amount on the areas that seem to be dry.

Now, you're ready to greet your guests and have a wonderful time. End

for half-size and large-size figures

● If you shop for large sizes or half-sizes, chances are, you get discouraged with finding several too-similar styles that fairly shout "for a big woman." We'd like to change that situation.

Here are brand new patterns designed for full figures, yet they are fashion-right, youthful and slimming.

Now that pattern companies have adjusted their sizes to fit more women better (see FARM JOURNAL, September, 1956) the large-figured woman need make fewer pattern alterations. And these new slimming styles are another reason for a new outlook on sewing for yourself. (Watch for more "Slenderettes" in the latest Simplicity pattern book.)

While you're looking for style and smartness in a dress pattern, choose features which guide the eye away from specific figure faults and focus attention where you want it. For instance, heavy upper arms remain a secret when they're kept covered; self-fabric belts put less emphasis on your waistline; up-and-down lines in a dress stretch you out, slim you; smooth skirt lines flatten your tummy.
